FLYERS REACH MID-ATLANTIC

SKELETONS AND CAMP KIT BARE ANDREE'S STORY

Think Ice on Balloon Ended Arctic Hop.

The Arctic Mystery

Dr. Gunnar Horn, chief of the Norwegian exploration party, says in first interview that canvas coffins on sealer Bratvag contain only skeletons of Salomon August Andree and his companions, first balloon explorers of arctic, who disappeared 33 years ago.

Ship, carrying remains of Andree and companions, leaves for Tromsoe, Norway, where Dr. Horn will yield precious Arctic diary, which he is guarding.

ABOARD MOTORSHIP BRATVAAG, SKJAER ISLAND, Norway, Sept. 1.—[By wireless to the Associated Press.]—This story is being unfolded in the cabin of the distinguished arctic explorer, Dr. Gunnar Horn, aboard the little sealer Bratvaag, which in the early hours today put in here to give the world the denouement of the mystery story surrounding the disappearance a generation ago of Salomon August Andree and two comrades after they set out from Spitsbergen in an attempt to fly across the north pole.

Opposite me sits Horn—a bronzed adventurer, who has fought many dangerous battles with the storms of the farthest north and still lives to smile.

Only Skeletons Found.

In my hand is a boathook found in the Andree camp. It is engraved with words, which proudly proclaim that Andree's venture lay toward the then undiscovered north pole. One feels a queer sensation as this historic boat hook turns in his hand.

Dr. Horn told me that two bodies he found on White island—those of Andree and supposedly of Nils Strindberg—had deteriorated in their long sleep in the ice until they were nothing but bones, although the clothing was fairly well preserved. More bones, which might be those of the third explorer, Knut Frankel, were found in the boat.

"It is natural," said Dr. Horn, "that in the 33 years they have been exposed to thawing and freezing they should have been destroyed. The world has had too great expectations. There is no question of being able to embalm these bodies; they are too far gone.

Bodies Carefully Guarded.

"But I do believe that the bodies now are in the same condition as when we found them, for we have guarded them carefully. Whether those few pieces of bones we found in the boat belonged to the third member of the expedition it is impossible for us to say yet.

"That is a question which will have to be considered by experts. We have felt that it was outside our province to examine the contents of the boat more closely."

Dr. Horn showed me Andree's diary and navigation books. The leaves of the diary were glued together from the moisture in the binding and from dampness. Dr. Horn says he believes there is no doubt that Andree's balloon came to grief because of the snow and ice, which gathered on it and weighted it down until it crashed. He said the three members of the expedition had no built any hut or cairn. They had used the last bits of their strength to drag their boat up on the land.

"We also found Andree's camera," said Dr. Horn.

"It is of the reflex type and the plates are 2½ by 2¼ inches. Fastened to the camera was a compass. The camera had open seams, which precludes the possibility of any pictures being reproduced."

Horn showed me Andree's sextant. It was full of ice when found and a few hairs from a polar bear were stuck to it. Among other things found were a pulley which had been used in the balloon, two rusty rifles, one [illegible] some stockings, and a

CINCINNATI BEATS CUBS, 5 TO 0; THEN RALLIES TO WIN, 2-1

Cincinnati defeated the Cubs twice yesterday, 5 to 0 and 2 to 1. The setback reduces the champions' National league lead to four games over the Giants, four and a half over the Cardinals, and five over the Robins. Two runs in the ninth inning gave the Reds victory over the Cubs in the second game.

FRENCH PLANE'S RADIO HEARD IN NOVA SCOTIA

BULLETIN.

PARIS, Sept. 2 (Tuesday).—(AP)—The air ministry announced this morning that Capt. Dieudonne Coste had given the position of his plane, the Question Mark, to the wireless operator aboard the steamer Jacques Cartier at 4 a. m., G. M. T. (11 p. m. Monday, Chicago daylight time) as 43 north, 41:15 west, route 272. The position given is about 1,725 miles east of New York.

The position given indicated a sharp southward turn to the plane's course, which within a few hours placed it far to the south of the usual course off the Newfoundland coast, and set it almost due east of New York.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, Sept. 1.—The French flyers winging their way to New York on the Question Mark are now in touch by radio with Louisburg, Cape Breton island, Nova Scotia. Contact was made at 9:20 p. m., Newfoundland time [7:49 p. m., Chicago daylight time].

The Fogo island wireless station, Newfoundland, reported that it had heard the liner Bremen report on the position of the Question Mark at 5 p. m. Chicago daylight time as latitude 50.10 north and longitude 30.40 west. At 6 p. m. Chicago daylight time the Bremen reported that the flyers were at latitude 48.30 north and longitude 32.00 west. This indicates that the French plane had headed south, either because of the weather or in order to fly more directly to Halifax.

At midnight the Cape Race radio station had picked up no signals from the plane but reported that the weather was fine with bright moonlight. The great circle course the flyers intend to follow would take them south of Cape Race, whose latitude is 46.39 north.

HITS 126 MILES AN HOUR

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 1.—Traveling at the rate of 126 miles an hour Capt. Dieudonne Coste and his navigator, Maurice Bellonte, in their biplane Question Mark swept from French territory and over the English channel near the Pointe de Barfleur at 5:48 Chicago daylight time this [Monday] morning at an altitude of 3,500 feet en route for New York.

The convoy of machines with military pilots, cameramen and movie operators who escorted the red plane as far as the coast, reported that the big 650 horsepower Hispano-Suiz was functioning perfectly with a throaty roar and that Capt. Coste waved the last plane adieu with a cheery smile.

Wants to Hit Halifax.

"Before reaching Newfoundland," said Capt. Coste before his departure, "I will bend southward and strike for Halifax direct. From Halifax I will head straight for New York."

Plymouth reported hearing from the Question Mark as it flew over the channel, then messages came from Queenstown, Waterford, Limerick, and Valentia, all in Ireland, as the plane made its way to the ocean. Some five hours after leaving Paris the plane left the Irish coast and headed out towards America.

Before long ships at sea were in communication with the plane's two-way radio, and it was reported to be 260 miles out from Ireland at about noon, Chicago daylight time, and a little over two hours later as nearly 600 miles off the Irish coast. The plane was evidently thundering along at well over 100 miles an hour.

Fog Delays Start.

Capt. Coste took the air at 10:54 a. m. summer time (4:54 Chicago daylight time) after crowds had waited all night long at Le Bourget airdrome for a start that had originally been scheduled for daybreak. The weather between the capital and the sea was thick with mist and fog, so Capt. Coste delayed the start several hours.

Mme. Coste and Mme. Bellonte burst into tears as their husbands donned their leather flying togs and stowed cold chicken, mineral water, a couple of bottles of champagne, and buttered bread in the fuselage of the Question Mark.

LINDY AND WIFE FORCED TO LAND BY FOG IN EAST

New York, Sept. 2.—1 A. M.—[Special.]—Col. and Mrs. Charles Lindbergh were forced down by a fog at the air mail field at Bellefonte, Pa., last evening as they were returning here from Detroit, where they had been visiting on the way back from the National air races at Chicago.

Although the couple landed at Bellefonte at 10 o'clock, two hours after their departure from Buffalo, where they had stopped for fuel, word of their landing was not received here until early this morning.

Landing fields in the metropolitan area kept their flood lights on in the hope that they might guide the plane down, although attachés at the Long Island field admitted that even the most skillful flyer could not have landed in the face of the thick blanket of fog during the late afternoon and evening.

Col. Lindbergh had arrived in Buffalo and was warned by the meteorologist there of poor visibility along the Hudson valley. He took on an extra 50 gallons of gasoline, evidently to provide for the possibility that he might not be able to land at New York and might have to turn back.

MrsM'Cormick Admits She Is on Nye's Trail

Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican candidate for the senate from Illinois, last night issued a statement in reply to one by Senator Gerald Nye [N. D.], chairman of the committee investigating senatorial elections. Senator Nye last Saturday announced that some one has been investigating his actions. Mrs. McCormick's statement follows:

"Newspaper dispatches report that United States Senator Gerald P. Nye, chairman of the special senate investigating committee, is 'indignant' because private investigators have been examining the methods and affiliations of himself and of his agents. Senator Nye wants to know who did it. I did it. I am still doing it; and the results have already justified my course. What is Senator Nye going to do about it?

Her "Detailed Statement."

"When the committee began its inquiry into senatorial primary campaign expenditures I immediately laid before it a detailed statement of my personal campaign expenditures. It was the most complete statement ever submitted to a senate committee by a candidate. I voluntarily supplemented that information with another later full report of expenses incurred by others in my behalf.

"Meanwhile, after the Chicago hearings opened last July and while I still was assisting the committee in every way possible, what took place? Prosecution became persecution. My offices were broken into and my personal and business correspondence files were rifled. Spies invaded my living quarters. My residence and office telephone wires were tapped and they still are under supervision.

"Acted in Self Defense."

"In making my own investigation of the Nye investigators I have acted in self defense. If Senator Nye is indignant, so am I, a congressman at large.

"The men investigating Senator Nye and his agents have made no mystery of their actions. In North Dakota they called on citizens openly, told what they were after, and left their cards and addresses. On one occasion one of these investigators attended a meeting of citizens in which Senator Nye's methods were freely discussed.

"I believe that I voice the sentiments, not only of the people of Illinois, but of the country at large, when I express resentment at the methods of Senator Nye. I repeat, what is Senator Nye going to do about it?"

MOTORIST KILLS BOY, INJURES 3 ON SAFETY ISLE

A motorist, speeding north in Ashland avenue, ran through a safety zone at 72d street last night, struck a family of four waiting for a street car and, overtaken blocks away, was locked up by Englewood police.

One of his victims, 6 year old Victor Kelter, died early this morning in the Holy Cross hospital. His sister, Dorothy, 7 years old, is in the same hospital, internally injured and with both legs fractured.

Their father, Frank Kelter, 37 years old, escaped with a broken leg, but the mother, Sophie Kelter, 35 years old, incurred a skull fracture and may not live, according to the Holy Cross hospital surgeons. The family lives at 6513 South Damen avenue.

The motorist is John Graven, 22 years old, 6500 South May street. Englewood police said he had been drinking.

Shot to Death as He Puts His Auto in Garage

Nick Petrocelli, 40 years old, was shot to death early this morning in his back yard at 9551 Avenue N. The killer or killers fired two shots into his head and several into his body as he left his garage after driving home in a sedan and escaped. Police took Petrocelli to the South Chicago hospital, where he was pronounced dead. Whether he died resisting robbers or feudists was undetermined.

$750,000 Loss in Spectacular Downtown Fire

Fire of mysterious origin ruined three buildings on East Illinois street near the river last night. Starting swiftly the flames, in two hours, wrecked the Goodrich Transit company commissary at the east end of Austin avenue and plants No. 2 and No. 3 of the Curtiss Candy company, 311 and 337 East Illinois street. The loss was estimated at from $750,000 to $1,000,000.

Fire Marshal Corrigan ordered an investigation of the fire after being informed that it grew within a few minutes from a few whisps of smoke to a roaring blaze in the one story commissary building, giving off dense, black smoke.

Special Alarms Sounded.

An alarm at 7:25 p. m. brought First Division Marshall Joseph Mackey who turned in a 2-11 call. Within a few minutes the swift spread of the flames caused the 5-11 call to be sounded. Within the next two hours five "specials" were needed, the combined calls bringing fifty pieces of apparatus, including two fireboats, to the scene.

The shrieking fire trucks, the mounting smoke which rose more than 500 feet, and the flames which illuminated the city for miles from the vantage point northeast of the loop, brought great crowds of spectators. There was a multitude of fire fans, flourishing badges, red courtesy cards, and stars of all sizes and descriptions, hindering firemen in their work and interfering within the police lines.

Wreck Hampers Fire Boat.

Hurrying from its station at the navy pier, the fire boat Graeme Stewart joined the first apparatus by steaming into the Ogden slip, to the south of the commissary. Its progress there was impeded by the half sunken hulk of the old wooden steamer, Mineral City, and by two moored fishing boats, but the nozzles were soon active while the truck companies worked from Seneca street.

The flames soon crossed a narrow alleyway and set fire to plant No. 2 of the Curtiss company, a four story building. Before these could be checked they had spread to the adjacent plant, where several carloads of sugar and sirup were stored, and the problem was enlarged to include saving nearby property.

Water Tank Proves Peril.

On the roof of the third bulding, which has setbacks rising from four to six and then eight stories, a large water tank is perched and as the fire increased, it was feared that this would crash and carry walls and flooring with it. By playing constant streams of water upon the section supporting it, this was averted, but the tank was tottery when the blaze had been brought under control.

Two tall water towers were moved into Illinois street to protect the Bush Terminal warehouse when the third building burst into flame, and the fireboat Illinois joined the Graeme Stewart from its down river post.

Meantime the fire fans were rapidly becoming unmanageable, firemen reported. Pinning their stars on their coat lapels and brandishing their courtesy cards, they swarmed over hose lines, complicating their movements, and pushed close to the burning buildings. The fire fighters pleaded for more room and were confronted with the badges, at least one of which was issued twenty years ago. The fans argued with police and clustered about the apparatus and the men manipulating it.

Four Boats Destroyed.

It was two hours before the flames had been brought completely under control. An inquiry on the loss revealed that in a portion of the com-

Leading the field on the seventeenth lap of the Thompson trophy race, featured event of the 1930 national air races, Capt. Arthur H. Page of the United States marine corps plunged to his death yesterday when his Curtiss Hawk plane faltered at 200 miles an hour and crashed in view of 70,000 spectators.

A blood transfusion having failed, Capt. Page, famous member of the Early Bird organization of veteran flyers, died at 9:40 p. m. in the Evanston hospital. It was the fourth fatality of the races. Charles W. [Speed] Holman of Minneapolis won the Thompson trophy. Holman's average speed was 201.91 miles an hour.

Having led from the start and flying a brilliant race throughout, Capt. Page's big blue ship was the focus of all eyes when, at an altitude of 75 feet, his 800 horsepower Conqueror engine appeared to falter. With thousands of spectators dangerously close, the marine flyer pitched to earth, raising a tremendous dust cloud.

Plane Lands on Wing.

The plane grounded first on a wing. The shock ripped the engine from the frame and hurled it deep in the earth several feet from the plane itself. Except for the tubular steel structure of the fuselage, which held the cockpit intact, Capt. Page would have been killed instantly, observers said.

Some pilots believed the captain had been overcome by gas fumes from his engine and others that a control fouled. Among those holding the first opinion was Lieut. Clifford Cooper of the navy flying team, who was chatting with Health Commissioner Kegel when the crash occurred.

Accompanied by the health department's toxicologist, Dr. William D McNally, Commissioner Kegel called at the hospital soon after Capt. Page died. Dr. McNally took a blood sample by which he hoped, though chemical tests today to determine whether the flyer had been affected by gas poisoning. The coincidence of the blood transfusion will make the test difficult, Dr. McNally said.

Winning Race at Crash.

Just before the final racing event, the attending physicians, Dr. Robert G. Davis, navy physician, and Dr. J. P. Grier of Evanston, telephoned race officials that Capt. Page had a chance of recovery. A mighty cheer arose from the 50,000 remaining for the closing ceremonies of the race when the announcement was broadcast.

Capt. Page's was the first plane to roar into the air, and as six others strung out behind him he began immediately to stretch a substantial lead. His big blue Curtiss Hawk was a fleet shadow across the back stretch, and as he roared down before the crowds a great wake of black smoke came from his 800 horsepower Conqueror engine.

Flies 207 Miles an Hour.

At the end of the third trip around the five mile course Page had lapped two of the also rans and was increasing his lead over Holman. Because of his great speed and the shortness of the course he was flying in great circles around the turns. Half way through the race he was leading with an average speed of 205 miles an hour. Every lap he was pushing farther forward on the throttle. On his final round he was clipping off 207 miles an hour.

As he swung around before the crowd on the 17th lap he had throttled his motor down and it was apparent that something was wrong. As he approached number [illegible] pylon Benny Howard in his [illegible]

Fall Prices on Men's Clothing Below Last Year

Last week saw men not so solicitous about their hats. Straws weren't what they had been in May and June. Sun, accident and grime had taken away some of their early beauty. Now comes the end of the official season.

The new felts are smart enough to make any man glad to shed his straw hat. Brims and crowns have enough difference to get immediate attention. Colors and materials introduce new slants on how to look well dressed. Derbies, which still have a strong backing, live up to any man's expectations. What a chap gets for his money this fall in looks and value is more than retailers in Chicago have been able to offer for quite some time.

Prices on suits, also, and on shirts, ties and other fittings are generally lower than last year. Men who were unable to take advantage of last month's sales still find prices which stretch a dollar a long way.

Chicago Tribune

plane was turning it and it looked like a battle on the pylon until Page pulled up inside the marker and climbed.

As the plane crashed, emergency ambulances and motorcycles with sirens screaming sped to his rescue and after them ran a hundred spectators who broke from police lines. The flyer was rushed to Evanston hospital.

Run Spectacular Race.

It was a grilling race throughout. The tremendous speed of the winning plane is not reflected in the official time for much ground was lost on the turns of the short course. Spectacular fighting for positions and bunching around the turns marked the early stages of the race, but the field was soon cleared of three of the seven entries.

Capt. Frank Hawks, flying his fast Travelair low wing monoplane that won him the transcontinental speed record, dropped into the race field at the end of the fourth lap with a still propeller. After the first two laps he said his motor revolutions dropped considerably and he landed to avoid danger which was rapidly becoming apparent.

Holman Is Dark Horse.

Holman was a dark horse. His special Laird biplane powered with a Wasp Junior motor, was finished only at midnight Sunday. Built in the Chicago factory of E. M. Laird, the plane left the ground only an hour before the race started. With a strange plane Holman several times threatened to overtake Page. In two laps he made 210 miles an hour, but toward the close of the race he was unable to keep his plane full out, for he was fighting to keep conscious.

"I had a devil of a battle there toward the last," Speed said later. "The fumes from the motor were terrific. Several times I thought I would have to pull out."

Following Holman in to win second place was Jimmy Haizlip of St. Louis in a duplicate to Hawks' ship. Haizlip's speed was 199.80 miles per hour.

Benny Howard Third.

Perhaps the most popular victor was Benny Howard, St. Louis mail pilot, who spent a year working on his midget racing monoplane. With a plane only a fifth as large as the other racers Howard stayed in the race and came in third with a speed of 162 miles an hour. It was his seventh victory in the race meet and five of them were first places. He chuckled last night over the fact that his prize winnings including his $2,000 third place money in the Thompson race, would more than pay for the cost of his ship.

Just before the race was announced all contesting pilots gathered before the officials' stand and around the Thompson trophy, an heroic figure of flight done in bronze. The donor is Charles E. Thompson of Cleveland, manufacturer of airplane accessories. In addition to the trophy the winner was awarded a prize of $5,000. Winners of second and third places received $3,000 and $2,000 respectively.

Air Bumpy for Races.

A brisk wind was blowing from the south as the racers took off and the air was a bit bumpy, for a hot sun beat down upon the field and set up conflicting air currents. The service planes earlier had some trouble in keeping in formation and the racers in previous events found some difficulty in judging the wind on the turns.

Shortly after the Thompson race finished Wilfred G. Moore, who with Miss Alice Campbell of 2418 Payne street, Evanston, took off in an attempt to break the light plane altitude record, landed on the field. The pilot said he had attained 26,000 feet. If his claim is substantiated by the reading of his barograph he will win the record which is now held by a German pilot.

Set Attendance at 400,000.

Race officials estimated that more than 400,000 persons attended the races since they opened on Aug. 23. They were unable to give an estimate on the financial success of the meet, but it was variously estimated that the receipts would amount to more than $700,000.

The meet closed last night with the awarding of more than 100 trophies to the winners of seven cross country Derbies and other competitive events and the delivery of $100,000 in prize money.

The German flyers, Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau and his three companions, who decided to stay another day in Chicago before returning to the east made a third flight over the race crowds yesterday afternoon in their Dornier-Wal seaplane.

Escorting the ocean flyers were eight marine corps planes. The Germans plan to fly to Cleveland this morning, pause there for the Gordon Bennett balloon races and fly on to New York.

Capt. Page's Record.

Capt. Page was born in St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 17, 1895. He was graduated from the naval academy in 1917 and was commissioned a second lieutenant in the marine corps. He was designated naval aviator March 14, 1918.

During the world war Capt. Page specialized in balloon work and attended the army balloon school at Fort Omaha, Neb. He also served with the marine aeronautic detachments in Miami, Fla., and Philadelphia.

Capt. Page has served with marine corps aviation units in San Domingo, Haiti, Guam, and China. He has taken part in many long flights, including the transcontinental reliability test in 1919; a flight from Washington, D. C., to San Diego, Cal., and return in 1923, and a recent replacement flight in heavy transport planes from Washington to Managua, Nicaragua, and return, which was completed in the record time of 6 days and 20 minutes with fifty-five hours actually in the air.

Capt. Page received a letter of commendation for the San Diego flight. His official residence is New York, N. Y. He is the son of Mrs. M. S. Page of 202 West 74th street, New York City.

Capt. Hawks Pays Tribute.

When he learned that Capt. Page's injuries had resulted fatally, Capt. Hawks paid high tribute to the dead aviator. He said:

"In my brief but extremely pleasant acquaintanceship with Capt. Page I recognized a gentleman and an able pilot. It is pleasant to recall his last salute to me as we were lined up for the takeoff, and it is consoling to know that Capt. Page did everything possible to land safely after his motor quit.

"Wind conditions and the proximity of the crowd prohibited him from attempting anything but the landing, which he tried. In dying he saved others. No one could be more generous. The marine corps may indeed be proud of Capt. Page—a real man."

Results of Air Race Contests

Charles W. [Speed] Holman of Minneapolis yesterday won the Thompson trophy race, the feature speed event of the national air races, when he flew the race at an average speed of 201.81 miles an hour. Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell of Long Beach, Cal., won the free-for-all race for women with an average speed of 149.9 miles per hour. The results of the contests yesterday follow:

Thompson trophy race [free-for-all, unlimited horse power, 100 miles, 20 laps of five mile course, total purse $10,000]—First, Charles W. Holman, Minneapolis, in a Laird, powered with special Wasp Junior; average speed, 201.91 miles per hour; elapsed time, 29:43. Second, James Haizlip, St. Louis, in Travelair low wing monoplane, powered with Wright J-6 motor; average speed, 199.8 miles per hour; elapsed time, 30:01.8. Third, Ben O. Howard, St. Louis, in a Howard special, Gypsy motor; average speed, 162.80; elapsed time, 30:51.3.

Mrs. Robert R. McCormick trophy race [free for all for women, 50 miles]—First, Gladys O'Donnell, Long Beach, Cal., in a Waco plane powered with a Wright J-6 motor; second, Mae Haizlip, St. Louis, in a Travelair powered with a Wright motor. Winner's average speed 149.9 miles per hour. Winner's time, 20:00.8.

Men's free-for-all [50 miles, 650 cubic inch maximum piston displacement]—First, B. J. Howard, St. Louis, in a Howard, powered with a Gypsy L-3 motor; second, William Ong, Kansas City, in a Cessna plane, powered with a Warner motor; third, E. Z. Newsome, Little Rock, Ark., in a Little Rock plane, powered with a Cirrus motor. Winner's average speed, 155.19 miles per hour, winner's time, 19:19.9.

Primary glider duration contest—First, F. W. Westphal, Palatine. Time, 1 minute 28 2-5 seconds in the air; second, W. B. Brunken, Maywood, time, 1:27 minutes in the air; third, E. Fugelstadt, Chicago, time, 1 minute in the air.

Secondary glider spot landing contest—F. C. Skeels, Chicago, 3 feet 1¼ inches from the flag; second, W. H. Harris, Chicago, 28 feet 5¼ inches from the flag; third, Ivan Stoughton, St. Joseph, Mich., 79 feet 7 inches from the flag.

Free-for-all spot landing glider contest—First, F. C. Skeels, Chicago, 50 feet 5 inches from the flag; second, Ivan Stoughton, St. Joseph, Mich., 80 feet 5 inches from the flag; third, W. H. Harris, Chicago, 125 feet 6 inches from the flag.

Men's dead stick landing contest—First, R. D. Rae, East Lansing, Mich., in a Challenger, 5 feet 9¼ inches from the flag; second, Lieut. W. A. Krauts, Cincinnati, in an Aeronca, 9 feet 11¼ inches from the flag; third, J. H. Livingston, Aurora, in a Waco F, 16 feet 3 inches from the flag.

Woman's dead stick landing contest—First, Betty Lund, Troy, O., in an Aeronca, 67 feet 4 inches from the flag; second, Mildred Morgan, Beverly Hills, Cal., in a Travelair, 135 feet from the flag; third, Nancy Hopkins, Garden City, N. Y., in a Kittyhawk, 170 feet from the flag.

Sportsman pilot's race [for planes of 150 horse power; distance, 25 miles]—First, A. Hardgrave, Kansas City, in an Inland sport; second, W. G. Houston of Chicago in an Inland sport; third, M. C. Meigs of Chicago in an Inland sport. Winner's average speed, 119.35 miles per hour; winner's time, 12:34.1.

MRS. O'DONNELL WINS 4TH VICTORY IN FREE FOR ALL

Spectators Get Thrills in Women's Race.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

America's ladybirds folded their wings last night at the national air meet after the most spectacular feminine competition of the ten days of racing events. Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell of Long Beach, Cal., started in second place, but finished first at an average speed of 149.9 miles per hour to win the 50 mile free for all race for women, an event packed with thrills for the thousands stretching their necks in the grand stands below.

The race marked Mrs. O'Donnell's fourth victory of the meet. She carried off the Mrs. Robert R. McCormick trophy, valued at $2,500, and a purse of $1,250. On bringing down her ship she was picked up by a motorcycle sidecar and rushed back to the microphone stand, where she was presented to the fans.

Mrs. O'Donnell Gains.

Seven planes were on the mark when the starting cannon boomed and they were off at intervals of ten seconds. Mrs. Opal Kunz of New York, piloting her powerful 300 horsepower Travelair, took the lead for the first few laps. Mrs. O'Donnell followed her, but settled down to the chase at once and pushed her plane for everything it was worth. Shaving the pylons as expertly as the more adept of the male pilots, she crept up steadily on the heavier craft, which lost time consistently on rounding the pylons in wider arcs.

Mrs. O'Donnell was at the stick of the same yellow and scarlet Waco monoplane in which she swooped across the continent to win the women's Pacific coast Derby. It lacked 60 horsepower of equaling the larger Travelair, but its streamline construction helped to offset that disadvantage and expert handling did the rest.

Mrs. Haizlip Second.

It fell to Mrs. Mae Haizlip of St. Louis, however, to send chills down the spines of the spectators with her daring manipulation of a crimson Cessna monoplane. By dint of brilliant swings at the pylons, with her wings so sharply banked that she almost turned over into a loop time after time, the plucky aviatrix made up sufficient time on the ten laps to come in ahead even of Mrs. Kunz, placing second in the event and winning $750. Third place netted Mrs. Kunz $500.

Marjorie Doig of New York City, piloting a Pitcairn, was fourth in the field and not in the moneny. Phoebe Omlie, in her red and yellow Monocoupe, which captured first place in the Dixie Derby, came in fifth, having voted to help to make it interesting for the heavier ships.

Hundreds of the people in the stands were pulling for Ruth Nichols of New York. But the crowd gasped when, in flipping her Laird biplane sharply to prevent a crash with Mrs. Haizlip's ship as they neared the first pylon, Miss Nichols' plane veered wide and missed the pylon, disqualifying the pilot.

Mildred Morgan of Beverly Hills, Cal., was also in the field, but never in the running. Her Travelair plane had a balky motor and she stayed high in the air for three laps in order not to interfere with other contestants, then was forced down.

A Popular Victory.

Mrs. O'Donnell's victory was a popular one. She was loudly applauded as she hopped up to call the usual greetings through the loud speaker. She was escorted to the box of Mrs. McCormick, donor of the trophy, to be introduced and congratulated. Mrs. McCormick was hostess to a number of guests, and extended compliments to all the aviatrices for "a really marvelous race." The trophy consists of a large silver bowl.

In the morning Betty Lund repeated her victory of the previous day by landing closer to the flag in the women's dead stick competition than any of her competitors. Her mark was 67 feet. Mildred Morgan was second, at 135 feet from the pin, and Nancy Hopkins third, at 167 feet.

Aviatrices Get Contracts.

Miss Marjorie Vail of Pasadena, official hostess for the women pilots, said that a number of the feminine flyers who came to Chicago jobless, are going away with contracts and are jubilant over the impetus the meet has given to aviation in general and their members in particular.

One of the girls has signed a contract to make an endurance flight, but the identity of the aviatrix could not be learned.

WILL BLAST SHIP FOR $5,000,000 GOLD UNDER SEA

BREST, France, Sept. 1.—(AP)—The work of blasting open the hull of the sunken liner Egypt, which went down in 1922 with $5,000,000 in gold on board, will begin tomorrow morning. The Italian salvage experts who located the liner off the storm ridden coast of Brittany say it appears to have suffered little from the long submersion. It lies almost on an even keel at a depth of about sixty fathoms [360 feet].

Divers from the tug Artiglio had no difficulty in identifying the liner by means of the dimensions of the hull and by the various instruments, notably the compass. The ship was found off Armen Light, near Douarnenez. The exact position is given as 48 degrees 7 minutes 45 seconds north latitude and 5 degrees 30 minutes 30 seconds west longitude.

TWO PASSENGERS DIE, PILOT HURT IN PLANE CRASH

10,000 Picnickers See Accident Near Dundee.

Frank L. Delhs, Elgin realty dealer and aviation enthusiast, who narrowly escaped death last Friday when a plane hurtled to the ground beside him at the national air races, was in a fatal crackup last evening when his own plane, carrying himself and two passengers, crashed at Carpentersville park, near Dundee. Ten thousand Labor day picnickers saw the accident.

ERVIN BORN.

JOHN HUBERT.

The passengers, John Hubert, 19 years old, and Ervin Born, former Elgin High school athletes, were fatally hurt. Hubert died en route to St. Joseph's hospital, Elgin, and Born lived only two hours at the Sherman hospital in Elgin. Delhs, who suffered internal injuries and amputation of his left foot, is in critical condition at the Sherman hospital.

Fly at Picnic Park.

Delhs, who is 36 years old, a war veteran and holder of a limited commercial pilot's license, had flown his plane, powered by a V-type Hispano-Suiza engine, early in the afternoon to the park where residents of East Dundee, West Dundee, and Carpentersville were attending a picnic sponsored by the Tri-City club.

During the afternoon the plane, licensed by the department of commerce for passenger carrying, took scores of sightseers aloft, but the piloting was done by Melvin Aavang, Elgin transport pilot. At 7 p. m., Aavang asked relief while he lunched, and Delhs took the controls.

Plane Dives After Tail Spin.

He took off into the wind and was banking to fly across the crowd when the plane, apparently lacking sufficient speed, slid sideslipped, went into a tail spin and plunged 500 feet. The use of crow bars was necessary to extricate pilot and passengers. Deputy sheriffs roped off the wreckage and a guard was posted to ward off souvenir hunters until department of commerce inspectors examine the wreckage today.

Delhs, who was a member of the Elgin Chamber of Commerce delegation at the air races on Friday, wrenched his back dodging the "safety plane" in which George G. Fernic of New York crashed to his death.

Hubert, who had been saving his earnings for two years to pursue an artist's career, expected to register at the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts this morning. Born was captain elect of the football team of Coe college, Cedar Rapids, Ia., and expected to leave for school this week. Born's father, a railroad engineer, said he had information that the plane was overloaded and declared he would file charges against the pilot if he recovered.

Plane Plunges into Sea.

Sandy Hook, N. J., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Hundreds of promenaders at Highland beach saw an army plane plunge into the ocean tonight, half a mile off shore, carrying its pilot to death, and witnessed the rescue of the observer.

The pilot was Lieut. William A. Harbold, 25 years old, of Lexington, Ky., attached to the army air station at Mitchel field, L. I. The observer, Lieut. Donald A. Baxter of Philadelphia, is in the hospital at Fort Hancock suffering from shock and submersion.

Saved by Plane's Tire.

Edward Rosebach, 21 years old, of Highlands, and two companions managed to get a dory out through the breakers and started rowing to the spot where the plane had hit. They reached the spot just as the plane sank.

At the same time a fishing launch reached the scene and came upon Lieut. Baxter clinging to one of the plane's landing wheels, kept afloat because of its inflated tire. He was hauled into the fishing boat.

Two Killed Near Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Two men were killed and a third seriously injured today in an airplane crash at Elma, about 12 miles from Buffalo, marking the second fatal plane accident near the city in four days. Two girls and a man were killed Wednesday.

The dead in today's accident are Donald Aldred, pilot, of Buffalo, and Robert E. Bell, a photographer for the Buffalo General Electric company. Edward K. Aldred, 18, a brother of the pilot, is in a hospital seriously injured.

Two Dead in Michigan.

Ironwood, Mich., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Morris Bergland, 19, Hurley, Wis., died tonight from injuries received in an airplane crash at the Gogebic county airport in which Clarence Jacquart, 28, Ironwood, was killed.

WHEN 317 WERE SAVED FROM WATERY GRAVE

View of the British steamship Tahiti about to sink in the South Pacific ocean. This picture was taken from the deck of the Matson liner Ventura, an American ship which went to the aid of the Tahiti after receiving signals of distress and safely removed the 317 on board—passengers and crew. The Ventura arrived at San Francisco yesterday with the survivors of the Tahiti on board.

[Pacific and Atlantic Photo: Sent by phone.]

Rescued Reach Port

San Francisco, Calif., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—The traditional "happy ending" to a thrilling epic of the sea was written in San Francisco bay when the Matson liner Ventura steamed in bearing ninety-one of the 317 men, women and children she rescued from the foundering steamer Tahiti two weeks ago in the South seas.

Up on the bridge deck of the Ventura the official welcoming was done. City officials praised the heroic deed of the liner's crew in riding for two days and two nights through practically uncharted waters in the South seas to the side of the Tahiti, and taking aboard her crew and passengers a few minutes before the Tahiti plunged down in one of the deepest spots in the Pacific.

Tomorrow the officers will be guests of the city. Their talks and the experiences of the survivors of the Tahiti will be broadcast from coast to coast by the National Broadcasting company.

Stunts of "Safety Planes" Thrill Air Race Spectators

Occupying a minor place on the program but of more profound interest to the lay spectator than the daredevil stunting and break-neck speed featured in the 1930 national air races, which closed yesterday at the Curtiss-Reynolds airport, was the performance of a half dozen "safety" craft.

Hovering, climbing steeply and slowly, landing short without rolling all over the lot, taking off shortly without taxiing great distances, maintaining lateral stability during flight and alighting without the use of a human control are feats outside the realm of the standard airplane.

But engineers who are working toward a safe flivver plane for the man on the street pin their faith to the implements which make such performances possible.

"Safety" Planes Shown.

In the relatively crude performance of the McDonnell doodle bug, the Greene "Guardian air" self-control plane, and the three autogyros, spectators at Curtiss field saw, perhaps, the beginning of the day when air flivvers will make flying as popular as motoring, and when housewives and business men will be able to take off from their front lawn and alight in a landing spot in Grant park within walking distance of State street shops and loop offices.

The chief accomplishment of the McDonnell ship, designed and built by J. S. McDonnell of Chicago, is its ability to land and take off, using less than 100 feet of run, and its steep climb.

Slow landing and slow flying are accomplished in the McDonnell plane by the use of a successful combination of wing slots installed on the forward edge of the wing and wide wing flaps attached to the trailing edge. Slots and flaps are not new developments, although aircraft designers have shown a reluctance to adopt them for general use.

Slots are used to prevent the deadly stall resulting from the loss of flying speed. The function of the slots is successfully demonstrated by McDonnell in his steep slow climb and his slow landings, which would be extremely dangerous for most ships.

The trailing flaps of his craft are let down on landing to provide a drag and thus decrease speed. A wide and substantial landing gear makes it possible for the ship to drop heavily without danger of damage or tipping over.

Through the race meet McDonnell demonstrated the qualities of his craft by landing and taking off in a 100 foot circle, and doing it expertly each time.

The self-control plane on the first day of the races landed in a cloud of dust far out on the field. The pilot's hands were off the controls when he landed.

Works for 20 Years.

Otto W. Greene is inventor of the "Guardian air" device which he has installed in a Stearman biplane. He has been working at this device for 20 years and only recently learned to fly in order to learn what final refinements were needed on the plane.

In its present stage the device controls the ailerons and elevator, leaving the pilot free to concentrate on his instruments when flying blind. It is actuated by the combined action of a vane, which "feels" the air ahead of the wings and a pendulum placed among complicated electrical contacts in a small box in the fuselage.

The Stearman installation has been tested by many mail pilots who express their faith in it as a means of safe blind flying. In demonstrations Greene has flown in clouds with his hands off the controls and done figure eights close to the ground in a manner to amaze veteran pilots.

"Better Than Human Control."

Greene says his device applies the exact proper bank for any turn made with the rudder; keeps the plane on an even keel in bumpy air much better than any human hand could control it; prevents stalls and spins and permits the plane to fly on even keel at the absolute stalling point.

Greene and other pilots have taken off and landed with their hands off the controls many times, although the main purpose is to enable safe flying under blind flying conditions.

Boy Fisher, 11, Falls Into Lake and Drowns

Toppling into the water when a fish seized the hook of his line yesterday, 11 year old Tony Walendziewicz, 3928 North Mozart street, was drowned off Navy pier. The central coast guard recovered the body.

CANADIAN GUARD SHOOTS WOMAN WHO TAUNTS HIM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DAUPHIN, Man., Sept. 1.—Taunted by American visitors, an officer of the Royal Canadian mounted police drew his six shooter and shot down a 26 year old woman on the picnic grounds in the Assiniboine valley, on the provincial boundary, 65 miles from here, today. The tragedy marred the celebration of the linking of the Manitoba and Saskatchewan highway system, which 6,000 attended.

Mrs. Sophie Light, wife of E. J. Light, president of the board of trade at Epwich, S. D., who was critically wounded with a bullet in her abdomen, said they had met the policeman, a tall, handsome young fellow from the Regina headquarters, as he was directing traffic and had given him a drink.

"We were just fooling around. He was standing by our car and we were kidding him along," the woman continued. "He was getting smart with us and pulled out his revolver. Then I said, 'You wouldn't shoot me, would you, big boy?' and he said, 'You'd be surprised what I'd do; I'm tough,' and I said, 'Aw, you're just kidding,' and laughed at him, and then he shot."

Lightning Strikes Flat Building on Austin Blvd.

Thundershowers broke over Chicago and areas to the north and northwest last night. Lightning struck the roof of an apartment building at 835 North Austin boulevard, shattering a brick chimney and tearing a hole in the roof, through which rain poured into the kitchen of Mr. and Mrs. Alex F. John. The Johns and five other families fled to the street, alarmed by the thunder clap. Cool and cloudy was the weather forecast for today and generally fair tomorrow.

EAST TO WEST FLIGHT OVER ATLANTIC MADE FOUR TIMES; MANY DIE

Capt. Coste's attempt to make a nonstop east to west flight across the Atlantic to New York calls to mind that only four flights of this kind in heavier than air machines have been successful, and only by making stops en route. Many of the flights have been fatal.

TO KEEP EYESIGHT

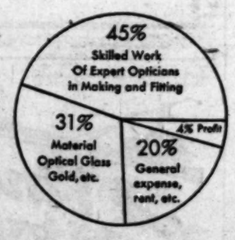
HOW THE DOLLAR SPENT FOR ALMER COE EYEGLASSES IS DIVIDED



NOTE: Largest item of cost is for expert, scientific making and fitting, without which one might better not have eyeglasses. The small profit is multiplied by large volume.

Eyeglasses must be made to very exacting, scientific standards—involving as in the Almer Coe Laboratories from 15 to 29 separate operations and no less than seven verifying tests for accuracy.

A MAN who would buy a suit of clothes for $7.50 would not necessarily be foolish. He could not, of course, expect much value—but he would be getting, at least, temporary covering for his body. He would not be endangering his health nor something just as vital—eyesight.

A man buys eyeglasses once in several years—and his eyesight depends upon them. They may help or injure his eyes—and his health as well.

To be safe, eyeglasses must be made with scientific accuracy, for each individual—a professional work involving high technical skill—a work, in which for almost half a century, Almer Coe & Company have been known for absolute dependability and responsibility.

DR. HORN TELLS HOW HE FOUND ANDREE'S BODY

Tin Can Was Clew to Arctic Discovery.

BY DR. GUNNAR HORN.

Chief of the Norwegian exploration expedition that found the bodies of Salomon August Andrée and his companions of the aeronautical polar expedition of 1897.

Given exclusively to the Associated Press and the Oslo Aftenposten, this is Dr. Horn's first authorized statement about the discovery of the Andree expedition's last camp on White Island, Fridtjof Nansen land. [Copyright, 1930, and all rights reserved in North and South America and Japan by the Associated Press.]

ABOARD MOTORSHIP BRATVAAG, SKJAER ISLAND, Norway, Sept. 1.—[By Wireless to the Associated Press.]—The Norwegian expedition to Franz Josef's land [now Fridtjof Nansen land] in the summer of 1930 was made with the motor sealer Bratvaag of Aalesund. The skipper was Peder Eliasen.

It was planned that the vessel should at the same time hunt whales, seals and ice bears.

We sailed from Aalesund July 29, and in marvelous weather we went northward along the coast to Tromsoe, where we arrived on the morning of July 30. That evening we continued our voyage and by the next morning we were well out at sea past Soroya island.

First Stop Is Hopen.

We made our course for Hopen, our first stopping place. We arrived there Aug. 2. From there we proceeded to King Karl's land [Spitzbergen] and arrived on Aug. 4 at Sable island, which is the most westerly part of King Karl's land.

Because of reports from a hunting expedition that had been north earlier this year, we knew that ice conditions were unusually favorable, and up to now we had not seen one floating iceberg.

Therefore we decided that en route to Franz Josef land we could visit the islands between Spitzbergen and Franz Josef's land, which usually are hard to reach. These are Stor island, White island and Victoria island.

Glimpse White Peak.

So we continued, and early on the morning of Aug. 5 we glimpsed a great island's white peak through the fog. We discovered that the map for this region is incorrect, as this island lies about 12 miles farther to the west than on the British admiralty map, and that the mapping done by the Worsley-Algarsson expedition in 1925 is quite correct.

We first landed on the southeast side of the island, where the coast is quite bare. After that we were on the northeast side, where there is a great expanse of bare flat land.

On the beach there is a pole that marks the spot where a depot was established by the Italians in 1928 for Nobile and Roald Amundsen. Besides this depot we erected a hut that we had with us.

Hut for Lost Explorers.

It is good to have a hut on this godforsaken place in case some ill-fated expedition should seek refuge there.

At 5 o'clock we weighed anchor and sailed eastward in ice free waters. At the outset we were followed by fog, but it soon disappeared, and then we caught sight of the big white peak on White island.

This island—Giles land, as it is also called—is known to be one of the most unapproachable islands in the whole of the Spitzbergen region, and here we were going full speed toward it in ice free waters.

We certainly were lucky, and our joy was great over the possibility of being able to land so easily at this rarely visited place. Little did we imagine then that our visit would lead to the final explanation of one of the most tragic and mysterious happenings in the history of polar exploration.

We came up under a bare flat land on the southwest side of the island. White island's position also is incorrectly marked on the maps, too far east.

It was quite still and there was a burning sun as we came to land. Very carefully Skipper Eliassen maneuvered his vessel in through innumerable projections of land.

The skipper dropper anchor and members of the expedition went ashore. These were the botanist, Olaf Hanssen; the zoologist, Adolf Sorensen, and myself as leader of the expedition. On our way into the beach we saw a school of walrus playing about in the sea, and the outlook for a good catch helped to put us in good humor.

We landed and were soon on our way inland across the naked island. On it were mountains of granite and gneiss. Between them were stretches of gravel and sand. Only a shallow little lake broke the tediousness of the landscape.

Ocean Like a Mirror.

Brown moss made a little spot of color here and there. Otherwise vegetation was very sparse. There were the usual polar flowers about. We worked throught the evening in the northwest part of the flat land and went on board again in the early morning.

On Aug. 6 we had the same marvelous weather, with brilliant sunshine and a cloudless sky. The ocean was like a mirror, and on many jutting peninsulas round about were stranded icebergs.

White island's great ice peak rose majestically from the low coast land; everywhere reigned an intense silence. Just once in a while we could hear the noise of ice breaking away from parent icebergs and splashing into the sea.

White Silence Everywhere.

In truth there was a great white silence everywhere, and it was impossible not to feel a little affected by such a deathlike stillness. The noise of the falling ice emphasized the depth of the silence.

In the morning the Bratvaag's two hunting boats, under the leadership of the shooters, Ole Myklebust and Severin Skjelten, went out to harpoon walruses. Ultimately Skjelten and the harpooners, Karl Tusvik, Olaf Salen, John Almestad, and Sigurd Mylkebust, went ashore to skin their catch.

Salen and Tusvik went to search for drinking water and discovered a little stream.

Find Boat in Snow.

Besides the stream they found a mound of snow that was rather dark and did not resemble the ordinary snow hill. They went over to it at once and saw a boat sticking up from the snow. In the boat they caught sight of the point of a boatswain's hook, with a name engraved on it. The two men at once ran back to Skjelten and told him about their find, showing him the hook.

On it was engraved "Andree's polar expedition, 1896." Skjelten, Almestad, and Myklebust then went to the mound, and in the boat they further found a book, which they took with them to the beach.

At this moment the Bratvaag's motorboat, with Skipper Eliassen and Assistant Mechanic Ekornassvaag aboard, arrived to help the hunters with their walrus catch. Eliassen was immediately informed about the discovery and he went on alone to investigate it further.

First Body Found.

Against the wall of a neighboring mountain he found a body leaning against the mountain slope with its feet half buried in snow. Eliassen realized at once that this must be the remains of the Andree expedition. He immediately returned to the Bratvaag, where I was. He showed me the book and I saw immediately that it was the Andree expedition's observation book, containing records of their sledge journey after they left the balloon.

We took different implements on board the motor boat, and then all the expedition's members went ashore to try as best we could to dig everything out and then transport it on board.

It was with strange feelings that we stood on the beach where the brave Andree and his men 33 years ago ended their last polar wandering. In deep silence we went up toward the camp, which only too plainly showed us what had happened.

There lay the boat half buried in snow, with its nose pointing inland. Alongside it lay a sledge. The top of the sledge was level with the ice. On the snow a few yards away was a piece of black and red cloth, with crude squares cut in for windows—perhaps a part of a tent.

And under the wall of the mountain was Andree himself.

We recognized him only by the monogram on his jacket. He was leaning against the mountain slope a few yards northeast of the boat. He had worn-out arctic shoes on his feet, but otherwise was well clothed.

Beside him lay a gun and an oil stove. There was oil in the stove, and when we pumped it, the oil came out in a fine spray and gas came out at a vent on the side. The apparatus was quite in good order.

In Andree's inner pocket was his diary, but only a few pages appeared to have been written on. We also found in his pocket his pencil and a pedometer.

Between two mounds of earth a short distance away from Andree's body we found a little later another member of the expedition, who apparently had been laid there by one of the others.

The body was half covered with small stones. It was "frozen down" and very hard to get up.

We also found in the boat some remains of bones, but we have not been able to decide whether they are human bones. Some other articles were found at different places in the camp and carefully gathered up.

Find Expedition's Equipment.

Upon examining the boat closer we found many different things. These were the expedition's equipment of all kinds. There were articles of clothing, such as stockings and handkerchiefs, an instrument for measuring the velocity of the wind, photographic apparatus, shotguns, a theodolite, sewing articles, a hammer and an ax, and a bag containing navigation books and other things.

On two of the handkerchiefs was found the monogram "N. S." [Nils Strindberg].

After we got the dead loose and transported down to the beach we began the difficult job of getting the boat free from the ice. It lay slightly on its side so that the right side was quite buried. The other side protruded and was half destroyed.

Fight to Free Boat.

During the digging it became evident that the boat was resting on another sledge, to which it was well bound. It had four cigar shaped pillars as foundation. To get the whole thing loose we first had to move the boat and then the sledge.

This sledge, as well as the other one, had metal runners. When we got everything free we began to transport our find the 150 yards down to the beach.

The ice filled boat soon became too heavy, and its canvas covering was torn to pieces. Therefore we put five oars under the boat and, with five men on each side, we tried to carry it.

But this method also proved ineffectual. One of the oars broke. It was not until we have removed more ice from inside that we managed to make progress. Then we went carefully toward the beach with what in more than one sense was a heavy burden.

Leaves Note for Future.

Before we left the spot we built a cairn, surmounted by a pole, on a hill just behind our camp. It is easy to see and will make it possible for future visitors to find the place without trouble.

In the cairn we put a bottle with a note written in Norwegian and English. The note said that it was here that the Norwegian "Franz Josef land expedition" found the remains of the Swedish Andree expedition.

Everything that had been brought down to the beach was then carried on board one of our walrus hunting boats. The boat became so heavily loaded that it was only a few inches above water level.

The boat was then towed by my motor boat and an hour later we reached the Bratvaag.

End 24 Hours of Labor.

We put Andree's boat on one of the boat decks, and thus after 24 hours of labor our work was finally finished.

As soon as the find was made, our walrus hunt was stopped and digging hastily begun. It is therefore possible that the work was not done so scrupulously and neatly as might have been desired. But taking conditions into consideration, I can say that everything was done that could possibly be to get the work performed thoroughly and conscientiously.

Added to this difficulty about weather was the fact that the greater part of our find was buried in the ice, which, of course, rendered digging up fragile articles or pieces of cloth impossible.

Camp Plundered by Bears.

The camp had been very much plundered by bears. They certainly had destroyed many objects of value. Many articles also were probably blown away by the wind and are now lying buried under the snow some distance away.

The camp lay beside a big mound of snow, and it is very possible that under this many of the expedition's belongings can still be found, while we were there however, it would have taken too much work to remove all the snow and ice.

On a visit later in the year possibly so much of the ice would be melted that the work would be easier.

It was only after our attention had been called to a tin can on the beach that we began to look around and caught sight of the camp. No cairn or hut had been put up, and if the snow had been only a few feet higher the whole thing would have been covered without a trace.

This summer there has been very little snow in those regions. There is reason to believe that the camp during many summers has been quite buried under snow.

Even if one had examined the land very carefully, he might well have walked right over the camp without seeing anything.

Died of Exhaustion.

As it was, it looked as though the boat had been drawn up from the beach. And as the camp lay in the eastern part of this naked island there is reason to believe that the members of the expedition came to White island on its north side and from there went down along the east coast until they came to bare clear land.

After a heavy march over the ice from 83 degrees north, they certainly could not have had very much strength left. They probably died of exhaustion, especially since at the time of the year when they came to the island, sometime in September, when it is quite cold.

The reason why they did not go toward northeast land [the northeasternmost part of the Spitzbergen group from which Andree set out], which would perhaps have been just as short as the trip to White island, might have been because they were continually forced eastward by open water and many openings in the ice.

Pictures Fight for Life.

When thin ice began to form at the beginning of August they would not have been able to go out in their miserable canvas boat for fear of ripping its covering. When they first caught sight of White island's tall white peak, they must have been filled with new courage, and by summoning all their strength sought land.

We can imagine their joy when they came to the island and finally felt firm ground underfoot instead of the terrifying driving ice they had been encountering. But they were never to come any further than this. Exhaustion and cold took them. They surely fought and strove, courageous and brave to the very last as true sons of the land that mothered them.

SKELETONS AND CAMP KIT BARE ANDREE'S STORY

canvas cover and fender for the boat. All had been preserved carefully by the finders.

Andree's boat and two sledges stood tonight upon the bridge of the Bratvaag. On all three are these words, branded with a hot iron:

"Andree Polar Expedition, 1896."

Diary Written in Pencil.

I asked Dr. Horn if he thought Andree had written in his dairy until the last day.

"Well, that's what we all are asking about, but that can only be answered when the details are known."

Andree's navagation book appears to have been kept extremely well. Horn has put pieces of paper between the leaves in order to preserve the pencil and Dr. Horn said it was easy to read from beginning to end and explains many things.

Pressed for further information, Dr. Horn hesitated and then said:

"I cannot divulge it. That is for others to do. I may say that the navagation book does not go up to the final day."

Guards Record Zealously.

Dr. Horn expressed the hope that the diary would prove complete to the final day and will explain the whole mystery. He has kept these two books locked in a drawer in his cabin and guarded them carefully.

The explorer reached over and picked up the lead pencil which he had found in Andree's pocket. The wood was swollen and broken apart. Dr. Horn had tied it together with string.

I also had a chat with Skipper Eliassen of the Bratvaag.

"It has been a successful trip," he said, "but it went hard on the nerves when we found the bodies. This is the most remarkable trip I've made in my 19 years in the arctic. We made a coffin of unplaned boards in the way we fashion them in the polar regions. The coffin is six by seven feet. It contains the remains sewed in canvas.

IDENTIFIES HEADLESS REMAINS OF ANDREE BY "A" ON JACKET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OSLO, Norway.—Dr. Gunner Horn, chief of the Norwegian exploration party which found the bodies of the polar explorer, Salomon August Andree, and his companions, left Skjaer island this morning for Tromsoe aboard the sealer Braatvag with remains of the aeronauts.

Andree's body, found at a mountainside, was headless, Dr. Horn told newspaper men, but said his body was identified by the monogram "A" on his polar jacket. It was reported tonight that Swedish newspapers are rushing another expedition to White island to find further relics of the ill fated expedition.

The dead explorer's log book revealed that Andree and his companions had marched across pack ice, dragging sledges and canvas boats behind them, for about 300 miles. The log book contains mostly statements concerning positions and provisions, with notations emphasizing faults made in planning the expedition.

Suffered Searing Acid Stomach For 15 Years

NEW FORMULA ACIDINE ENDS IT

That has been the delightful experience of Mr. C. M. Reade of Merchantville, New Jersey, who says "After 15 years of stomach trouble caused by acid that just seared, without any relief whatever, I was about despairing of any relief. Then I began taking Acidine. From the first dose about three weeks ago, I have enjoyed my old health back again. I have a smile on my face now-a-days." When you are tormented almost constantly with burning, gnawing indigestion and gas, why fool with things which at best give only partial relief? Marvelous new formula Acidine banishes burning acid stomach, pain before or after eating, belching, gas, bloat, heartburn for millions. Physicians are prescribing it as the best thing they know for acid indigestion and dyspepsia. Remember, this new Acidine is entirely different from other remedies. Contains an effective digestant, Japtase, one grain of which promptly liquefies 800 times its own weight of starchy foods under proper conditions. Five other scientific ingredients relieve burning acid, stop gas formation and soothe irritated stomach lining. This wonderful scientific combination quickly relieves acid stomach trouble. Get Acidine today. Watch pain and gas stop. Eat, drink, and smoke what you want. Relieve resulting acidity with Acidine. Results guaranteed or money back. Get Acidine at your druggist or write Health Laboratories, Inc., Pittsburgh, Pa.

LINGLE SUSPECT, IN HIDING SINCE KILLING, CAUGHT

Izzy Alderman, Pal of Moran, Seized.

Israel Alderman, a gunman for the Moran-Zuta-Aiello gang and said to be wanted for questioning in the murder of Alfred J. Lingle, was arrested last night by Lieut. Frank Johnson of the detective bureau in a restaurant at Racine and Leland avenues.

HAROLD DENMAN. Gang gun suspect.

In hiding since June 9, the day of the killing, Alderman is reported to have acted as Frank Foster's liason man here after Foster fled to Los Angeles and to have communicated with him by code. He is believed to have sent to Foster four letters from the Donmoor apartment hotel, 921 Eastwood avenue, each of which contained a $100 bill. These mystified the investigators, because they contained neither message nor writing of any kind.

Companion Also Taken.

Alderman was sitting at the restaurant counter with a man who said he was Joe Condi, 35 years old, a tailor of 1039 Leland avenue. The records disclose a Joe Condi was arrested in Kansas City on June 11, two days after the Lingle murder, and held for investigation.

Lieut. Johnson, pasing by, peered in the window and recognized Alderman. He waited in a doorway. When the two emerged, he stepped up and said:

"Hello, Izzy."

Alderman ducked, apparently in fear.

"When did you get back to town?" asked Johnson, introducing himself.

"I never went away," said Alderman. "I've been in a hole."

Alderman and Condi were taken to the detective bureau, and Chief of Detectives John Norton was notified. He is expected to surrender Alderman today to Chief Investigator Pat Roche of the state's attorney's office.

Friend of Bugs Moran.

Next to Willie Marks, Alderman was regarded as Bugs Moran's closest friend, prior to the breakup of the gang with the defection of Foster and Ted Newberry. He is supposed to have gone with them when they deserted the Capone mob.

A year and a half ago Alderman and Foster were seized on the street, and both were carrying a pair of .45 automatics. Four years ago, when the police were seeking the late Eugene [Red] McLaughlin for a jewelry robbery, Alderman was arrested in a room of the Webster hotel with four sawed off shotguns and two Thompson sub machine guns.

Detective bureau records show Alderman was indicted Oct. 19, 1925, in New York City for the murder of a jeweler in a $25,000 holdup. He was arrested here, but the New York authorities were unable to extradite him.

DENMAN IS HUNTED

Harold A. Denman, former Chicago and county highway policeman, a son of Maj. Albert Denman, once chief of the county police, was being sought by the police last night upon the orders of Coroner Bundesen.

The coroner acted upon information that Denman had acted as the procurer of pistols, shotguns, and machine guns for notorious gangsters, and that he had supplied the weapon with which Jack Zuta, vice lord, was slain.

The trail to Denman was picked up through a painstaking investigation by Coroner Bundesen's office of weapons and bullets figuring in the Zuta and other killings, and it now appears, according to the coroner, that Zuta was killed by Ted Newberry, formerly one of Zuta's lieutenants.

Newberry, it was learned, some time ago broke away from the Zuta clan, and joined the forces of Scarface Al Capone. The coroner's ballistic findings, it was said, demonstrated that a weapon used in an attempt to kill Zuta, and the one with which he was killed, were both furnished by the Capone gang.

The first clew in the coroner's search was obtained from a Colt automatic pistol taken from Sam Hunt, a known Capone gangster. Another revolver figuring in the network of evidence was the one hurled to State street by gangsters who tried to kill Zuta last July 1. Both these weapons, it was found by the coroner, were sold by the Colt company to a Chicago sporting goods house, which in turn reported selling the weapons, with some thirty others, to the "Gary Mail Order House."

Receipts Are Traced.

Further inquiry revealed that a man known as "H. A. Darling" had signed the express receipts for the weapons, and Darling, the coroner was informed by the Gary police, is Harold A. Denman. The police located a cottage at Miller Beach, in which Denman lived. Although relatives of Denman's wife, living in the cottage now, denied that he had been selling guns to gangsters, the occupants of neighboring cottages asserted that Denman often was visited by gangsters, and that Ted Newberry was a frequent caller.

This information, coupled with other reports that pictures of Newberry have been identified by residents of Waukesha, Wis., as of one of the men who joined in the murder of Zuta at Delafield, led the coroner to believe that the proof of Newberry's guilt was definitely established. It was also pointed out that the .38 caliber steel jacketed bullet removed from Zuta's skull after his murder was of a peculiar type, used almost exclusively in the kind of weapons which were sold in the shipment traced to Denman.

At the Denman cottage relatives of Mrs. Denman said that Denman had left this part of the country. Gary police said that Mrs. Denman is living in Chicago, where she is hunting employment.

Maj. Denman, in his home in Los Angeles last night, said his son visited him three weeks ago and that he was now in Las Vegas, Nev. Maj. Denman said he would try to get in touch with his son and advise him to return to Chicago and face the charges.

CHIEF JUSTICE McGOORTY WILL SPEED UP TRIALS

New Criminal Court Head Announces Policy.

Speedy punishment for criminals is to be the keynote of the administration of Judge John P. McGoorty, who was inducted yesterday into the office of chief justice of the Criminal court. Imprisonment has not the proper deterrent effect on others contemplating crime unless it is administered as soon as possible after the commission of the crime, the new chief justice said.

The present unemployment situation is expected to increase crime this winter, and sure and speedy justice is the only way to curtail the expected crime wave, said State's Attorney John A. Swanson in offering the coöperation of his office to the plan outlined by the new chief justice. The prosecutor acted as master of ceremonies at the inauguration ceremony.

Drive on Gun Toters.

Judge McGoorty at the same time announced that he would continue the drive against gangland gun toters. When acting chief justice for two weeks last fall, Judge McGoorty ordered the grand jury to indict gun toters, and such well known gangsters as Jack [Machine Gun] McGurn and Anthony [Red] Kissane were convicted and sentenced to the maximum term of one year in the bridewell.

"I will order the state's attorney and the police to bring all well known criminals caught with firearms into the Criminal court," said Judge McGoorty. "The minor cases can and should be disposed of in the Municipal courts. If we can civict a few more of the headliners of gangland such as we did this past year it certainly should help in putting an end to the practice of gun toting."

New Ruling Is Helpful.

Judge McGoorty said he expects the recent decision rendered by the Supreme court, which gives a defendant in a felony case the right to waive jury trial to speed up the disposition of criminal cases. The decision was rendered in a test case brought about by Judge Harry Fisher and State's Attorney Swanson.

"Judges should be able to try twice as many cases as before as a result of this decision," said Judge McGoorty. "I hope this will result in bringing about a speedy determination of every indictment returned by the grand jury.

"Punishment of crime must be sure and swift if it is to act as a deterrent to others," said the judge. "I will strive during my administration to prevent any undue delays of criminal trials. The criminals should be punished while the crime is still remembered and not after it is forgotten. This will be my motto."

Foster Case on Docket.

Among the important cases which will have to be disposed of under Judge McGoorty's régime are those of the indicted sanitary district trustees and Frank Foster, charged with the murder of Alfred Lingle.

State's Attorney Swanson opened the inauguration ceremony by expressing his personal satisfaction at the selection of Judge McGoorty as chief justice. He also said that the community was lucky in having such an experienced judge at the helm of the judicial machinery at such a critical time.

NO BIG LAYOFFS; FEW WAGE CUTS; DAVIS REJOICES

It's New Attitude Toward Slumps, He Says.

Clearfield, Pa., Sept. 1.—(AP)—The present depression is the first business slackness in the United States in which it was deliberately sought to offset its effects by keeping workers as fully employed as possible and without the old time policy of general reduction of wages. Secretary of Labor James J. Davis said today at the Labor day celebration at the Clearfield county fair and homecoming.

"On this Labor day," he said, "we may congratulate ourselves because of the spirit of cooperation that generally prevails between American employers and workers during one of the trying times in our economic history.

"The old sweeping layoffs and wage slashes have not been resorted to in this period of depression.

Serious Results Averted.

"The leading employers and the leaders of labor called into conference by President Hoover agreed to maintain employment and to institute no new wage demands. It was a mighty effort at stabilization and while it did not stave off some measure of the depression, it did prevent the country from hitting the bottom, as in every instance before. In due time, this application of wisdom and effort must bring a return to normal conditions. But until that occurs, we must exercise patience, we must share each others burdens and we must pull together for the common end."

"No man has faced down more discouraging circumstances than those confronting the President," said the secretary. In the long run the very difficulties he has had to face will win him the support of the country. The nation also sympathizes with the farmers themselves, who, on top of a state of world affairs which has shrunk their markets, have now to bear heavy losses through ruin of this year's crops."

Green Suggests Remedies.

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 1.—(AP)—In an address at the state fair here today William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said:

"Those who manage and own industry, those who control and administer the affairs of government, and those who work and are represented by men of their own choosing will be well nigh guilty of moral and criminal negligence if they permit society to be intermittently exposed to the deadening and destroying effects of cyclical periods of unemployment."

The labor leader urged establishment of a secured annual wage earners' income as a guard against poverty and suffering during such periods.

Declaring the celebration of Labor day without attention to "the overshadowing problem of unemployment" was impossible, Mr. Green said industry was partly idle because the consuming market could not absorb mass-production.

No Program of Prevention.

He said that no serious effort had been made to deal with the problem of technological unemployment or to extend assistance to the victims of mechanical displacement and that only by meeting this problem could the nation hope to maintain every human being as a consuming unit.

"The whole question must be considered as a grave social and economic problem which affects the stability of the government and the maintenance of peace and order," he said. "The security and permanency of our republic depend very largely upon our ability to abolish unemployment, to reduce poverty to a minimum, and to establish an economic balance between the forces of production and consumption."

Says Labor Is on Defensive.

Houston, Tex., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Labor is more upon the defensive than at any time during the last decade, Charles P. Howard of Indianapolis, president of the International Typographical union, declared here today.

"Organized workers recently have been confronted with demands for wage and hour reduction, and have suffered from unemployment," he explained.

"During the last year the unorganized worker has suffered greatly from the application of the moth-eaten industrial philosophy that wage reduction and increased hours will return prosperity. These workers must depend for protection upon the conscience of their employers and business has no conscience.

"Men now observe that business prosperity is inseparable from the purchasing power of the masses. The opportunity to sell depends upon the ability of the workers to buy and the ability of the workers to buy depends upon the employment and wages.

"Outstanding industrialists have declared that reducing wages depriving workers of employment is not a remedy for business depression."

Predicts Old Age Pensions.

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, tonight predicted that old age pensions are inevitable and that social and economic forces are driving industry toward the five day week.

Speaking under the auspices of the Baltimore federation at a Glen Arm labor meeting, Morrison gave a summary of present day conditions, including the drift to the cities and mechanization of industry, and said it was "an additional reason why labor's demand for shorter hours, higher wages, abolition of child labor, old age pensions, and other demands should be approved."

60 OVERCOME BY 102° HEAT IN WASHINGTON AS FIREMEN PARADE

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—With the thermometer in the kiosk on Pennsylvania avenue registering 102 degrees scores of persons were overcome by the heat as they watched the annual firemen's parade pass down the historic thoroughfare today. At times the sirens of the visiting apparatus were silenced so that the traffic would give way to ambulances and private automobiles conveying the victims to hospitals.

The parade continued for two and one-half hours, and before it ended sixty persons had already been treated. Some of them were firemen who took part in the spectacle.

The heat exceeded that of yesterday when the highest was 101 at 3 p. m. Today the instrument registered 102 shortly after noon and continued at that figure until after 4 p. m.

Snow and Cold Moving East.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 1.—(AP)—A northwest wind, which has brought snow and freezing weather to the northwest tonight carried promise of an end to summer temperatures in the middle west. In Wyoming the mercury has dropped below freezing, Yellowstone national park reporting 26 degrees above zero. Montana reported snow and frost. Snow fell at Butte, Boulder, Drummond, Great Falls, and Anaconda. The cold made itself felt today in western Kansas.

LABOR UNIONS OF BRITAIN PUT O. K. ON CAPITALISM

Warned Destruction May Result in Chaos.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 1.—Many time honored Socialist doctrines went up in smoke at Nottingham today when President John Beard of the trades union congress opened the sixty-second annual meeting of that body with an address which brought a prolonged uproar of cries of "shame" before it was accepted by the delegates.

President Beard surprised the large block of radicals by stating bluntly that destruction of the capitalistic system as unsafe, as "socialism in our time" is rapidly becoming nothing more than a political catch phrase. He ripped into the rebellious left winge, as for crossing the path of the Labor prime minister, Ramsay MacDonald, and branded the iron clad doctrine of free trade, such as that of Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Snowden, a fetish.

Not Appalled by Unemployment.

What rankled the delegates worst was Mr. Beard's statement that he was not appalled by the mounting figures of unemployed in Great Britain, which have now passed the 2,000,000 mark. The turbulent delegates attempted to draw a repudiation of this statement before the address was adopted, but failed.

For the first time the labor unions will have an opportunity to gauge the results of a Labor government. Government measures will be taken up before the week is out, but Mr. Beard leveled the boat this morning by solidly coming out in support of the prime minister and his efforts to aid the members of the unions.

He blamed the higher unemployment figures which have almost doubled during Mr. MacDonald's régime, partly on improved registration methods and partly on the increased productivity of man power.

Backs Capitalistic System.

"We might end capitalistic production, and if glib talk would do it it would surely end in a year or two," Mr. Beard asserted. "But if it did, I am not certain at this moment that there is any kind of organization of society capable of working out the change without a tremendous dislocation of the social and economic life of the nation. I make this statement advisedly and reply to those who desire to be serious in regard to 'socialism in our time.'"

In reviewing the Socialist doctrines of equalized labor, he demanded:

"Can socialism be based upon these principles which have come in our time? Is there any evidence that there is a desire for them even in the labor movement? I want to say emphatically that there is not."

Brookhart Urges More Jobs at Labor Day Celebration

More than 35,000 persons attended the all day Labor day celebration at Soldiers' field yesterday, while Chicago's business district was closed to observe the day which has been set aside for the recognition of labor.

Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa was an unexpected guest at the celebration. Called to the speakers' stand, he said:

"In times of depression, capital, to preserve itself, puts the burden upon labor by discharging men and cutting pay rolls. But capital is not so important as humanity. Some method must be worked out by which the laborer must be preserved in his job. It is not so important to preserve capital, which is merely accumulated wealth."

Cites Farm Troubles.

Senator Brookhart called agricultural troubles the nation's chief burden. The average farmer's income now is $700 a year, he said, which destroys him as a potential buyer.

Senator Brookhart said he was supporting the Shipstead bill to do away with the use of injunctions in labor disputes.

The Labor day speech by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, delivered in Syracuse, N. Y., was relayed to the Soldier's field crowd over radio station WCFL. The speech of Frank Morrison, secretary of the federation, was to be broadcast over the National Broadcasting company and WCFL on a short wave length from 9 to 9:30 o'clock last night.

Coroner Herman Bundesen also spoke briefly to the crowds in the afternoon.

Throngs Gather Early.

Crowds began forming on the field before 9 o'clock, when the finals of the Chicago Playgrounds council track and field meet began. One thousand children participated in the meet. A parade of floats representing individual crafts and trades unions preceded the speaking.

The Rev. Father J. W. R. Maguire of St. Viator's college said that the principal reason for unemployment was the lack of intelligent control of production. High pressure salesmanship is relied upon, he said, rather than department of commerce information concerning the potential total market.

"Actually, there is no such thing as overproduction," he said. "The fault is in bad distribution and the fact that a too great consumptive power is in the hands of a few, and not enough in the hands of the many."

As remedies for the situation Father Maguire suggested shorter working days and shorter working weeks to provide employment for a greater number; higher wages, to increase the general consumptive power, and establishment of federal employment bureaus.

John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, also spoke, citing what he called the "political myth of Hoover prosperity."

Labor day attendance at The Tribune Tower was 1,213. Last year's Labor day attendance was 1,598; that of 1928, 1,693. More persons visit the tower on Labor day than on any other day of the year.

TOLEDOAN MADE ARCHBISHOP OF MILWAUKEE SEE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 1.—Pope Pius this afternoon nominated Bishop Samuel Alphonsus Stritch of Toledo as archbishop of Milwaukee, succeeding the late Archbishop Sebastian G. Messmer. By this nomination Bishop Stritch, who reached his forty-third birthday two weeks ago, becomes one of the youngest archbishops in the Catholic church.

He is well known in Rome, where he studied in the American college, obtaining the doctor of philosophy and doctor of sacred theology degrees. He was ordained as a priest here.

Count Morner to Marry Niece of Late Clyde Fitch

New York, Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Geraldine [Gerry] Fitch, newspaper woman, was assigned by her city editor eight months ago to interview Count Costa Morner, Swedish artist and diplomat, on his arrival here. To day came the announcement that they are shortly to be married. Morner, who is 33 years old, is one of Peggy Joyce's ex-husbands. He is listed in the almanack de Gotha as the eldest son of the late Count Birger Morner, Swedish diplomat and author. Miss Fitch is the daughter of the late William Sherman Fitch, New York lawyer, and a niece of the late Clyde Fitch, playwright.

5 KILLED AND 250 HURT AS JOBLESS RIOT IN HUNGARY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUDAPEST, Sept. 1.—Five were killed and 250 were injured today when a Socialist demonstration against unemployment turned into a riot which lasted for four hours in the central park here. The police blamed communist agitators for stirring the manifestation to violence.

The battle raged from 11 a. m. until 3 p. m. and order was only restored after the police were reinforced by heavily armed military forces. Most of the injured were among the demonstrators. Property damage was estimated at $500,000.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

U. S. DEPORTS 78 CHICAGO ALIENS ON ARMED TRAIN

Criminals Among Expelled Undesirables.

A trainload of 156 aliens, 78 of them from the Chicago district, were on their way yesterday to New York and Ellis island, whence they will be deported to European countries. The foreign undesirables left Chicago on a special train of seven heavily armed and barred coaches, which started from Seattle.

The deportation is part of the campaign of federal immigration authorities to rid the country of undesirables who are here illegally. The Chicago contingent was the largest in several months. A transcontinental train moves through here with deportees every five or six weeks.

Delays Deportation.

Last-minute habeas corpus proceedings held up the expulsion of a Chicago gunman and pander, Giuseppe Tuchillo, whose counsel sought a writ from Federal Judge Alschuler of the Appellate court. The case was continued two weeks.

Tuchillo was arrested by police for carrying a gun. Immigration inspectors found that he had once been deported to Italy because of his record as a pander, and that he had reëntered this country illegally.

Two of the Chicago deportees had just been released from Joliet prison. Fred Fogo had served a term for robbery and Carl Sunesen for rape. About fifty of the deportees were expelled for illegal entry, having been smuggled into the country. A few were petty criminals and ten were insane. Care of the average insane person costs about $10,000 during his lifetime, according to Shirley D. Smith, director of immigration.

400 Deported Since Jan. 1.

Expulsions from the Chicago district are steadily increasing, Mr. Smith said. More than 400 have been deported since Jan. 1 and 700 were expelled during the fiscal year ended June 30, as against 450 for the previous year.

Most of the aliens on the last shipment were from southern and central European countries, with Czecho-Slovakia, Jugo-Slavia, and Italy in the lead. Poland was well represented

MARSHALL FIELDS ESCAPE INJURY IN RAILROAD CRASH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 1.—Marshall Field III. and his bride of a fortnight had a narrow escape on returning from their honeymoon trip to Scotland early this morning when a double engined express from Glasgow plowed into the buffers at Euston station while racing to make up for lost time. The train was unable to stop at the platform and struck the buffers with terrific force. Two of the cars telescoped. The Fields were shaken up. Thirty of the passengers were treated in a hospital. Lord Rothermere was another passenger on the train who escaped injury.

REVEAL SETBACK TO CAPONE PLOT TO SEIZE UNIONS

Defeated in Attack on Building Trades

Civic agencies combating the ambition of Al Capone and Red Barker to racketeer their way into control of Chicago's labor unions revealed yesterday that a setback had been administered the Capone-Barker plan to control the building industry of the city. As reported by investigators, the story is as follows:

Capone had his eye on the construction that must precede the 1933 World's Fair. He and Barker had made inroads on numerous unions, mainly of branches of the teamsters' and chauffeurs' union, and had a foothold in the plumbers' organization.

Carrazzo a Candidate.

The plan was to make Mike Carrazzo business agent of the street sweepers, ash and garbage haulers, license inspectors and other unions, as vice president of the Building Trades council. The president, Patrick F. Sullivan, is a candidate for public office this fall and if elected Carrazzo would succeed him in his labor office. That would make Capone the power behind the throne of all building union activities.

The occasion was the recent election of a successor to Samuel P. Luzzo as vice president of the council. Luzzo is president of the hod carriers' and building laborers' council, which has a membership of 25,000. He was a member of the boxing commission under Gov. Small.

Overtures were made in behalf of Carrazzo on the ground that an Italian should succeed an Italian. Tony D'Andrea, son of the former labor leader and politician of that name who was killed ten years ago in the beginning of the feud in the 19th ward, acted as go-between.

Racketeers Are Beaten.

Capone and Barker had learned the sure way of electing their men to union offices: to have a sufficient number of gunmen supervise the voting. In order to forestall the Capone-Barker coup the foes of the racketeers used the strategy of advancing the date of election two weeks. As a result Martin Durkin, assistant business agent of the steamfitters' union, was chosen for the place coveted by Capone for Carrazzo.

Capone had been advised not to attempt to "take" the building trades. But he had a glimpse of riches that make his bootleg and gambling profits seem small by comparison and he sent his men into the fray, only to be checkmated.

The selection of Durkin was an additional blow as the plumbers and steamfitters have been at odds over which shall be designated in a future city ordinance as inspectors of electric refrigeration and Capone's power was reputed to be back of the plumbers.

Capone Enters City Hall.

As a means of aiding his various rackets through city influence Capone had sent his man, Danny Stanton, into the city hall to work his way into control of the city hall clerks' union. Stanton was a south side beer runner at one time affiliated with Joe Saltis' gang, but after his friends had been killed off one by one Stanton joined Capone's army of 500 gunmen. Now Stanton is pushing aside James Flynn, head of the city hall clerks' union. He has planted himself in the offices at 130 North Wells street.

The business men of the city have appealed to the crime commission, the Employers' association, the "Secret Six" of the Association of Commerce, and the Better Business bureau, to call a halt on the racketeering of legitimate unions. They say they are ready to deal in an honest, businesslike way with decent union officials, but they are protesting against having the name of Capone or Barker mentioned with a threat of death or bombing over any disputed matter.

Headquarters Under Guard.

A report has been made by investigators on Capone's headquarters at the Lexington hotel, 22d street and Michigan avenue. Capone henchmen have the third floor. Day and night the lobby is guarded. All day two men watch the entrance from Block's restaurant on 22d street and another watches the Michigan avenue entrance, with a full view of the elevator and stairway and mezzanine floor. They make it their business to know the identity of any who get above the first floor.

Formerly the Capone headquarters was at the Metropole hotel at 23d street and Michigan avenue. Frank Nitti, sometimes called "the Enforcer," had to see and question every one who wished to see Capone. Boss Capone held forth in an inner office and callers had to pass through three or four rooms with several inspections and "friskings" for guns, to reach the gang chief.

"Capone is a great organizer, but he should stick to his bootlegging," said one of the civic agency representatives.

U. S. STARTS KEEPING A CRIME CATALOGUE; IT'S NO LIGHT TASK

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—(AP)—The justice department today assumed the gigantic task of collecting crime statistics from all parts of the nation and maintaining an accurate and up-to-the-minute index of underworld activity.

With the approval of congress it took over a project inaugurated three years ago and carried on since that time by the international association of chiefs of police, assisted by the Rockefeller foundation.

The new division of criminal statistics is under the supervision of J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the bureau of investigation. The coöperation of police officials in the larger cities has been secured and a uniform plan of submitting crime reports adopted.

From more than 1,000 cities, these reports will go to the department at regular intervals, to be classified and indexed each month. The department plans to make public a résumé of the data received.

missary, rented by the Chris-Craft Motorboat corporation, four fishing boats and two autos had been destroyed. The factory, warehouse, and display rooms of the candy company were in a state of ruin, the latter damage mounting well over half a million dollars, according to estimate. Nothing but the walls of the commissary were standing and the district was littered with débris.

As the Graeme Stewart steamed into the slip her crew reported that from the light of the flames they saw a huge black cat dash from the commissary, plunge into the slip in a yowling arc, swim across in record time, and climb a piling on the opposite side. When last seen it was headed for the loop.

40 Elevated Cars Burn.

Forty elevated cars, valued at $400,000, used on the Douglas Park branch of the Chicago Rapid Transit lines, were destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon in the switchyards at 55th avenue and 19th street, Cicero.

Adam Weinicke, watchman, turned in the alarm, when he saw flames spurting from a coach coupled in a string of cars in the center of twelve tracks. By the time the three Cicero fire companies arrived all the wooden coaches nearby were in flames. Under the direction of Fire Chief William Hahn, twenty coaches on other tracks were saved. Nobody was injured.

Fire Chief Hahn said he belived a short circuit caused the blaze.

AUTO GAS KILLS MERCHANT.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Rollin N. Lee, local furniture dealer, was found dead in his garage, the victim of carbon monoxide gas from the motor of his car upon which he was working. He was 52 years of age.

Used Ox Cart 85 Years Ago; This Time Airplane

New York, Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Mrs. Anna Smith, who started traveling on Long Island at a velocity of two miles an hour 85 years ago in an ox cart, was taken in her grandnephew's biplane for her first ride in the air today from Roosevelt field.

Shoots Wife in Quarrel Over Cranking Flivver

Mr. and Mrs. John Bandara of 649 West 24th place engaged in an argument yesterday as they were preparing to leave their home as to who should crank the family flivver. It ended when Bandara drew a revolver and shot his wife in the shoulder. She is at the county hospital and will recover.

Russia Builds Its First Dirigible; Thrills Moscow

MOSCOW, Sept. 1.—(AP)—The soviet government launched a dirigible balloon today, the first ever built in Russia. Its completion was timed with preparations for receiving the Graf Zeppelin here shortly. The airship, which really is a blimp with a capacity of 2,500 cubic meters, cruised over Moscow to the astonishment of many thousand people who never before had seen a similar craft.

6 BALLOONS OFF IN BENNETT RACE FROM CLEVELAND

Five Bags Are Traveling Easterly Route.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Trace of their progress obscured by a hazy night, six balloons competing in the eighteenth international Gordon Bennett balloon race were believed floating a few miles west of the Ohio-Pennsylvania line, near or over Lake Erie, at midnight tonight. Residents of Erie, Pa., reported seeing two of the balloons heading over Lake Erie.

The coast guard at Ashtabula harbor, about 70 miles east of Cleveland airport, where the race started soon after 5 p. m., were constantly scanning the skies but reported no sight of them.

The last definite reports before the haze closed in at dusk came from Geneva, where it was said three balloons were seen, floating eastward north of the city, which is four miles south of the lake. That was at 8:30 p. m.

Discount Trouble Report.

These were believed to be the City of Detroit, the City of Cleveland, and the Belgian entry, Belgica. A little earlier the other three racers, Goodyear VIII., the French Pierre Fishbach, and the German Barmen, were sighted over East Cleveland, about thirty-five miles from the starting point.

Coast guard officials and members of the balloon race committee discounted reports that a balloon had been seen to fall into Lake Erie off Sheffield village, west of Cleveland. Coast guard boats were sent in search but found no trace of the balloon.

Weather bureau officials revealed the possibility of balloons traveling as fast as fifty miles an hour if they ascended to a height of 13,000 feet.

List of Entrants.

The balloons, their number, nationality, pilot and aid, color, and time of take-off follow:

1—City of Detroit, American, Edmond J. Hill, pilot; Arthur G. Schlosser, aid; silver gray; 5:04 p. m.

G. O. P. NOMINEES AT PICNIC HEAR HARMONY PLEDGE

Republican candidates for county and city offices gathered yesterday in Riverview park at a picnic arranged by Ald. Arthur F. Albert and Reviewer Edward R. Litsinger. James A. Kearns, clerk of the Municipal court, forecast party harmony in the November election and Ald. Albert, as chairman, bespoke the votes of his friend for Otto F. Reich, nominee for the president of the county board. Albert was defeated for that nomination but was nominated for county commissioner.

Carlos Ames, nominee for sheriff, and Howard P. Savage, candidate for county treasurer, received similar pledges of united support. Louis Nettlehorst, candidate for clerk of the Probate court; William E. Helander, nominee for county judge, and John Passmore, present clerk of the Criminal court seeking reëlection, were cheered by the picnic crowd.

The Republican state candidates start their campaign today at Carbondale. Congresswoman Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican nominee for United States senator, and Gov. Louis L. Emmerson will be on hand.

Waitress Kills Belgian Noble; Shoots Herself

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Sept. 1.—(AP)—Count de Brockhoven, 22 year old member of the Belgian nobility, was shot by a 20 year old waitress in a Brussels café today and died shortly after being admitted to a hospital. The waitress, who is alleged to have fired the shots in a fit of jealousy, attempted to commit suicide, but succeeded only in wounding herself in the thigh.

"There is no honest business," said a noted educator, "in which a man can engage without serving his community. While serving his own interests, the business man cannot avoid serving his community as well, for his business prospers according to the service he gives. This age is rightly called a commercial age, and commerce is an interchange of services."

This is simple truth. The men who have produced oil, lumber, copper, steel, coal, agricultural products and other commodities—make for all that constitutes the material wealth of the nation—yet socialistic leaders loudly proclaim these men are exploiting natural resources and man power. And the inference is anything one wishes to make it that is not good.

Is it not, in fact, a Christian service? We think so.

REMOVE PERU'S OUSTED CHIEF TO ISLAND PRISON

Leguia Taken from Sick Bed on Warship.

LIMA, Peru, Sept. 1.—(AP)—Augusto B. Leguia, who just a week ago resigned as president of Peru on demand of a military junta, today was placed in an island prison, where in the eleven years of his dictatorship he jailed hundreds of political foes.

The island is San Lorenzo, in Callao harbor, and the former president was removed to it from the cruiser Almirante Grau, on which he took refuge after his resignation. There he became ill, and, although last week he was scheduled to be transferred to the prison, the move was delayed until the 67 year old's man health improved.

Since the revolt has made over the Peruvian government, Leguia's political enemies have been released and new garrisons have been installed on the island. Detachments of these soldiers came to the Almirante Grau in two launches today and put the former president aboard for transportation to the prison.

Allow Communication with Grow.

It is understood that Lieutenant Commander Harold B. Grow, the American who headed the Peruvian air service under Leguia and was arrested at Arequipa after the revolt broke out, is no longer held incommunicado. He is receiving messages and personal articles are being sent him by Mrs. Grow.

Grow, who is an officer in the American naval reserve, is charged by the military junta with having planned to bomb Arequipa under orders of Leguia before he resigned.

CERRO MOVING FAST

BY C. N. GRIFFIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LIMA, Sept. 1.—Since the arrival of Lieut. Col. Sanchez Cerro, head of the new revolutionary government last Wednesday, public order has been firmly maintained, and the new rule has been proceeding energetically in the reorganization of the government personnel. Sweeping changes have been made in every office.

Lieut. Col. Cerro has given few interviews, and has confined his policy to terse executive decrees and rapid action. Virtually an unknown quantity here outside of army circles, it is generally recognized that he has great capabilities.

"He possesses the brains to lead 10,000,000," one foreign military of high rank said.

Sanchez Cerro's immediate financial policy is one of severe retrenchment and economy.

DEMAND YRIGOYEN QUIT

BY HAROLD TATAM.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 1.—The Argentine government's failure to respond to demands of the Buenos Aires press for an explanation of the reasons for the recent military precautions, the detention of army officers, and military mobilization is beginning to cause restiveness among the people. Several entities, such as university students, today issued manifestoes either demanding to know the cause of the government's uneasiness or blunt demands for the government's resignation.

The cabinet met last night at President Yrigoyen's house. The minister of war did not attend, which gave rise to renewed rumors that he has resigned.

The university students' manifesto, in which they comment upon the "deplorable depth to which the prestige of the country has sunk under the present administration," says if "institutional guarantees" are not quickly restored and a radical change in policy is not initiated in Argentina, the students will sally into the streets prepared to use even violence to safeguard the republican principles which are the basis of our constitution."

OFFICIAL DIES

J. SCOTT MATTHEWS.

FUNERAL RITES TOMORROW FOR J. S. MATTHEWS

Funeral services for J. Scott Matthews, chief examiner of titles under the Torrens system, will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow in the First Presbyterian church of Woodlawn at Kimbark avenue and 64th street. Burial will be in Oakwoods cemetery.

Mr. Matthews died on Sunday night at the Washington Park hospital of an embolism following an operation for acute appendicitis 15 days ago.

Mr. Matthews was born in Chicago on April 16, 1880. He was a graduate of Hyde Park High school, the University of Michigan and Northwestern University Law school.

He had been in public life many years and was a leader in the Deneen faction. He drafted legislation for tax and governmental reform.

Mr. Matthews was placed at the head of the Torrens system by Recorder John F. Haas, 30 years ago, and held the position under succeeding administrations. He was active in fraternal organizations.

Mr. Matthews is survived by his widow and two children, Merritt W. and Bonita, both students at the University of Illinois; by his mother, Mrs. Clara Matthews; a brother, William J. Matthews; and two sisters, Clara S. D. Matthews, a teacher in the Wadsworth school, and Mrs. Mark Burnham. The Matthews home is at 6449 Ingleside avenue.

KING PROMOTES WALES IN ARMY, NAVY, AIR FORCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 1.—Great Britain's sailor-soldier-airman and heir apparent to the crown received three new titles tonight. With King George's approval, the prince of Wales became a vice admiral instead of a captain in the navy, a leutenant general instead of a colonel in the army, and air marshal instead of group captain.

The official announcement states that the promotions date from today. The prince has been associated with the navy since he was 12 years old. In April, 1907, he passed his qualifying examination and entered Osborne college as a naval cadet.

His service in the army began with the world war, when he overcame Lord Kitchener's objections and served in France as a second leutenant. Prior to this, he served as a private and noncommissioned officer in an officers' training corps at Oxford, where he was a student.

TENT PREACHER SAYS KIDNAPERS BEAT HIM; ORDERED HIM AWAY

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—The Rev. B. B. Carlisle stumbled into the city today with his face showing marks of a severe beating. He said he had been kidnaped last night by three men, taking fifteen miles into the country, beaten, thrown out in the woods, and told to walk back home.

"They drove for miles and beat me nearly all the way," he said. "They told me if I did not leave town within 24 hours they would kill me."

Carlisle gave the police the names of three men.

Several nights ago a tent in which Carlisle had been holding meetings was burned. Some husbands claim he is "too friendly with the women," and he has been warned before to get out of town.

DIFFER ON CAUSE OF TRAIN WRECK; 6 DEAD, 58 HURT

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Officials of St. Louis county disagreed tonight on the cause of the wreck of the "Texas Special," St. Louis-San Francisco train, ten miles southwest of here last night. Six persons were killed and 58 injured, eleven seriously.

Dr. John O'Connell, coroner, said the wreck had been caused by several large stones placed on the rail at a point about 500 feet east of Osage Hills station.

Chief of Police George D. Schroeder of Kirkwood, the first person at the scene of the wreck, said his investigation did not reveal any evidence of a pile of stones.

"I have found absolutely no evidence of vandalism," Schroeder said. "The 'cow-catcher' of the locomotive bears no evidence of having struck an obstruction."

Coroner O'Connell has asked the sheriff and prosecuting attorney to assist him in a further investigation.

Davis Reports Government Finances Sound.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—An optimistic report on conditions in the Philippines during the last fiscal year was received at the war department today from Dwight F. Davis, governor general of the islands. Mr. Davis advised the secretary of war that the financial position of the government is sound, the people prosperous and the country orderly.

The governor general added, however, that while the revenues had increased during the last year there unmistakably were evidences in the closing months that business would be somewhat poorer in the immediate future. He said the legislature and the financial officers of the government were fully cognizant of the situation and that steps were being taken to cut government expenses so that with decreased revenues a balanced budget would be possible.

Imports Increase 9 Per Cent.

Among the highlights of the report was the statement that the total trade of the islands with the United States and foreign countries for the 1930 fiscal year was the largest on record. Imports during the year amounted to 294 million pesos, an increase of 9 per cent over the previous year.

Exports increased 6 per cent to a total of 328 million pesos. The total trade with the United States amounted to 424 million pesos, an increase of 9 per cent over the previous year. American vessels, Mr. Davis reported, continue to lead in the foreign carrying trade, registering an increase in 1930.

The report disclosed that American manufacturers shipped increased amounts of electric machinery, automobiles and accessories, mineral oils, and iron and steel manufactured goods to the Philippines in 1930.

Peace and Order Excellent.

"For the people in general, as well as the government, the year was, on the whole, a very satisfactory one," Mr. Davis said. "Peace and order were excellent, and with the exception of two typhoons which swept through some of the southern islands, the country was free of major disasters. Health conditions were favorable.

"While prices of staple crops were low, their volume was larger than ever before. This prosperous condition was reflected in increased revenues of the government. An example of this is the fact that internal revenue collections increased over 1,500,000 pesos.

"The financial position of the government is sound. The revenues from ordinary sources amounted to 87,210,876 pesos, an increase over the previous year of nearly 5,000,000 pesos."

ARMY OFFICERS URGED TO WRITE FOR PUBLICATION

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Army officers are urged to write more for publication about military activities in an article written by Gen. Charles P. Summerall, army chief of staff, which appears in the current issue of the infantry journal.

"Truthful publicity is one of the most important missions of the army in time of peace," Gen. Summerall said.

"I consider it highly desirable that officers develop their talents by contributing well considered articles to the professional service journals."

German Specialist's Prescription Amazes Hospitals and Physicians

So many thousands have found quick relief from neuralgia, neuritis, sciatica, lumbago, and rheumatism through Nurito that it has now become the standard relief throughout the world. It was discovered by a German Specialist famous for the real speed at which his own prescription banishes pains and aches. He has finally been persuaded to place it at the disposal of the general public through drug stores everywhere. Nurito contains no opiates or narcotics and is absolutely harmless. If the very first three doses of Nurito do not stop the most intense pain even of many years' standing—your money will be instantly refunded.

If you want to feel again the joy of living, banish needless agony, and sleep soundly at night, go to your druggist at once and ask him to let you try Nurito, under this positive money-back guarantee.

NEW U. S. NAVAL BUILDING PLANS TO BE SPEEDED

Admiral Pratt Will Be Man in Charge.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Preparation of the new naval building program will be expedited this month with the return to Washington of Secretary of the Navy Adams and several members of the navy general board now away on vacation. The program, however, will not be worked out in detail until after Rear Admiral William V. Pratt becomes chairman of the naval operations early in October on the retirement of Admiral Charles F. Hughes.

As Admiral Pratt was the chief naval exponent of the London naval treaty on which the new building program will be based, the present inclination is to wait his arrival in Washington before any definite changes in naval policy are worked out or decisions reached regarding the exact number of ships that should be included in the new building bill.

Pratt New Operations Head.

As chief of naval operation, Rear Admiral Pratt will be ex officio head of the naval board, which is charged with the duty of formulating naval building programs for submission to the secretary of the navy.

It is considered possible that Admiral Pratt will come to Washington earlier than originally scheduled, in order to discuss matters of naval policy with Secretary Adams and President Hoover. One problem that will have to be decided, in addition to the task of working out a building bill, is on the future division of the fleet. With the number of battleships cut to fourteen with 14 inch guns or above and one with 12 inch guns, decision must be reached as to whether all battleships shall be concentrated on the Pacific, leaving only cruisers, destroyers, and submarines on the east coast.

Designs for Submarines.

In the general board's preliminary studies special attention is paid to destroyers and submarine design. American destroyers are now of obsolete design. Chairman Burton L. French [Rep., Idaho] of the naval subcommittee of the house appropriations committee, a leading "little navy" man, is ready to vote funds for building a few submarines and destroyers.

As a result naval officers are confident a beginning can be made this next fiscal year on the replacement of wartime built destroyers.

AGED PAIR FOUND DEAD.

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Overcome by gas in their home here, an aged man and his wife were found dead today. Police said it was a case of murder and suicide. The victims were Mr. and Mrs. Julius Helling, 70 and 67.

DIZZINESS

Shortness of breath, faintness, swollen feet—these are common symptoms of heart disease. Over two million people have it—one out of ten will die of it. If you have any symptoms of heart disease you cannot afford to trifle with health. You must keep your body sparkling clean inside—and reduce the poisonous by-products of digestion, the toxins of assimilation. There is one water that stands out above all other natural waters as the safe, sane one to help regulate these substances and to aid Nature in eliminating them through all four of the body's channels. It is Mountain Valley Mineral Water—Nature's own product—and a famous one. Let us tell you more—get our booklet. Phone today.

TRAFFIC JAMMED AT CLOSE OF LABOR HOLIDAY

Air Race Spectators Congest Northwest.

BY HAL FOUST.

The metropolitan area yesterday experienced one of its worst traffic tie-ups. As the sun was setting on the holiday week-end, half a million motorists were stalled by congestion on the rural highways leading into the city. Many did not get home until close to midnight.

Perhaps the worst jam was northwest of the city where the shoulders of the highways were filled with parked automobiles within view of that part of the national air race program performed at high altitudes. A free movement of traffic was also impeded by motorists who loitered on the pavements keeping one eye on some distant plane and the other on the cars ahead. There were complaints that the road in the vicinity of the Curtiss airport were not well policed.

Home from Resorts.

Trying to sift through these automobiles getting a free look at the air show were the thousands returning from the lake resorts of northern Illinois and Wisconsin. On the running boards and bumpers of many of the cars was luggage that indicated the abandonment of summer homes until next spring. Families were returning to Chicago to put the children in school today.

Traffic on Milwaukee road north of Half Day, the northern limit of Gov. Emmerson's widening program, was in a deadlock of automobiles bumper to bumper for a distance of three miles on the narrow pavement, jerking forward only a few feet at a time in approaching the forty foot sector.

Reckless or desperately daring drivers were turning on to the dirt shoulders in trying to get ahead of the parade, risking an accident and showering dust upon the thousands who were waiting in the single line.

Cause of Accidents.

The state highway police reported that this practice of leaving the pavement to get around the parade of stalled cars has caused many serious accidents.

"We've tried to break it up and to make the drivers stay in line by arresting scores of them," said a state police sergeant, "but the driving public feels such an urgent need for wide pavements far from Chicago that we haven't been able to stop the use of the dirt shoulders."

The traffic condition northwest of Chicago was no different than in other directions. The nineteen detours in the metropolitan area caused some of the delay, but another cause, which will not be removed as soon as the barricades are lifted, was the grade crossing of pavements.

On the west side the forty foot pavement of North avenue was shooting Chicago bound cars into Elmhurst two abreast on a narrow, rough street. This narrow street is the approach to the site of the projected grade separation for the intersection of North avenue and Lake street. The stalled machines stretched through the village for more than a mile. Maybe the grade separation will be built next year. The state has spent more than a year trying to get the right of way, and condemnation suits are now pending.

The motorists returning from the resorts of northern Indiana and from Michigan did not fare any better in the drive to Chicago late yesterday afternoon and last night.

The blockades on the Dunes highway and the Lincoln highway were so long that some passengers got out and sat by the roadside while the drivers moved the cars forward a few feet at a time. Their only consolation was that Indiana is building a forty foot relief road for Dunes highway, although little is projected to carry the traffic into Chicago from east of Gary.

ALL ROADS JAMMED WHEN 2,500,000 RUSH BACK TO NEW YORK

New York, Sept. 1.—[Special.]—The homeward rush of 2,500,000 New Yorkers from summer and Labor day vacations at mountain and seashore resorts reached its peak tonight and was expected to continue in reduced volume tomorrow. The vacationists, all trying to get back home at the same time, taxed to the limit rail, water, bus and air transportation lines.

Happy holiday makers struggling under their burdens of luggage clogged terminals, piers and rapid transit stations while motor cars, bringing additional thousands of travelers with their luggage moved in endless processions along all highways.

LOCKSMITH GETS A JOB AND STORE IS NOW OUT $250

As a locksmith, Andrew J. Phillips qualifies as an expert. Phillips, who works for George Garmisa, locksmith at 541½ South State street, was taking things easy yesterday afternoon when a man entered the shop, saying he was the manager of the Dixie shoe store at 334 South State street, and that he had a job for the locksmith." The man said he had lost his keys and wanted Phillips to open the door for him, which the locksmith did.

While Phillips was replacing the tumblers and putting the lock in order, the man opened the safe and asked the locksmith to wait while he went out to mail some letters. Meanwhile, Jack Sachs, jeweler next door, recognized the "manager" as Louis Kulback, former clerk in the store. They passed the time of the day, which lengthened considerably before Kulback came back.

Sachs notified the police. The police notified C. A. Ligon, manager of the shoe store. Ligon found that $250 was missing.

BATTLESHIP UTAH WILL BE TARGET FOR U. S. GUNS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Unless governmental economy dictates otherwise the 22,000 ton battleship Utah will be converted into a target ship and sent to the bottom of the ocean by the big guns of the fifteen capital ships retained by the United States under the terms of the London naval treaty. It is possible the Utah will be utilized to test the latest developed airplanes and bombs as well as the new 8 inch guns of the 10,000 ton treaty cruisers.

Three battleships are to be stricken from the navy list in accordance with the London treaty terms. The Florida will be converted into a training ship while the third battleship will be scrapped. Something like $100,000 would be realized for each vessel broken up into scrap iron.

All three vessels will engage in target practice the week of Sept. 15. The big guns will fire a farewell salute and the fighting days of these reconditioned battleships built twenty years ago will be over.

CUBA FREES U. S. WOMAN HELD AS AIR FORCE SPY

HAVANA, Cuba, Sept. 1.—(AP)—Confined since Saturday in the Mariano barracks charged with plotting to reveal Cuban military secrets Mrs. Peggy Lane Morlote, 20 year old American widow of Lieut. Rogelio Morlote of the Cuban army air corps, was released today through the intercession of her brother, Louis R. Lane of Vedado, Havana.

Within a short time after her release, Mrs. Morlote, originally from Newark, O., was bound for her native country aboard a plane with Miami as its destination. She will go by rail to Longmeadow, Mass., to make her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lane.

Lane said that the papers of release stated there was insufficient proof to hold his sister on the charge that she had "entered into negotiations with secret agents of the republic of Colombia, and the United States to sell the secret key of the Cuban army air corps.

Woman Killed in Crash.

Mrs. Francis Viernacki, 53 years old, of Superior, Wis., was killed yesterday when the automobile in which she was riding crashed into a telegraph pole and overturned after a hit and run driver sideswiped the car as he tried to gain position in a line of cars loaded with holiday motorists at Northwest highway and Dempster street.

Mrs. Viernacki's sister, Mrs. Agnes Surpcynski, 2713 North Western avenue, was probably fatally injured; and the latter's husband, Lawrence, who was driving, and Alden Kutz, 4 years old, 2538 North Western avenue, a nephew, were less seriously hurt. The driver fled on Dempster street.

The other victims were:

Harold Sedive, 11 years old, 261 North Harding street. Fatally injured in a collision at Rand and Wilkie roads, eight miles west of Des Plaines.

Harry Anderson, 53 years old. Struck by a motorist near the Grant monument in Lincoln park last night. The motorist drove away. Anderson died in Columbus hospital.

William Burns, 25 years old, 211 Oakdale avenue. Fatally injured when he was struck by an automobile at Michigan avenue and Van Buren street. The driver, John Stern, 2215 South La Salle street, was held.

Leslie Manning, 17 years old, of La Grange. Killed when he was struck by an automobile while he was roller skating at 5th avenue and the Plainfield road.

John W. Anderson, 50 years old, 330 South Morgan street. Fatally hurt when his auto collided head on with a car at Vincennes avenue and 50th street.

John Martin, 65 years old, 2642 North Drake avenue. Died in the Belmont hospital of injuries he incurred in an auto accident on Aug. 16, in which his wife was killed.

John McGoldrick, 60 years old, 826 West 50th place. Died in the German Deaconess hospital of injuries received on Sunday when the auto in which he was riding overturned at Loomis and 65th streets. McGoldrick was riding with John Moloney, 4811 South Union avenue, who swerved to avoid colliding with another machine.

Unidentified man, about 40 years old. Died in St. Mary's hospital of injuries incurred on Friday when he was struck by an auto. The driver, Lowell King, 2118 North Maplewood avenue, was notified to appear at the inquest today.

Four in Family Hurt.

Frank Ketter, 37 years old, 6712 South Damen avenue, and his wife, Sophia, 25, were crossing the street at Ashland avenue and 72d street yesterday with their children, Victor, 6, and Dorothy, 7, when they were struck by an automobile driven by John J. Cravey, 6500 South May street. Victor suffered fractures of both legs and a skull fracture and his sister suffered leg fractures and a possible skull fracture. The parents also were seriously hurt. All were taken to the Holy Cross hospital. Cravey was held.

Rubio Demands Mexico Set Up Schools for All Indians

BY JOHN CORNYN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 1.—After over 400 years of the oppression of the Indian and keeping him in ignorance, President Pascual Ortiz Rubio, in his first message to congress today, expressed the hope that illiteracy will be practically wiped out over all Mexico by the end of his term four years hence. He said he needed the cooperation of state governments and the people of Mexico, "who are taking a notable interest in the regeneration and incorporation of the native races, which constitute 70 per cent of the population."

At a recent convention of state governors, the president said he had urged state governments to give preference to public instruction, devoting at least 40 per cent of the state income for education.

"The states," he said, "will as far as possible, handle general education, while the federal government will look after the remote and mountainous regions, which are almost altogether inhabited by Indians, most of whom speak no Spanish. These include towns under 1,000 inhabitants."

Illiteracy Drops in 10 Years.

President Rubio said that Mexico's illiteracy has decreased from 90 to 50 per cent in ten years, and that education is general in the towns and villages.

Mexico has over 7,000 federal primary and rural schools, of which 1,000 were opened this year. Enrollment in the federal state and private schools is 1,500,000 out of 3,000,000 of school age.

Last year's federal and state budget for education was $29,000,000 and this year's budget is $34,000,000. The federal government expects to open 2,000 rural schools next year and to have 150,000 more children in schools in the federal district alone.

Efforts toward reconstruction of all branches of Mexican life, which have been disrupted by 20 years of successive revolutions, was another pledge made by President Rubio. He said that the national agrarian commission is working strenuously to end the land grant question and to leave the field clear for the reconstruction of agriculture and the establishment of agricultural credit.

Tells of Visit to U. S.

Perhaps the most interesting part of the message was that dedicated to foreign relationships. The president said:

"My visit to the United States last January, as president-elect, resulted beneficially to both nations, strengthening the already friendly relations of both countries and increasing the mutual understanding of the governments of both nations."

President Rubio, in opening congress, was accompanied by his full cabinet and highest ranking generals. Streets from the national palace to the chamber were lined with troops. He apparently had no fear of a further attempt on his life, as on Feb. 5 after he took the oath of office, for he drove to the chamber in an open auto.

BOLDER RACKETEERS AND HARDER TIMES.

Racketeering has become a loose term used to describe a number of things. For the purposes of this editorial it means the use of threats and violence to coerce conduct and levy tribute. Racketeering is not disappearing in this community. On the contrary, the racketeer is reaching out of the city into the surrounding territory.

Only the other day it was learned that trucks going through Du Page county on their way to and from Chicago have frequently to be convoyed to prevent their destruction. A good many have been wrecked because their drivers or the employers of those drivers had failed to pay the tribute demanded. Individual drivers have been slugged. Similarly a milk dealer of Arlington Heights was forced by three armed men to surrender his truck, which was then driven some distance and overturned in the ditch with its load of milk. The victim said the attack was to be explained by his refusal to enter an organization of milk dealers being formed in his district northwest of Chicago.

It should be obvious that these acts of violence, which can be matched a hundred times over, are costly. The business man who resists is put to heavy expense to guard his property or, alternatively, discovers some morning that his property has been destroyed and must be replaced if he is to continue to operate. Many business men, despairing of obtaining protection from the police, have surrendered to the racketeer and pay tribute as the cheaper way out. Whether the exactions are resisted or met, the cost of doing business goes up and that cost is passed on to the consumer.

Today, when prices are being slashed wherever possible, to stimulate business, racketeering is throttling recovery in the metropolitan area by forcing prices higher. Profits have been greatly reduced and wage levels have been maintained in large part only with the greatest difficulty. In the face of that situation, the racketeer has increased his demands and his field of operations. He is levying heavier tribute and levying it on a steadily increasing share of business transactions. He has always been a menace to good order and a handicap to enterprise, but today he is something more: he is the abettor of hard times and unemployment. Every class has reason to seek his extermination. If this community is ever going to rid itself of racketeering now is the time to act.

DR. SCHMIDT AND DR. HARRIS.

It appears now that Dr. Malcolm L. Harris is not to be disciplined for unethical conduct by the Chicago Medical society.

Dr. Harris is one of Chicago's most distinguished surgeons. Last year he was president of the American Medical association. He has also served as president of the Chicago Medical society. Nevertheless, Dr. Harris was obliged to defend himself against the charge of improper professional conduct. It is a good deal as if Mr. Hughes, Mr. Wickersham, or Mr. Strawn were to be cited for unprofessional conduct by the bar association. No one can accuse the Chicago Medical society of being a respecter of persons. It threw Dr. Louis Schmidt out of its fellowship, though he was one of its most distinguished members, and it began proceedings against Dr. Harris.

The attempt to distinguish the case of Dr. Schmidt from the case of Dr. Harris is not easy. Both clinics were headed by physicians of high standing. Neither was operated for profit. Both employed advertising. Both aimed to give superior service at low cost. Both have undertaken to modify their advertising to accord with the views of the medical society. The chief difference appears to be that the Public Health institute employed newspaper advertising, which is highly effective, while the Policlinic issued a circular, which is far less so. The conclusion seems warranted that physicians may associate themselves with clinics which advertise services at reduced costs provided the advertising is not effective.

This is a good deal as if a doctor should instruct his patient to eat freely of everything except food, but we are not disposed to be hypercritical of the medical society. It is a large body and it must move slowly. It is engaged, whether it knows it or not, in the difficult task of rewriting the code of medical ethics, so-called. It seems to have recognized the absurdity of retaining in the code prohibitions which its most eminent members do not observe. It has already gone so far as to admit that some forms of medical advertising are acceptable. It is beginning to grasp the fact that the family of moderate means constitutes the bulk of the population in this country and that meeting the requirements of this section of society is therefore of first importance. These are considerable advances and are to be commended, provided, as seems altogether probable, they are intermediate and not final. Meanwhile the society which threw Dr. Schmidt out has now virtually accepted his position, but has not taken steps to reinstate him. That is an inconsistency which, as time goes on, must cause the society considerably more pain than it does Dr. Schmidt.

SOUTH AMERICAN REVOLUTIONS.

Revolution in South America has been of two varieties. The earlier form was a series of struggles for political independence of the mother country. They represented not only a revolt from the oppressive rule of Spanish government but also a ferment of political ideas. They sought not only to relieve the Spanish colonies from exploitation by the appointees of the king but also to establish republican government.

The later form has had little to do with political or social theory. It has been chiefly a struggle between ins and outs, a struggle for the profits and powers of office, which left no essential change in the situation and represented a conflict of personal ambitions and interests within a ruling class. Spanish American politics, since the earlier period, has been of this character. Its parties are devoted to personalities, not to political or economic issues, though they have names which to us imply them as conservative and liberal. The administration of government produces wrongs of alleged wrongs which the party out of power uses as forensic ammunition and a change of government sometimes brings substantial improvement in administration, but fundamental changes in political or economic policies are seldom if ever involved. A particularly oppressive ruler may be replaced by a man or group less tyrannical or greedy or even by humane and conscientious men who are able materially to better conditions. But this is a question of personnel.

This is a natural evolution in the history of the Spanish colonization, which was an aristocratic and military movement. The colonies were enterprises supported and maintained by the Spanish king and grandees, the conquistadores who conquered the aboriginal Americans with the sword and ruled them as serfs or slaves. North America was colonized by private initiative, by immigrants chiefly, who were workers and left home either to escape religious oppression or to find more favorable economic conditions. They sought freedom and proposed to create a free society. They did not enslave the natives but drove them out or destroyed them. In this respect they were harsher than the Spanish rulers, but they built for themselves a democratic society.

After the period of conquest the Spanish colonists put roots in the soil and became Americans. They then began to find the rule of the home country oppressive and hostile to their own new interests. In time they revolted and set up independent governments, in form republican, according to the spirit of the age and the fashion of revolutionary thought at the time. But they were rulers of the people, with a conception of free society more like the Greek than that of northern Europe from which our own was evolved. There was democracy within the ruling class as among the citizens of Athens, but it was based upon the subjection of unprivileged classes.

Conditions differ in different republics. Where the aboriginal population is large the growth of democratic aspiration is very slow, if it exists at all. Here revolts from excessive evils are possible, but they are not likely to produce changes in the system. In republics like Argentina the situation is different, for immigration has brought and is bringing people who are capable of political progress and of revolt against political, economic, or social conditions which are unfavorable. Still even in such countries the old order persists and changes of government, that is of the persons administering government, even when accomplished by force, are more of the nature of a coup d'état than of a revolution in the proper sense.

MILITARY CONSERVATISM.

The news that certain of our admirals favor the limitation of airplanes and submarines under international law reminds us that official naval opinion opposed the introduction of rifled cannon, armorclad ships and torpedoes. This attitude toward innovation is a familiar characteristic of the bureaucratic or official mentality and it is not in the military profession less conspicuous—at times it is certainly more costly—than elsewhere. The military mind is not a very open or curious mind. Its responsibilities, perhaps, and certainly its training are more likely to develop extreme conservatism, to face it backward instead of forward. Doubtless this is largely because it has and must have a sense of the heavy cost of error or unsuccessful experiment, not only to the officers themselves but to the lives or interests in their keeping. Yet the greatest commanders at sea or on land have been men who dared, who made venture of new tactics or devices.

It is, we think, significant that the outstanding naval commanders of recent years, Dewey, the American; Togo, the Japanese, and Von Scheer, the German, were all men who emerged from virtually new navies. They therefore escaped a good deal of the burden of precedent and sacred routine. The British and French naval mind has produced nothing important in the present or last generation, probably because its initiative and inventiveness have been repressed by tradition precedent and entrenched habit or policy.

Yet there has been no period in the history of warfare when open-mindedness, hospitality to discovery, invention and experiment were more essential to success in arms than they are at this time. Science opens unlimited possibilities in the art of war as in the arts of peace. To be too much governed by the past, to resist modernization and experiment is to invite and indeed to insure disaster whenever the trial of strength arrives.

Editorial of the Day

COL. LEWIS SOUNDS THE KEYNOTE.

[Illinois State Journal, Springfield.]

Col. James Hamilton Lewis, whose eloquent optimism so recently inspired the Midday Luncheon club with the assurance that all is lovely in this fair land and that the goose hangs high, yesterday keynoted the Democratic state convention.

It was the colonel's duty as the party nominee for senator, to put pep into the convention and he made a whole hearted job of it. The speech, reversing that with which he had warmed the Luncheon club, was a remarkable demonstration of Col. Lewis' versatility—remarkable even for the ever surprising former United States senator.

Ruthlessly the eloquent Lewis tore aside the beautiful painting which he had brushed in for the lunchers, and with darkest pigments rapidly laid on a larger canvas the picture of a country and a people headed straight for hell.

It was a terrifying portrayal—the Lewis description of the United States—calculated to make the flesh creep.

Of course, the picture wasn't as convincing as the recent optimistic address to the Luncheon club, but it was great stuff for the politically bereft. Probably no other man in the party could have equaled or tied it. Not many would have had the nerve to deliver it.

PREVENTING TOOTH DECAY.

DR. MAY MELLANBY continues her research on methods of preventing decay of teeth. The longer she works at the problem the more she is convinced that diet is the principal factor in dental decay. When expectant mothers fail to eat the proper foods their babies finally erupt teeth that are poor in quality.

When babies and older children do not get the proper foods their teeth decay. Their jaws develop poorly and, in consequence, the teeth are irregularly spaced, generally are crowded and out of line. If a child with poor, crumbling teeth showing all kinds of decay is put on a diet rich in the proper food elements the teeth harden up and decay does not progress. She regards diet as of far more importance in relation to poor teeth than cleanliness of the mouth.

Dr. W. E. Deeks reports a case of decay of unerupted teeth—teeth that had never had any contact with the surface and therefore could not have been infected with bacteria of decay by the surface route.

The diet which Dr. Mellanby advocates is one that is rich in milk and butter, yellow of eggs, and cod liver oil. She advises the use of ergosterol in certain cases. She believes in the efficacy of exposure of the skin to sunlight. It would seem logical to expect radiated foods to be of value under her plan of feeding, but with the exception of radiated sterols she does not mention radiation of foods or medicine. She thinks expectant mothers should eat abundantly of these foods. Nursing mothers should use them. When the baby is weaned he should go on them. Eskimo babies have good teeth because the mothers live largely on fat fish and they nurse their babies until the latter are ready for a fat fish diet.

Dr. Mellanby has not been able to produce crumbling teeth in rats at command and in exact degree, but this has not caused her to lose faith in her method. She quotes Dr. Howe as having found antiscorbutic vitamins necessary to prevent dental decay, but she sees in this no contradition of her opinions.

WOULD AVERT WEIGHT.

Miss E. writes:

1. Will yeast really make one fat? I have heard so much about the good it does, but I don't want to gain.
2. Some tell me if I cut down on my sweets and starches it will have no effect on my weight. Is this so?
3. Will you please name some foods rich in starch and sugar?

REPLY.

1. Yeast taken in the usual small quantities is not fattening. However, yeast is rich in vitamin B, and that vitamin stimulates appetite. Thus yeast may be fattening indirectly.
2. If you cut down your starches and sugars markedly, and keep them down, you will lose weight.
3. Candies, breads, cereals, pastries, deserts, sweet beverages, potatoes, beans, peas, and corn.

VIOLIN MAKES NECK SORE.

P. L. writes: I am a professional violinist and have been troubled by a sort of rash on the left side of my neck where the violin comes in contact with the skin. I have used many remedies to no avail, and the sore has proved to be a constant impediment to my playing. Could you suggest anything that would remedy this?

REPLY.

The probability is that the varnish poisons your skin. If you stop the exposure, the eruption will disappear. Protect your skin against the varnish by means of a pad or cloth. Or have your violin revarnished, if you can find a varnish to which your skin is not sensitive.

GROWING TALLER.

F. K. writes: 1. At what age does a young man attain his full height?

2. Is there any way that a person may stop his growing?

REPLY.

1. About 17 years. Some boys stop earlier than that; a few grow a little longer—or shall we say later?
2. No.

LIGHTS AT NIGHT.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—We live in a two flat building in the front hall of which are two separate lights, one upper and one lower. The people upstairs keep their light burning after dark, but the landlord never has his light on. Is he supposed to have the light burning and how long in the evening? There are two bad turns in the hall. No janitor service. A. B.

In 283 Ill. 271, 273, the Supreme court held an ordinance requiring light invalid on the ground that the city has only delegated powers which do not include this subject matter. It is the general rule that in absence of such an ordinance or statute the landlord is under no legal obligation to furnish light [36 C. J. 26 and 214].

ATTRACTIVE NUISANCE.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—[Friend of the People.]—What can I do to have a vacant building next to my property torn down? It is a serious fire hazard and a dangerous playground for children. It is so dilapidated that it has become an eyesore and a detriment to the neighborhood. Appeals to the police have met with the response that they are powerless, even to keep the boys out of it. It has been boarded up, but this is a useless precaution, as the boards are removed by boys as fast as they are nailed up. R. R. H.

Owner has been notified to board up doors and windows in basement where open, also remove all loose and dangerous parts of rear stairs. CHRISTIAN P. PASCHEN, Commissioner of Buildings.

DRIVES DISTRIBUTORS AWAY.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Have the janitors the right to hinder any one from placing advertising matter into mail boxes? I have often seen them drive the distributors out of the vestibule because they claim that the recipients of these advertisements thrown them on the floor, which means an untidy appearance and additional work. C. R.

The owner, with the approval of the tenants, has a right to exclude unwelcome visitors arbitrarily and hence is in a position to take the action suggested.

DESTINY HAS BUGLED.

When time, across the ages,
Clasps hands with startled time,
As comet-wings unfettered
Find higher trails to climb,
The little folks who drivel
And for millennium wait,
Stand gaping at the pageant

Whatever be adventure,
Or where its chosen place,
Behold explorers near the sun
Where faith and science race.
The poles that men have hunted
Through ages cold and dark,
Our Byrd-men use for pencils
When mapping needs a mark.

The years shall be forgotten,
The grubby years we knew,
For out across the ocean
An Ace immortal flew.
"All new shall be the heavens,
And now on earth remade,"
For Destiny has bugled
The Eagle's accolade.

LET'S SEE: wasn't it in 1911, only nineteen years ago, that we all attended that air meet in Grant park sponsored by the Aero Club of Illinois and marveled at the performances of the airmen just as we have marveled for the last week? There were fatalities then as there have been fatalities now. But what progress in speed for racers, comfort for passengers, and practicability for commercial purposes has been made in those nineteen years! Then consider that mechanical improvements now are reaching their greatest stage of development. Even so, one can visualize only faintly the air industry of the future.

Prefacing our pinch-hitting for R. H. L., we suggested that all of us have a good time. We've a contributing thought. Let's publish incidents about our hero which he would not publish, either through modesty or pride, were he here.

We'll still stick to our favorite anecdote, once before related to you, of the time when R. H. L., acting as correspondent in Berlin, was ordered by the head of THE TRIBUNE'S European bureau to turn in his long delayed expense account at once. He did. Whereupon the recipient wired, "Why is your expense account higher than that of any other TRIBUNE correspondent?" And R. H. L. promptly replied, "I'll bite. Why?"

All right, Liners, what do you personally know about R. H. L. when he was a callow collegian at Illinois Wesleyan, a war correspondent at various times, a lecturer, or engaged in any of his other activities? Here's your great opportunity. Ain't we got fun?

AS WE sit at our typewriter laboring on this Labor day, the sporting department ticker is grinding out the harrowing figures telling that the Cincinnati Reds, who haven't any chance for the pennant anyway, are humbling our leading Cubs, who want to go east with enough margin so they can sleep well nights. And if any one thinks that affords any inspiration to pinch-hitting, just try it some time. On the other hand, if we were not here, we'd be out at the ball yard, and that would be more depressing.

DREAMER.

A dreamer watches . . . all the world goes by him,
Earth's speedy law the puzzle of his day,
The crowded rooms of life confuse and try him,
Bright hilltops call his spirit far away;
He sees as dreamers have a way of seeing
With thoughts turned skyward for the common need,
So sensing the vast struggle of man's being,
Looks gently on the sharp edge of man's deed.

He moves as one led by a far enchantment
Who never felt the hunger-thrust for bread,
Weaving soft silver for our harsh contentment,
And men will speak his words when he is dead.
Hearing beyond the din . . . the clash . . . the jar,
He still keeps step with some forgotten star.

GREAT NEWS FOR THE CHILDREN

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 2, 1914.

PARIS.—Reports of refugees indicate that the Germans are fighting in the vicinity of Compiegne, which is less than fifty miles from Paris. The German advance on Paris in the region of Rethel has been arrested momentarily. The left wing of the allies has retreated a short distance south and southwest to avoid a battle with the foe under unfavorable conditions, and the center and right wings are holding the enemy at bay. The second great battle in the western theater of the war and the battle which promises to decide the course of that war has been in progress three days.

ABBEVILLE.—A Belgian subaltern just arrived from Antwerp reports that a second Zeppelin raid has been attempted against that city, but that a terrific fusillade kept the airship outside the fortifications. Antwerp is in absolute darkness.

ABBEVILLE.—Kaiser Wilhelm arrived at Charleroi and viewed the battlefield. Later he motored to Mons and spent the night at Brussels.

PETROGRAD. — The name St. Petersburg is no more. An imperial decree makes it known that in the future the capital is to be called Petrograd.

HONOLULU.—The first sea battle of the war to be fought in American waters probably will take place tomorrow just outside the neutral three mile limit. It will be between the German cruiser Nurnberg and the British warships Australia and Warrego of the Australian fleet.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 2, 1900.

CHICAGO.—A sensation was sprung in the life insurance world when the Northwestern Life Assurance company of Chicago, at a meeting of policyholders, voted to go over in a body to the Mutual Fund Reserve association of New York. It is perhaps the largest transfer in the history of insurance.

LONDON.—A special dispatch from Berlin says it is reported that Germany has rejected the Russian proposal for a withdrawal of troops from China and has made a counter proposal that Russia shall retire, leaving the other powers to follow their own course.

SHANGHAI.—Li Hung Chang received a telegram that Chung Ye, father-in-law of the late Emperor Tung Che, and the heir apparent, has committed suicide.

CHICAGO.—The Rev. Artemas J. Haynes, who succeeded Dr. Frank Gunsaulus as pastor of the Plymouth Congregational church, will resign this morning.

CHICAGO.—By a decisive vote, Edward Carroll, president of the Building Trades council, failed of being retained as secretary of the Plasterers union, his own organization. His defeat marks the growing dissatisfaction with the policy being pursued by the officers.

SEPTEMBER 2, 1865

NEW YORK.—A meeting of the creditors of Ketchum, Son & Co. was held today. E. W. Blatchford of the Chicago Lead and Oil works, representing himself and his company, was made secretary. The Ketchum house is endeavoring to pay sixty per cent. The total amount of liabilities, as reported by the committee, was $3,935,608. The assets amount to $3,098,000.

WASHINGTON. — Nazareth Allen testified in the Wirz trial that he was for a time in the confederate service at Andersonville and was a guard there. He knew that Capt. Wirz was commander of the prison. He had seen men in the stocks and on the chain gang. One man died in the stocks. He was thus punished for trying to escape.

NEW YORK.—The Times Washington special says: "Both the President and secretary of war are decided that Jeff Davis should have a trial by a civil court and at the earliest practical moment. The chief difficulty has been to find a proper tribunal."

ST. LOUIS.—The Fenian brotherhood are in high excitement over the fulmination of Archbishop Kendrick. Head Center McGrath publishes a reply to the archbishop wherein he says the popes have helped Ireland throw off English rule for centuries and the St. Louis Fenians spurn all attempts to regulate their political and temporal concerns by the archbishop.

SWITCHING ON THE LAKE FRONT.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—I have seen several articles from people complaining about noises made by engines near where they live. If they think they are bothered they should come down to the lake front, one of the most beautiful spots in the world, and see and hear what the Illinois Central does to the people who live in the hotels fronting Michigan avenue 24 hours in the day. It never stops seven days a week. The engines put on special performances from midnight until 6 a. m. when they are not making the night hideous with backing and switching; from three to nine locomotives park between 7th and 9th streets and let off steam so they will be sure to wake up every one within half a mile.

Written complaints have been filed with every officer of the Illinois Central from the president down, also with city officials and the Illinois commerce commission, asking them to use their electric and oil burning electrics to switch at night, but still the old locomotives go on chortling and throwing up smoke all over everything.

FRANK R. DONALINE.

THE PRICE OF GAS.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—The people of Chicago are about to receive approximately a 10 per cent increase in the gas rate.

The gas company is now changing its billing to conform to its new method of billing, explaining that the cost will be no more than under the old rate. They are right, so long as they continue furnishing manufactured gas. As soon as natural gas will begin to enter the mains in volume the people of Chicago will waken to find a higher rate on their gas bill, for they will no longer receive 530 B. T. U. gas, but over 600 B. T. U. gas. Therefore their bills will really be based on about $1 per 1,000 cubic feet instead of the present rate of 90 cents.

CHARLES BROAD.

AN OMISSION.

Chicago, Aug. 22.—The cartoon "Soldiers' Field" in today's TRIBUNE by McCutcheon is very fine. McCutcheon's cartoons are always great, but didn't he forget the biggest episode ever staged at Soldiers' field, namely the Eucharistic congress? Nothing staged there has ever rivaled the Night of Lighted Candles. F. E. L.

GAMBLING AND DRINKING.

Oak Park, Ill., Aug. 21.—One of the most striking examples of law inconsistency of the present day is the legalizing of racing in certain states while it is forbidden in other states. There is as much evil resulting from the operation of race tracks as from any other cause. It robs women and children of the pay of the husbands and fathers more than drinking ever did, and the average petty gamblers, like the big gamblers, have ruined dispositions and tend to be dishonest. It would be quite possible to stamp out this evil in very little time by suppressing the tracks and race dope publications, but this is not done, probably because there are too many rich and influential men in possession of stables and horses. Meanwhile they are trying to keep the poor man from having a little alcoholic stimulant and asking him to obey a fanatical and inconsistent law which tries to obliterate a habit that can never more than be regulated. In the meantime gambling is supposed to be illegal and hypocritical raids are made to close the resorts while the main cause of these resorts is legalized. That which could be stamped out is allowed to flourish, although it is the greater evil, while that which is a lesser evil and could be regulated scientifically, not fanatically, is the thing they seek vainly to wipe out entirely. J. KELLY.

PICKING ON CAREY.

Newton, Ill., Aug. 22.—Your campaign upon graft is commendable and should be greatly encouraged by every law abiding citizen, until these dirty, slimy politicians will find disfavor with the public so they will forsake it entirely. You have a wonderful newspaper and can if you choose be a great power for right doing in your big metropolis of the middle west. But so long as you encourage rank law violations with your Cartoonist Orr you are even trying to set a lower standard instead of to elevate. B. F. COMLEY.

RECONCILED TO WINTER.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—There is some consolation that with the approach of colder weather we will soon be spared the daily spectacle of having a lot of men and women use the hot weather and beach as an excuse to parade around almost entirely naked. R. N. D.

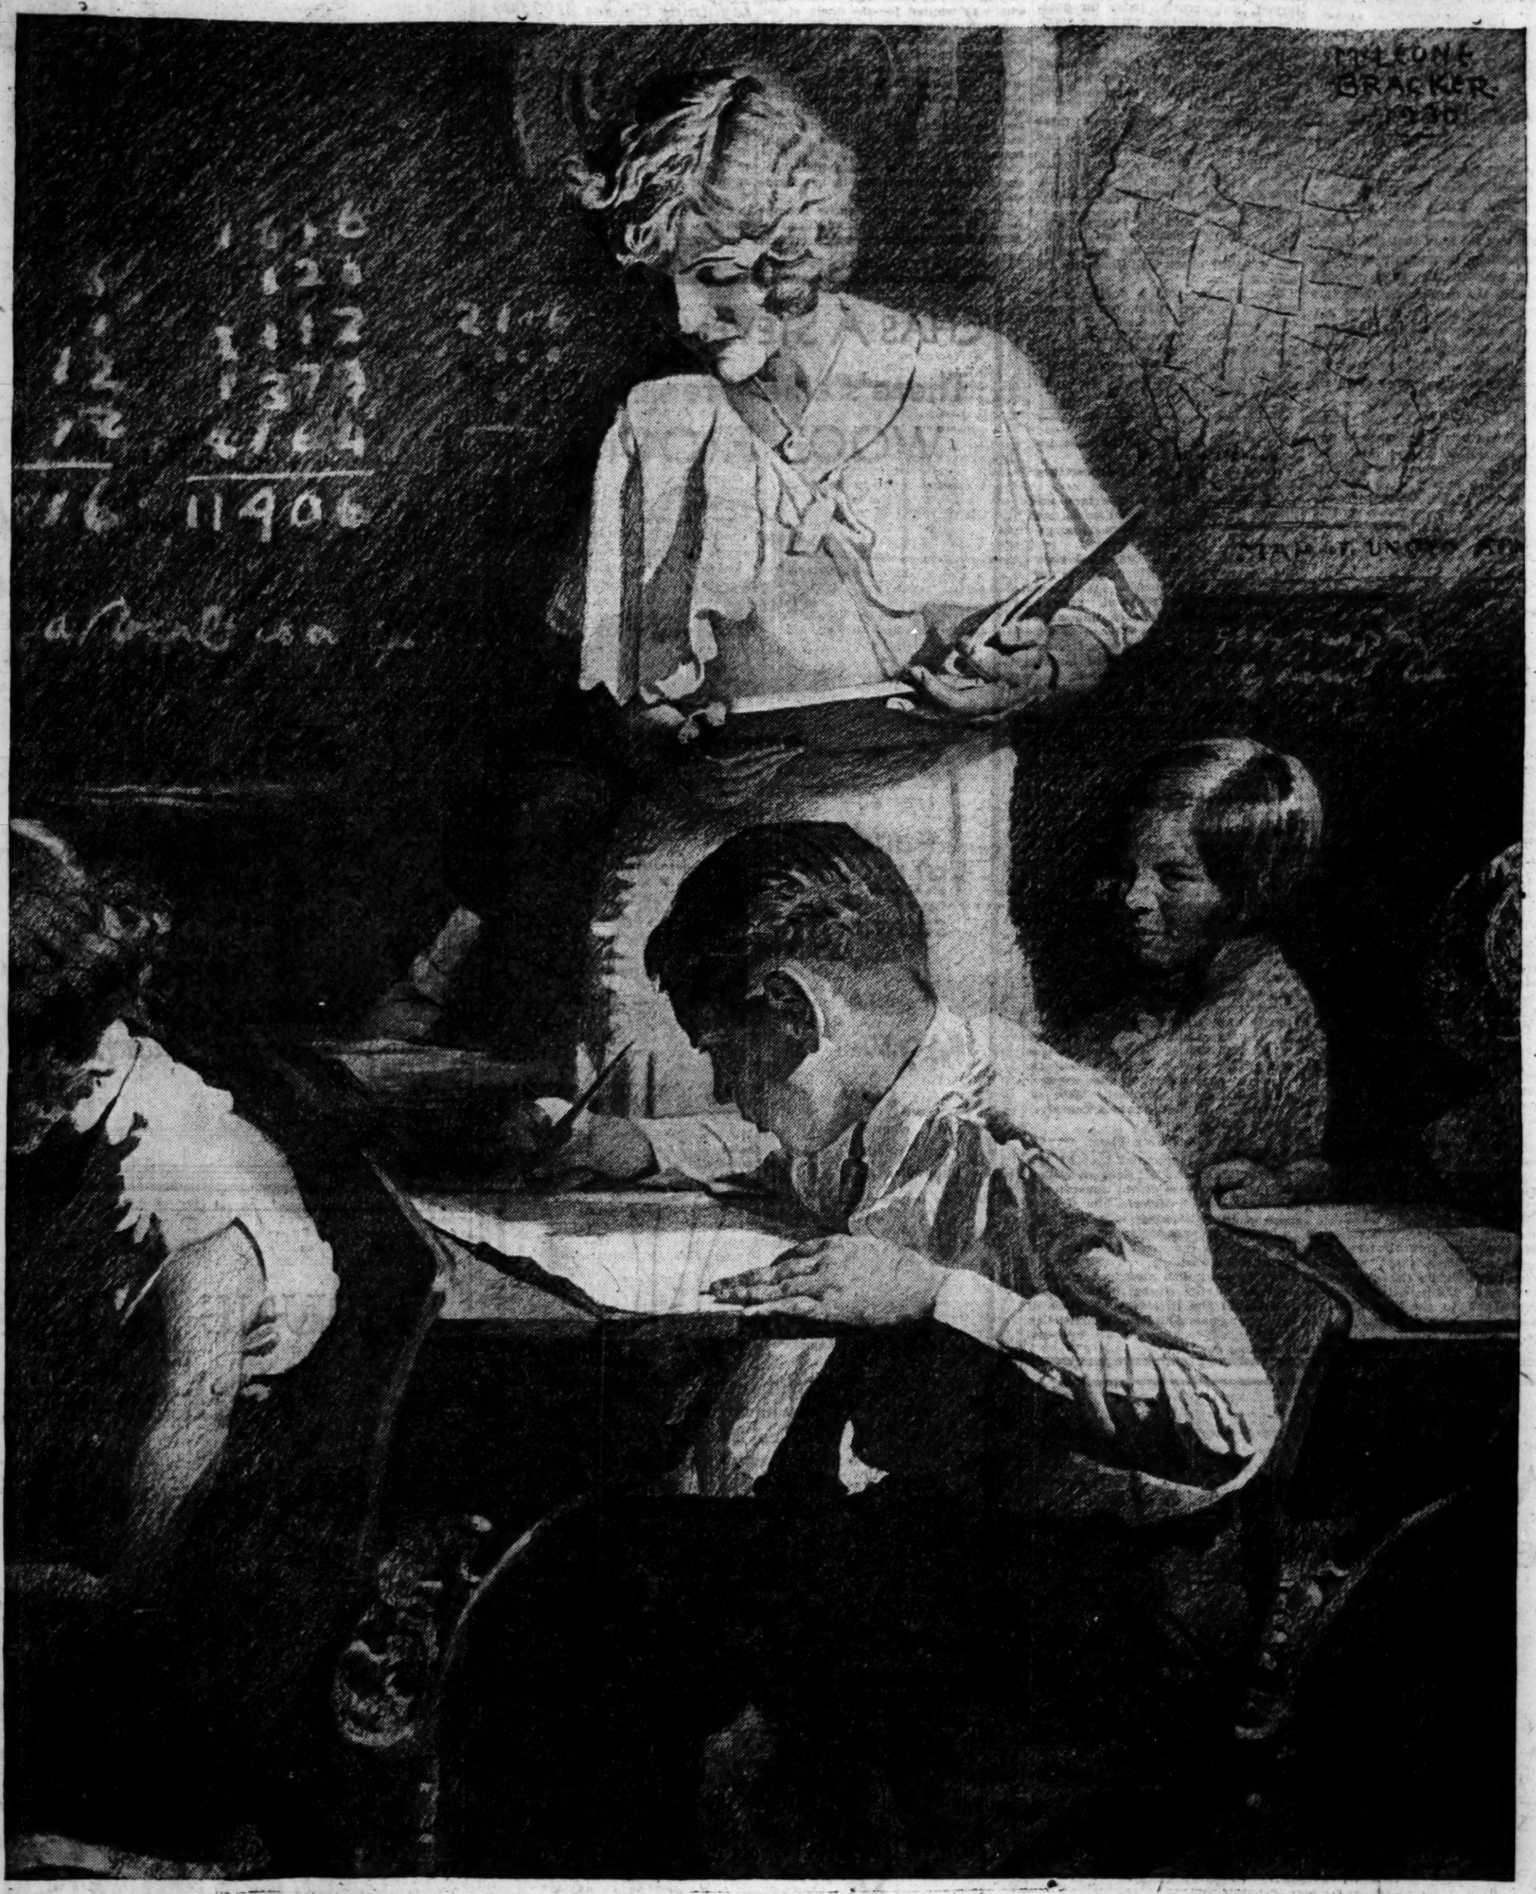
SCHOOL BEGINS TODAY!



TO TEACHERS: A TRIBUTE

AMONG the constructive influences of life a high rank must be assigned to teachers. Theirs is a work of fundamental and far-reaching importance for which there can be no substitute. Each new generation must pass through their hands, there to receive an impress destined to endure.

Every successful life owes much to the teachers of its youth; and both mediocrity and failure may look back upon neglected opportunities which teachers strove in vain to make clear. Achievement in life, in all its conspicuous forms, must ever pay tribute to the teachers who early guided the mind toward a realization of its capacities.

With increasing confidence parents have given to teachers more and more responsibility for the training of children; and both the family and the community look to the teachers in our various educational institutions to uphold our standards of culture and intellectual attainment.

Surely the calling of the teacher should ever be characterized by dignity and importance. And surely the lives of teachers must be greatly enriched by the satisfaction of giving a priceless service, and by the enduring affection and esteem of those whom they have directly benefited.

HURLEY PLEDGES 9-FOOT CHANNEL ON UPPER RIVER

Begins 2,000 Mile Voyage Down Mississippi.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lake City, Minn., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—After assuring citizens of Minneapolis and St. Paul that the Hoover administration is committed to the ultimate construction of a nine-foot channel for the upper river, Secretary of War Hurley and his party of government engineers aboard the Gen. Allen this afternoon scraped safely through the first sixty miles of the projected 2,000 mile voyage down the Mississippi to New Orleans.

Before leaving the Twin Cities, where he had spent two days in conferences, Secretary Hurley announced that Minnesota shippers and army officials were in accord on a program for the channel. Heretofore there had been divergent viewpoints, but they were ironed out in conference when the shippers were assured that the government was squarely behind the channel project.

Speed Impossible, He Says.

Secretary Hurley pointed out, however, that it would be "a physical impossibility" for the government to construct the channel within the period of Hoover's five-year waterways development program, explaining that the upper river project would have to be based on "sound economics and engineering."

The importance of a deeper channel on the upper river was emphasized at the conferences with the secretary. A garden machine plant, covering four acres in area, is preparing to close in the event that construction of a deeper channel is unduly delayed, the secretary was told.

"Factories with products that are mainly expertable cannot compete with eastern concerns who have the advantage of cheap water transportation," one business man told Secretary Hurley. "What we regard as excessive rail rates ar ruining us up here. Frankly, the channel, if constructed, might not take care of all the commerce, but it would prove a crowbar with which to force the rail rates down."

Cheaper Water Rates Cited.

The secretary was told that it is cheaper to ship goods down the Mississippi through the Gulf of Mexico to the Panama canal and then up the west coast to Seattle than to ship directly by rail from the twin cities to the coast.

First hand evidence of the vastness of the problem confronting them in channel work on the Mississippi was gained by Secretary Hurley and t engineers in their short voyage today aboard their government vessel.

Time and again scenic beauties diverted the experts from their engineering studies. Then there would be ominous rumblings as the boat scraped bottom and their attention was brought back to the fact that the stream is lower than it has been in years.

The Sen. Allen anchored tonight in Lake Pepin. Tomorrow the river expedition begins in earnest.

In an address at St. Paul Secretary Hurley said:

"In the past rivers have been improved with a view to local needs, but the transportation problem is a national rather than a local one.

"Dislocated and disconnected river and harbor projects will not serve our present or future needs. We must develop a unified national system. Waterways must connect important cities and areas of the interior of our country. Industry of the seaport must be linked to the agricultural hinterland of the west and northwest.

"Under the policy of the President and under the authorization contained in the recent rivers and harbors bill, the great lakes will be connected with the Mississippi system and the gulf of Mexico through the Illinois waterways.

Urges Use of Present Channel.

"What this audience is most intensely interested in is the development of a nine foot channel on the upper Mississippi. For many years the federal government has been improving the upper Mississippi. The use which has been made of the existing project of a six foot channel has been disappointing. The northwest is not using the present transportation facilities on the river between St. Louis and the Twin Cities to the capacity of the facilities.

"Some one has construed the statements of administrative policy made by the President in which he said 'the completion of the Mississippi system within the next five years' to mean a completion of the channel depth ultimately required. This, of course, is a rather strained construction of his statement.

Tell of 5 Year Plans.

"It must be apparent that by the completion of the Mississippi system in five years was meant the connection of isolated projects, the unification of the Mississippi waterway into a unified transportation system connection with the great lakes and the great northwest.

"But work has already been commenced on the stream under the direction of the President by corps of army engineers and the construction commenced looking to an eventual nine foot channel."

FARMER IS ARRESTED AS A SUSPECT IN THE BURNING OF WOMAN

Reed City, Ill., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Dastita Rinaldo, 63 year old retired farmer, was arrested today for questioning in connection with the torch slaying of his foster son's wife, Mrs. Tranquita Rinaldo.

Rinaldo lives on a farm adjoining the younger couple's, and he was mentioned in extortion letters received by the woman.

Sheriff Ernest Fleming said three letters which the younger Rinaldo had turned over to him several months ago threatened death to Mrs. Rinaldo unless $4,300 was given to Dastita Rinaldo. The letters were all signed "Angelo."

The sheriff said he learned from the woman's husband that Dastita Rinaldo had charged her with stealing a $4,000 check and that she denied it.

Mrs. Rinaldo told a doctor before she died Saturday night that the man who assaulted her and set fire to her clothing wore a mask, but that she thought he was about 43 years old. She said two other men stood nearby as the man threw gasoline over her, lighted it, and left her to die.

CAPTIVE BETRAYS ZION CITY POLICE CAPTAIN'S FAITH

Early last evening Capt. Samuel Casperson of the Zion City police boarded a northbound Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee electric train at Evanston with Robert Thompson, 18 years old, of Zion City. Thompson, who was wanted for the theft of an automobile owned by John Simon of Zion City, had been captured by the Evanston police.

Capt. Casperson had combined business with pleasure. Before claiming his prisoner he visited friends in Evanston. For this reason he did not use a squad car. He declined to drive back in the stolen car. The captain seated his prisoner next to a window and took a position beside him. He scorned a suggestion that he use handcuffs.

As the train neared Glencoe Thompson said he was thirsty and asked to be permitted to go to the water cooler in the forward end of the car.

"Nothing doing," Casperson said. "I'll take no chances with you. You stay right here and I'll get you a drink."

Capt. Casperson returned with the cup, to confront an empty seat. Thompson had hurried to the rear of the car and alighted as the train neared a station.

Lightning Causes $100,000 Fire at Colgate University

Hamilton, N. Y., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Fire, believed to have originated in a lightning crash, tonight wrecked West hall, the first building constructed at Colgate university. The damage is believed to be $100,000. The fire, which was discovered at 10:30 p. m., had made great headway in the top story. The fire department, which was called after two hours, succeeded in getting the fire under control. The building was constructed in 1827.

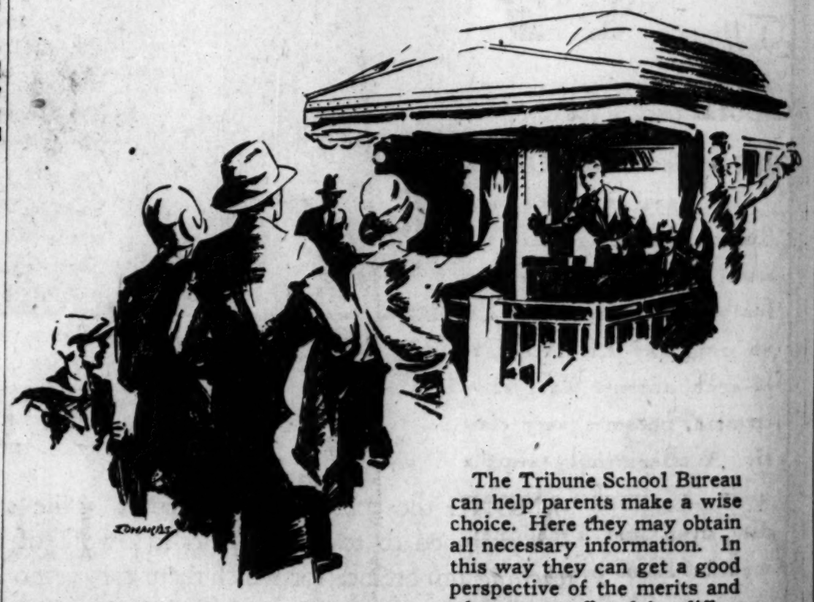
TRIBUNE SCHOOL BUREAU makes selecting the right school easy



WHICH school is best suited for your son or daughter? Often it is a difficult question for parents to decide. Unfamiliarity with schools frequently stands in the way of making the best choice in this exceedingly important matter.

The Tribune School Bureau can help parents make a wise choice. Here they may obtain all necessary information. In this way they can get a good perspective of the merits and advantages offered by different schools. Experienced attendants, thoroughly familiar with helping parents select schools for their children, further simplify the problem.

There is no charge or obligation whatever for this service. Make use of it! Telephone, write, or call in person.

Good Will Makes Better Railroads

A Message from L. A. Downs, President, Illinois Central System.

Many great improvements have been effected in railroading in the last generation. One of the greatest of these is in the relations of the railroads with the public.

Every mature person today can remember when railroads were viewed and treated with suspicion, distrust and open hostility. It seemed then to be the prevailing idea that they must be held in restraint. Regulation developed into strangulation.

All that is changed now. The prevailing attitude toward the railroads is one of fairness based upon good will. As a result the railroads are better servants of the public. The splendid record which they have made in the last decade has been due in no small part to this enlightened attitude.

Good will has proved its value to the railroads and to the public. It deserves to be continued. To its continuance our railroad, with the co-operation of its many friends, hopes to contribute.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

CO-OPS IN DEBT 170 MILLION TO U. S. FOR LOANS

Competition with Private Business Is Alleged.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—The extent to which the federal farm board has plunged the government into the business of financing farm coöperatives was shown today by the disclosure that the coöperative groups owe the board approximately 170 million dollars.

This credit figure on the farm board's books represents, in the main, low interest loans made on liberal terms to associations engaged in handling, storing, processing, and marketing agricultural commodities in competition, to a large degree, with established private firms. The board's financial activity apparently has the effect, if not intent, of making Uncle Sam the business rival of these private agencies.

Indirectly using public money in the form of facility loans from the farm board, many of the coöperatives have expanded their properties by leasing or buying grain elevators, warehouses, creameries and milk stations and fruit canning establishments.

Details Kept from Public.

No detailed information regarding the finances of the farm board or its beneficiaries is available to the public, due to the board's secrecy policy, which its members say is similar to that of a banking institution. The names of indebted coöperatives, the amounts advanced them by the board, and the amounts repaid are treated as confidential, and a new request for this information today was met with the usual explanation that it cannot be made public without putting the cooperatives at a disadvantage by disclosing their standings to competitors.

In general, however, it is known that during the thirteen months since its formation the board has paid out 240 million dollars, of which about 70 millions has been repaid with $1,000,000 in interest, leaving close to 170 million dollars outstanding and 81 million dollars uncommitted. Three months ago the board had approximately 126 million dollars outstanding.

Debts Owed by Co-Op Groups.

The 170 million dollars outstanding is divided roughly among the commodity groups as follows: Wheat and grain, $83,000,000; cotton, $60,000,000; wool and mohair, $8,500,000; raisins and grapes, $8,000,000; dairy products, $6,000,000; Florida citrus, $2,000 000; live stock, $1,250,000; tobacco, $500,000; sour cherries, $400,000, and rice, $400,000.

Other commodity groups to which the board's financial aid is available are apples, beans, dried fruits, figs, honey, poultry and eggs, and grass seeds.

In assisting the various coöperatives the board operates largely through national or regional agencies. The five of national scope already organized are the Farmers National Grain corporation, the National Wool Marketing corporation, the American Cotton Coöperative association, the National Live Stock Marketing association, and the National Pecan Marketing association.

From Stabilization to Loans.

Two stabilization corporations also were set up in 1929, one for cotton and the other for wheat. The latter, the grain stabilization corporation, now is holding 60 million bushels of wheat which it bought prior to last June in an effort to hold up the sagging wheat market. Recently, however, the board has ceased the stabilization activities and its money now is flowing out in the form of loans to the coöperatives.

That the federal government is definitely committed to the policy of fostering coöperatives has been stressed repeatedly by farm board members.

"The agricultural marketing act commits this country definitely to the principle of coöperative marketing," stated Chairman Alexander Legge in a recent address. "It proposes to farmers that they organize so that collectively they can control the production and merchandising of their crops. It directs the farm board to help farmers in building their own organizations for this collective action and give counsel and financial assistance to these coöperative agencies in the formative period of their operation."

Said to Ruin Competitors.

What has caused the greatest criticism of the farm board is the fact that by putting vast sums of cheap taxpayers' money into the hands of the coöperatives it is threatening to ruin their legitimate, private competitors. Resentment has risen especially in places where coöperatives have bought creameries and canneries and operated them in competition with concerns which must fight back without government assistance.

When charged with a war of extermination against private business enterprises the reply of the farm board officials has been that the board is merely carrying out the dictates of the farm relief act, which specifically provide for loans by the farm board to coöperatives, among other things for "the construction or acquisition by purchase or lease of physical marketing facilities for preparing, handling, storing, processing, or merchandising agricultural commodities or their food products."

In his controversy last spring with the United States chamber of commerce Mr. Legge likened the farm middlemen to the buggy business, which was ruined by automobiles.

Argument Used by Legge.

More recently he said to an audience of farmers:

"Before farmers pay too much attention to those who are criticizing the coöperative market program we would like to suggest that they study the motive behind that opposition.

"When those who in the past have been handling agricultural products subscribe huge sums of money to fight the efforts of farmers to improve the marketing system by organizing their own machinery it is well to figure for yourselves whether these people, notwithstanding what they say publicly, are engaged in this campaign to protect the interests of the farmer or to protect their own interests."

Notwithstanding this and similar assertions admitting that private business firms are fighting to "protect their own interests," Mr. Legge and other board members have insisted that "there is nothing of government in business" in their program. The board, they declare, is merely helping the farmers to help themselves.

New York Milk Case Cited.

The latest instance of trouble between the board and private business interests was the demand by Aaron Sapiro, counsel for the Harlem and Bronx Milk Dealers' association of New York, that the board rescind a $4,000,000 loan to the Dairymen's league. Sapiro charged that the league is about to use the money for "the acquisition of the wholesale distribution of milk in the city of New York, threatening ruin to legitimate competitors and a possible abuse of such control against the consuming public of the city."

Mr. Sapiro also has placed a complaint before the federal trade commission. His protests to the farm board, so far, have gone unheeded, as have earlier protests from other concerns.

Distributors for the Chicago Area

We take pleasure in announcing that so well known and experienced an organization, with a personnel so well seasoned and of such high standing, is taking over the distribution of Hudson and Essex cars in the Chicago area.

To entrust so important a territory to any man or organization bespeaks the completeness of our confidence.

On his part Mr. Butler says "Both Hudson Motor Car Co. and ourselves consider that Chicago is naturally the world's largest single market for Hudson and Essex cars. Our every step will be directed toward realizing its possibilities.

"We have been attracted not only by the merit and popularity of Hudson and Essex cars but as well by the Hudson management's habit of prompt action to meet every merchandising situation. Its recent sharp reduction of prices meets the economic demands of today's buyers.

"The present system of Hudson-Essex dealers in every neighborhood will be continued and strengthened. No branches will be operated, but every main area will be served by a dealer who owns and conducts his own business. It is our plan through intelligent service to increase the satisfaction and value which every Hudson-Essex owner has in his car."

PROPOSES WORLD PARLEY TO FIGHT BUSINESS SLUMP

Government Chiefs Would Participate.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Sept. 1.—Calling of an international round table conference of leading cabinet members of the principal governments of the world today was urged by Finance Minister Junnosuke Inoue as the most effective means of combatting the present world wide business depression.

The bringing together of a group of active government executives, empowered to speak and act for their governments, is imperative, Mr. Inoue said. An ordinary informal gathering of business leaders would be useless, he said.

Premier Backs Plan.

Mr. Inoue has obtained the pledge of Premier Hamaguchi and all but two fellow cabinet members to support this scheme. The Japanese statesman, who is regarded as one of the important banking executives of the far east, and who is as powerful in the present administration as Andrew Mellon is in the Hoover cabinet, is convinced a conference of this nature must eventually be called.

If none of the other governments is willing to take the initiative, the Japanese finance minister declared he would have invitations sent out by this country, although there is no precedent of Japan ever having called an international parley.

Believes U. S. Would Agree.

The United States, Mr Inoue believes, would readily participate in such a conference, as one of the principal subjects to be taken up would be the solving of the international controversy over its high tariff walls. It is Mr. Inoue's belief that the United States is greatly concerned over the retaliatory measures several nations have already taken and of others that are projected, and is anxious to reach an amicable arrangement profitable to all countries.

Japan, he said, is ready to meet any country more than half way in lowering its tariff rates. This, in the face of the present government sponsored campaign to foster the use of domestic goods. The Japanese government, he declared, is prepared to make great sacrifices if an international understanding can be reached.

Proposes Exchange of Goods.

Insofar as the interests of the United States and Japan would be affected by such a parley, the Japanese statesman explained that this country would propose that America purchase outright Japan's surplus of raw silk stocks, aggregating 200,000 boxes, and in return that Japan take over America's surplus of cotton, running up to a million bales.

"The main idea of the scheme naturally is to move goods, to have a steady flow of merchandise and thus start credit circulating," the cabinet leader asserted.

Insofar as the interests of the rest of the world are concerned, an important proposition to be discussed at the parley would be that of having America loosen its purse strings for the convenience of international borrowers, Mr. Inoue explained.

"America," he pointed out, "has become a little less liberal as a lender, and a changed attitude in this matter by allowing a part of the more than 100 billion dollars in gold in the vaults of the reserve banks circulate in the international sluice way of specie will go a long way to alter the general world business outlook.

BANK ROBBER DIES IN PRISON FROM EFFECTS OF 2 HUNGER STRIKES

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Pneumonia brought on by a second hunger strike in the Nebraska penitentiary today ended the spectacular career of Johnny Brown, 26, a Kansas and Nebraska bank robber. Warden W. T. Fenton said Brown stopped eating three weeks ago and, though willing to take food for the last few days, was unable to retain it. Pneumonia attacked him and he died in three days.

His 37 day strike last winter started when Fenton locked him in the prison jail as an agitator. Warden Fenton said the man gave no reason for starting the second strike that ended with his death.

Brown was under a 20 year sentence for robbing a South Sioux City, Neb., bank of $20,000 in 1925.

ENGINEERS BACK WOLFE'S APPEAL FOR BRIDGE BONDS

After an examination of the proposal of Commissioner of Public Works Wolfe for a bond issue of $11,600,000 to construct three new major bridges, two minor ones, and modernize a number of existing bridges, the civic affairs committee of the Western Society of Engineers approved the request. Wolfe has asked the city council to put the bond issue on the Nov. 4 ballot.

"After a comparison of costs of work done of similar character your committee reached the unanimous conclusion that the estimates of cost were liberal enough to cover the costs of the proposed work; but, on the other hand, they were not excessively high but were evidently prepared so as to present a conservative figure," read the committee's report to the society's board of directors.

The committee made a trip over the existing bridges before making its favorable report. The recommendation of the committee was adopted by the board of direction with a recommendation that the proposed construction proceed without delay.

GIRL GUEST OF TWO CHICAGOANS FALLS TO DEATH

New York, Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Two young Chicagoans, George Jaeger, 29, a broker and Joseph Cummings, 31, both said to be socially prominent, spent an uncomfortable three hours at a police station here today explaining the death of a Bernard college student in their company.

The girl, Gertrude Burke, 25, of this city, fell from a second story window during a "party" and died later of her injuries in a hospital. The police were convinced that her death was "just an unfortunate accident."

Jaeger and Cummings said they had "picked up" the girl and two others while strolling along Fifth avenue shortly after midnight and taken them to the apartment of a friend, Egerton Vinson, on Fifty-fifth street. Vinson was not at home. The Chicagoans explained the episode as follows:

"We met the three girls on Fifth avenue, and invited them to a taxi ride. We had come from Chicago and had left our bags at the Princeton club, Park avenue and 38th street.

"We drove there and got our bags while the girls waited in the cab. Then we went to Vinson's apartment. After a short stay, the Goldman girls, Ida and Nettie, left. Miss Burke stayed a few minutes longer, then went to the window to call to her friends to wait for her. She leaned against the screen and fell out."

The Goldman girls were questioned at length but later were released.

POSTAL SURVEY EXPLAINED BY LOCAL CHIEFS

Deny Regular Workers 'Lose Places.

A survey of postal conditions in Chicago, undertaken several months ago by inspectors from Washington, has resulted in many complaints to the postmaster's office, some of them expressing the fear that large numbers of employés would be thrown out of work and protesting against a supposed reduction in the mail service here. The purpose of the postal business survey has been misunderstood, according to Postmaster Lueder and his assistants.

"Not a single full time letter carrier or postal clerk has been thrown out of work as a result of the survey and we do not expect any to lose their jobs," Assistant Postmaster C. P. Scheel said yesterday.

Survey National in Scope.

"This survey was undertaken with a view of economizing in the post office department and it is national in scope. The mail systems are being studied in the various cities and changes are being made when found necessary to the demands of sound business policy. In Chicago, postal receipts have shown substantial decreases over last year and there has been a reduction in the amount of mail handled.

"Receipts here during July were 12 per cent less than the receipts of July, 1929, which amounts to approximately $1,000,000. The normal increase in receipts for a month over the same month for the previous year is 7 or 8 per cent. Parcel post matter handled by the Chicago offices has fallen off about 30 per cent since the first of the year and the first class mail has decreased about 10 per cent.

No Regular Workers Discharged.

"In view of these reductions, the inspectors found that adequate service could be rendered and at the same time money saved by the postoffice. Deliveries were reduced from five to four a day in the loop and from three to two in residential sections. This has caused no additional burdens on the carriers because of the decrease in the amount of mail.

"No regular employés are being discharged but fewer substitutes are needed under the present regulations. We have seven or eight hundred available substitute clerks and as many substitute carriers which are used during rush seasons. Some of these will be affected."

Mr. Scheel said that few of the vacancies left by the retirement on pensions of seventy-five veterans in recent weeks would have to be filled because their work was light in view of their age.

HOME OF PROHIBITION CRUSADER IS BURNED BY TERRORIST BAND

Englewood, N. J., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Bootleg terrorists, seeking revenge for his dry crusading, saturated with gasoline the $50,000 home of Robert Renner, rich real estate dealer in Norwood, N. J., early today, and then touched it off.

The entire interior of the handsome richly furnished home was burned out. Renner, his wife and two little children were spending the week-end on the family yacht at Sandy Hook, and the servants had taken the holiday off.

A year ago Renner was police supervisor of Norwood and waged relentless warfare against bootleggers.

Georgia Mayor Bars Sale of Black Shirt Publication

Athens, Ga., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Mayor A. G. Dudley issued an order here today prohibiting the American Fascist organization, or "Black Shirts," from selling its publication, "The Black Shirt, on the streets of that city. Claims have been made that the Black Shirts are trying to get employers to dismiss Negro workers.

In a statement accompanying his order, the mayor said the organization "has no right to dictate to employers of labor." He said further that "such an anti-social, anti-racial organization, apparently set up for the personal profit of its organizers, will not be tolerated in the community."

COOK ENTITLED TO 4 ADDITIONAL CONGRESS SEATS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Cook county will be entitled to elect at least four additional members of the house of representatives in 1932 under an equal reapportionment of seats, according to the 1930 census.

This was shown today in an analysis of the new Illinois county population figures as applied to congressional districts, demonstrating the present representation to be out of balance between Chicago and downstate. The census discloses a heavy shift of population Chicagoward.

Its Up to Legislature.

Illinois now has twenty-seven seats in the house and it will keep the same number. The change will be in the realignment of districts within the state, a task devolving on the state legislature.

Two of the state's twenty-seven representatives now are elected from the state at large, fifteen from downstate counties, and ten from Cook and Lake counties, the latter county sharing with Cook in the election of one. Under an equal reapportionment Cook and Lake counties would elect fourteen representatives and downstate thirteen, two downstate districts and two positions of congressmen at large being eliminated.

Illinois' total population under the 1930 census is 7,607,684. Divided into 27 mathematically equal districts, this would give each district 281,766 inhabitants.

Cook and Lake Counties.

Cook and Lake counties, with a combined population of 4,075,925, have only 10 representatives in congress, while the downstate counties with an aggregate population of 3,531,759, have 15.

On the basis of 281,766 persons in each district Cook and Lake counties should control 14,465 seats while downstate should control 12,535 seats. By giving Cook and Lake an even 14 and downstate an even 13.

Each Cook and Lake county district has an average population of 407,592 while each downstate district has an average population of 235,450. As the entire 1930 population of Lake county is only 103,397, or less than one-half the mathematically fair number of 281,766 for one district, all four of the additional representatives accruing to Cook and Lake would be elected from Cook.

5 Downstate Districts.

In the decade since 1920 five of the downstate districts have lost in population while only six made substantial gains. The downstate districts, their present representatives, and their comparative 1920 and 1930 populations are as follows:

	1920.	1930.
11. Frank R. Reid [Rep.]	267,694	356,569
12. J. T. Buckbee [Rep.]	259,169	292,912
13. W. R. Johnson [Rep.]	170,013	178,244
14. John C. Allen [Rep.]	192,952	198,476
15. Vacant	215,525	213,331
16. W. E. Hull [Rep.]	224,930	234,704
17. Homer W. Hall [Rep.]	174,545	195,297
18. W. P. Holaday [Rep.]	225,735	226,522
19. Charles Adkins [Rep.]	256,252	274,273
20. H. T. Rainey [Dem.]	169,292	158,194
21. F. M. Ramey [Rep.]	237,397	266,240
22. Ed M. Irwin [Rep.]	290,834	343,535
23. W. W. Arnold [Dem.]	222,960	213,903
24. Vacant	179,836	161,052
25. E. E. Denison [Rep.]	266,344	250,706

Examination of the 1930 downstate district populations show that only three have sufficient residents to bring them up to the required 281,766 for the average reapportioned district.

HEFLIN ALABAMA TICKET PLEDGES REORGANIZATION

Independents Carry War to Democrats.

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 1.—(AP)—In accepting formal nomination by an independent convention today Senator J. Thomas Heflin, named to succeed himself, and his running mates defined the issues on which they will base their campaign — among them "reorganization of the Democratic party in Alabama."

Hugh A. Locke of Birmingham was nominated for governor on the ticket with Senator Heflin, and Dempsey M. Powell of Greenville was named for lieutenant governor.

The three were barred from the regular Democratic primary under the ruling of the state executive committee, which excluded as candidates those persons who failed to support the party's presidential ticket in 1928.

"Down with the 27."

The twenty-seven members of the committee who voted for the rule were attacked by each of the independent nominees in his speech of acceptance. The emblem of the independents—a liberty bell in a circle across the top of which is inscribed "white control," beneath which are thirteen stars representing the original colonies — carries the inscription "Down with the 27."

A resolution declaring the convention reaffirmed its belief in the prohibition plank of the Democratic platform of the Houston convention in 1928 was unanimously adopted.

"Dry Wing of the Party."

The keynote of the convention was sounded by J. B. Wadsworth of Gadsden who declared "we are not a third party—we are the dry wing of the Democratic party."

Senator Heflin declared the fight would be carried on vigorously until the election on Nov. 4, and predicted the election of himself and those running with him.

He also said:

"I want the vote of every white Protestant in this state to help us drive the Raskob-Tammany crowd out."

He charged that the action of the 27 committeemen who "put up the bars" was done at the direction of John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee.

The state independent organization was completed with an executive committee of one from each congressional district of the state.

DIES FROM KNIFE WOUNDS.

Peter Loftus, 38 years old, 3728 Emerald avenue, one of five men wounded last Friday in a dagger fight over a bottle of moonshine in a vacant house at 110 South Peoria street, died yesterday in the county hospital.

THINK IT OVER!

A well known vocational counselor has said: "When the employment situation is bad—and that means that business is bad—the trained man is the one who has a steady job. It is those doing the more unskilled routine work who are laid off. The routine man's work can be done by any one and therefore can be split up and divided among the others. Also, when business is bad, there is less routine work to be done." "Take as an example the work of the accountant in a large firm. Not even the routine bookkeepers are capable of handling it because it requires technical training and knowledge and therefore cannot be divided among them. But accountants are difficult to get because there are not enough of them to meet our present day business needs." Learning accountancy not only enables a man to take advantage of the numberless opportunities to secure a better position, but it is also mighty fine insurance against losing your job. The MURDER at the VICARAGE

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

SYNOPSIS.

Mr. Clement is the vicar of a country village in England. His attractive wife, Griselda, is nearly twenty years his junior. The vicar's young nephew, Dennis, lives with them.

Col. Protheroe, a pompous parishioner, who makes life miserable for his daughter, Lettice, and his second wife, is expected at the vicarage at 6:15 one evening. At 5:30 the vicar is called to visit a dying parishioner and leaves word for the colonel that he will be late. On returning at 7 the vicar meets Lawrence Redding, an artist, who is living in a studio on the vicarage grounds, coming out of the house in an agitated state. The day before the vicar had discovered the artist and Mrs. Protheroe in each other's arms and they had confessed to him their love for each other. In his study the vicar finds the colonel sprawled across the desk, shot through the head, murdered apparently, as no weapon is found. Dr. Haydock is sent for and he says Protheroe has been dead half an hour and calls the police. A note which the colonel started to write to the vicar is headed 6:30. A clock, overturned when the colonel fell forward, stopped at 6:22, but it was always kept a quarter of an hour fast.

Lawrence Redding confesses he murdered Col. Protheroe. Shortly after Mrs. Protheroe tells Col. Melchett, the chief constable of the county, that she shot her husband.

Melchett and the vicar call on Miss Marple, whose house adjoins the vicarage. She tells them she saw Mrs. Protheroe going to the vicarage about 6:15.

INSTALLMENT XIV.

SHOWING UP THE CONSTABLE.

"Yes," said Miss Marple. "I saw her turn the corner of the house. I suppose the colonel wasn't there yet, because she came back almost immediately, and went down the lawn to the studio—that building there. The one the vicar lets Mr. Redding use as a studio."

"I see. And—you didn't happen to hear a shot, Miss Marple?" asked Col. Melchett.

"I didn't hear a shot then," said Miss Marple.

"But you did hear one some time?"

"Yes, I think there was a shot somewhere in the woods. But quite five or ten minutes afterwards—and, as I say, out in the woods. At least, I think so. It couldn't have been—surely it couldn't have been——"

She stopped, pale with excitement.

"Yes, yes, we'll come to all that presently," said Col. Melchett. "Please go on with your story. Mrs. Protheroe went down to the studio?"

"Yes, she went inside and waited. Presently Mr. Redding came along the lane from the village. He came to the vicarage gate, looked all round——"

"And saw you, Miss Marple."

"As a matter of fact, he didn't see me," said Miss Marple flushing slightly. "Because, you see, just at that minute I was bending right over—trying to get up one of those nasty dandelions, you know. So difficult. And then he went through the gate and down to the studio."

"He didn't go near the house?"

"O! no, he went straight to the studio. Mrs. Protheroe came to the door to meet him and then they both went inside."

Here Miss Marple contributed a singularly eloquent pause.

"Perhaps she was sitting to him?" I suggested.

"Perhaps," said Miss Marple.

"And they came out—when?"

"About ten minutes later."

"That was roughly?"

"The church clock had chimed the half hour. They strolled out through the garden gate and along the lane, and just at that minute Dr. Stone came down the path leading to the hall, and climbed over the stile and joined them. They all walked towards the village together. At the end of the lane, I think, but I can't be quite sure, they were joined by Miss Cram. I think it must have been Miss Cram because her skirts were so short."

"My dear Col. Melchett, you know what young women are nowadays."

"You must have very good eyesight, Miss Marple, if you can observe as far as that."

"I was observing a bird," said Miss Marple. "A golden crested wren, I think he was. A sweet little fellow. I had my glasses out, and that's how I happened to see Miss Cram [if it was Miss Cram, and I think so] join them."

"Ah! well, that may be so," said Col. Melchett. "Now since you seem very good at observing, did you happen to notice, Miss Marple, what sort of expression Mrs. Protheroe and Mr. Redding had as they passed along the lane?"

"They were smiling and talking," said Miss Marple. "They seemed very happy to be together, if you know what I mean."

"They didn't seem upset or disturbed in any way?"

"O! no. Just the opposite."

"Deuced odd," said the colonel. "There's something deuced odd about the whole thing."

Miss Marple suddenly took our breath away by remarking in a placid voice:

"Has Mrs. Protheroe been saying that she committed the crime now?"

"Upon my soul," said the colonel. "How did you come to guess that?"

"Well, I rather thought it might happen," said Miss Marple. "I think dear Lettice thought so, too. She's really a very sharp girl. Not always very scrupulous, I'm afraid. So Anne Protheroe says she killed her husband. Well, well, I don't think it's true. No, I'm almost sure it isn't true. Not with a woman like Anne Protheroe. Although one never can be quite sure about any one, can one? At least that's what I've found. When does she say she shot him?"

"At twenty minutes past six. Just after speaking to you."

Miss Marple shook her head slowly and pityingly. The pity was, I think, for two full grown men being so foolish as to believe such a story. At least that is what we felt like.

"What did she shoot him with?"

"A pistol."

"Where did she find it?"

"She brought it with her."

"Well, that she didn't do," said Miss Marple with unexpected decision. I can swear to that. She'd no such thing with her."

"You mightn't have seen it."

"Of course I should have seen it."

"If it had been in her handbag?"

"She wasn't carrying a handbag."

"Well, it might have been concealed—er—upon her person."

Miss Marple directed a glance of sorrow and scorn upon him.

"My dear Col. Melchett. You know what young women are nowadays. Not ashamed to show exactly how the Creator made them. She hadn't so much as a handkerchief in the top of her stocking."

Melchett was obstinate.

"You must admit that it all fits in," he said. "The time, the overturned clock pointing to 6:22——"

Miss Marple turned on me.

"Do you mean you haven't told him about that clock yet?"

"What about the clock, Clement?"

I told him. He showed a good deal of annoyance.

"Why on earth didn't you tell Slack this last night?"

"Because," I said, "he wouldn't let me."

"Nonsense, you ought to have insisted."

"Probably," I said, "Inspector Slack behaves quite differently to you than he does to me. I had no earthly chance of insisting."

"It's an extraordinary business altogether," said Melchett. "If a third person comes along and claims to have done this murder, I shall go into a lunatic asylum."

"If I might be allowed to suggest——" murmured Miss Marple.

"Well?"

"If you were to tell Mr. Redding what Mrs. Protheroe has done and then explain that you don't really believe it is her, and then if you were to go to Mrs. Protheroe and tell her that Mr. Redding is all right—why, then, they might each of them tell you the truth. And the truth is helpful, though I daresay they don't know very much themselves, poor things."

"It's all very well, but they are the only two people who had a motive for making away with Protheroe."

"O! I wouldn't say that, Col. Melchett," said Miss Marple.

"Why, can you think of any one else?"

"O! yes, indeed. Why," she counted on her fingers, "one, two three, four, five, six—yes, and a possible seven. I can think of at least seven people who might be very glad to have Col. Protheroe out of the way."

The colonel looked at her feebly.

"Seven people? In St. Mary Mead?"

Miss Marple nodded brightly.

"Mind you, I name no names," she said. "That wouldn't be right. But I'm afraid there's a lot of wickedness in the world. A nice honorable upright soldier like you doesn't know about these things, Col. Melchett."

I thought the chief constable was going to have apoplexy.

Melchett's remarks on the subject of Miss Marple as we left the house were far from complimentary.

"I really believe that wizened up old maid thinks she knows everything there is to know. And hardly been out of this village all her life. Preposterous. What can she know of life?"

I said mildly that though doubtless Miss Marple knew next to nothing of Life with a capital L, she knew practically everything that went on in St. Mary Mead.

Melchett admitted that grudgingly. "She was a valuable witness—particularly valuable from Mrs. Protheroe's point of view.

Good morning!

Again the glamorous Garbo! This time in the screen adaptation of Edward Sheldon's play, which Doris Keane made the talk of towns a number of years ago.

The story details the romance between a famous diva who has been loved by many men, and a young minister who is the first man she has ever really loved.

Miss Garbo's portrayal of Rita Cavallini is exquisitely sympathetic and appealing. Lewis Stone, as her middle aged, latest, and probably truest lover, does distinctive work. He would! He is a fine and gallant gentleman to whom you feel Rita SHOULD have surrendered her heart, which you KNOW she would never have lost to the sort of staring eyed fanatic the young rector of St. Giles' becomes under the interpretation of Gavin Gordon. With Hollywood full of men a Rita COULD adore, one ponders over the why of such miscasting. How much, I wonder, did they pay Elliott Nugent, who could have done Tom Armstrong so much better, to sit by the fire and listen to the old man Tom relating the story of Tom when he was a youth and loved an actress?

From the production standpoint "Romance" is a smooth and lovely thing. The dialogue is compelling; minor parts are well played and the story has body. And Greta Garbo in the crinolines of 1865, talking in her marvelous, husky voice, is, as always, heat Great Garbo.

Good-by, darlings! See you—comparatively—soon!

Chicago Party Finds Many Huron Indian Relics; Returns Home

Commander Eugene McDonald and members of his archeological party returned yesterday in his yacht Mizpah from their expedition in quest of relics of the Huron Indians. Many were found on Mantoulin island, where most of the exploring was done. The party ocvered 1,831 miles on the tour.

The chief exhibit of the expedition is the skeleton of an Indian chief from 500 to 1,000 years old. It was left at the Warren foundation at Three Oaks, Mich., by Dr. George R. Fox. The other exhibits will be turned over to the foundation, the Ontario Provincial museum at Toronto, and the Field museum.

Among the exhibits are ornaments, trinkets, and utensils of the Huron tribe of the period before the coming of explorers and Jesuit missionaries.

A story published in THE TRIBUNE Sunday, Aug. 31, read that 8 year old Harry Schmidt, 1828 North Lowell avenue, died of injuries from a dive into a tank of the Beilfuss natatorium, 1725 North Springfield avenue. Investigation by the police disclosed his injuries were from a fall from a freight car, after leaving the natatorium, according to Warner Gerhardt, managing director of the natatorium.

RAVINIA OPERA ENDS FOR THIS SEASON WITH GALA PROGRAM

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The Ravinia season expired last night in what it would be conservative to describe as a blaze of glory. It was about as gay a closing night as is on record, at least hereabouts. Even the weather contributed thunder rumblings to help out the most dramatic moments. The spirits of an overflowing crowd took care of the gay episodes.

The program was one known as gala, meaning that three operas contributed an act each. By that means the greater number of the most famous artists of the Ravinia company had their turn on the stage. The evening opened with the second act, or cabaret scene, of "La Rondine." This was followed by the fourth act of "Les Huguenots," and the joyous finish was the last act of the "Bartered Bride."

In most respects this was an unexceptional choice. True it would take some degree of imagination and some disregard of obvious facts to rate "Les Huguenots" very high among the world's greatest music. But it is effective music of an older theatrical school. It needs some highly specialized singing to put it across. Therefore with singers like Miss Gall, Mr. Martinelli and Mr. Rothier, all of whom are expert artists in this style of singing, not to mention Mr. Danise, and a chorus, made up in part of other principals, it went across strikingly. Even with this extra good performance one is still able to take pleasure in the memory of "La Rondine" and its gay music with Miss Bori and Mr. Johnson on one side and the greatly comic Miss Macbeth and Mr. Tokatyan on the other. And there is extra pleasure in the delightful tunes of the "Bartered Bride" and its ideal cast, Mme. Rethberg, Miss Maxwell, Mr. Chamlee, Mr. Dangelo, and Mr. Windheim, to name only part of them. The Ravinia company has been admirable throughout the summer and never more admirable than at its close.

Civic Opera Chorus Has First Rehearsal 8 Weeks Before Season

The first rehearsal of the Civic Opera chorus for the coming season was held yesterday in the opera house under the instruction of Maestro Attico Bernabini. The season opens eight weeks from yesterday, on Oct. 27.

Most of the singers have been spending the summer appearing in European opera and said they were glad to get back to Chicago. Herman Tappo, who has been with opera in Chicago for 17 years, returned from Cincinnati, where he sang with the Cincinnati Zoo Opera company.

Australia Has Own Candidate for Governor

Wants King Not to Select Man from Britain.

BY JACK MYERS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Sept. 1.—There is necessity of appointing a successor to Lord Stonehaven as governor general of Australia. His term has expired, while the policy of the present Labor government is that an Australian should be appointed as the representative of the king of England in this commonwealth.

That proposal has aroused keen controversy on the ground that such a step would make a serious departure from the king's previous practice of appointing prominent Englishmen and would damage the links that hitherto have bound Australia to the "other country."

It is well known that the Labor government has suggested to the British government the appointment as governor general of Sir Isaac Isaacs, chief justice of the high court, a man renowned for great intellectual ability, a distinguished linguist and master of literature.

Sir William Irvine, chief justice of the Supreme court of Victoria, recently opposed the appointment of an Australian to the position of governor general, and he has been supported in this attitude by Mr. J. G. Latham, leader of the Nationalist party in the federal parliament.

Their views have been strongly criticized by Mr. W. M. Hughes, formerly prime minister. As he is the most notable authority on constitutional questions in Australia, his contribution to the controversy is of great interest.

Sir William Irvine's arguments in support of his attitude were mainly as follows:

"The right of nomination of a governor general is in the hands of the king, and he is under no obligation to seek advice from his ministers in London, nor to accept such advice if tendered.

"The right of Australia to nominate, or even to suggest, any person as governor general is clearly excluded from the commonwealth constitution, therefore an amendment of the constitution is necessary before such a right can be conferred.

The resolutions of the 1926 imperial conference did not in any way impair this prerogative of the king, nor, so far as Australia is concerned, widen the powers of the dominions."

"Sir William," Mr. Hughes replied, "does not appreciate the extent to which the underlying principles of responsible government go. The relations between the king and his parliament may be crystallized as follows: In theory the king can do everything; in practice he can do nothing except on the advice of his ministers. In theory it is in the king's name that war is declared and peace made; in practice it is the parliament, acting through its executive committee, the government, that does these things. In theory it is the king who confers honors—he is the fountain of honor. In practice all honors are conferred upon the advice of his ministers.

"Sir William imagines that there is a distinction to be drawn between some acts of the king and others—that while the king is obliged to seek the advice of his ministers in ordinary matters, in the appointment of a governor general he acts entirely on his own initiative, and neither seeks nor need accept advice. This is quite wrong. The king must in this, as in all other matters, act only upon the advice of his ministers.

"Sir William's contention that the constitution must be amended before Australia can exercise any power of appointment of a governor general or even suggest it demands short shrift. The constitution of the commonwealth does not define the relations between Britain and Australia, but is concerned only with the distribution of powers between states and commonwealth. When the commonwealth was established the status of the dominions was subordinate, but for the last 10 years Britain has recognized their equality of status with her. She is now merely primus inter pares. In 1901 she was in effect their unchallenged overlord."

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

THE drama came out of its summer coma at the Selwyn theater last night and tottered about the stage as if trying to show what a giddy old goat it can be when it tries. The name of the play is "Lost Sheep;" it has the history of a New York success; and it sounds of if it were the dramatization of a risky story by an author who didn't know exactly how to handle his more or less priceless idea. His timidity in treating his material was partly due, perhaps, to worries over the attitude of the police authorities.

But as sex plays go in this era of many theatrical flagrancies, "Lost Sheep" has the merit of being different. It is a farcical comedy with bawdiness only in its background and its scenery. There isn't a drab in its cast of characters; its antics display no carnal intent; and its love story might have been blessed by the good Queen Victoria. As a mater of fact, in spite of its impudent hints and leering innuendo, "Lost Sheep" bears a family resemblance to the school of Victorian farce which achieved its masterpiece in "Charlie's Aunt." It is a thin spreading of the lower forms of the British sense of humor.

Here is the plot idea of "Lost Sheep"—the seed that fails to germinate: A simple minded clergyman and his slow witted wife, moving to a new pastorate, rent a furnished house that has recently been used for disreputable purposes by a certain Madame and her six female inmates.

The environment shrieks of scarlet sins, but the new tenants—including three comely daughters—are too unworldly to understand. An old client of the place arrives, accompanied by a nice lad out for his first orgy; and misunderstandings, gross on the one side and innocent on the other, ensue. The drunken boy falls in love with the parson's flapper, and is all for marrying her at once, to lift her out of "this life."

The trickle of story runs through three acts without telling much more than is contained in the above paragraph. There is no persuasiveness, no air of reality, about the play. It is, fundamentally, old school farce, insisting that its characters shall remain resolutely dumb to what is going on until time for the curtain to fall on the sentimental ending. A single lucid moment on the part of any one involved in the plot would turn "Lost Sheep" into a ten minute skit.

The performance is smooth and competent in the depiction of provincial English character. Miss Sidney Fox, a lovely young actress, shines out among the others in winsome girlishness as the parson's fairest daughter who has such a curious romance. Cecelia Loftus, her mop of fluffy hair changed from the silver of last year to a pale canary, puts rich, bland humor into the rôle of the mother of the flock. Harry McNaughton, another veteran, plays a rakish patron of the red-plush resort as if he were straight out of P. G. Wodehouse's pages. . . . Altogether, "Lost Sheep" has an excellent cast. As a specimen of play writing, however, it has nothing but its nerve.

900 Illinois Children Enter Aurora Contest

Range from 6 Months to 5 Years at Fair.

Babies and children up to 5 years old are competing at the Central States fair at Aurora, where also are being shown fine corn, potatoes, pigs, cattle, etc. Yesterday there were almost 900 healthy infants in the running for the title of grand championship baby.

Mothers attended by a retinue of admiring relatives swarmed to the better baby conference. But the relatives and other spectators had to be content with a peek through the glass windows of the white booths while a handsome specimen of childhood went through a series of tests.

The staff of white robed doctors and nurses from the state department of health examined yesterday about 150 babies, giving them mental and physical tests. On Thursday after all those registered have been examined money prizes will be awarded to the winners in different classes, ranging from six months to five years. There will be the award of Gov. Emmerson's cup, and some lucky child will be given a Shetland pony for showing the most marked improvement over his record of last year.

"It isn't especially the perfect baby we of the medical profession wish to find," explained Dr. A. H. McLaughlin of Aurora, superintendent of the Better Babies conference. "We want to find the imperfect babies and suggest to their parents how those imperfections may be remedied. If we can make them better men and women, then we have accomplished the object of the conference. Many parents bring their children back each year to show us improvements."

Dr. McLaughlin said the span of life in the last few years has been increased not because people actually live longer, but because more babies live longer.

"You see no crying babies here," Nurse Louise Davis remarked, as she vainly searched for a tearful infant to pose for a cameraman. She is superintendent of nurses of the Public Health association of Aurora, in charge of the conference nursing staff, "and you notice, too, the number of Swedish and Norwegian names on the registration cards. They score wonderfully."

There was too, a majority of babies with golden or dark curls and large wondering eyes. Although no triplets were entered yesterday, there was one set of twins: George and Frank Folkers, 1 year old, sons of Herbert Folkers, Joliet attorney. The babies, he explained, were premature infants each weighing a little over three pounds at birth. They spent twelve weeks in an incubator. They now weigh 19 and 21 pounds, respectively.

More than 40,000 persons attended the fair yesterday, and there were about 5,000 at the motorcycle races. Today there will be a doll buggy parade with a hundred little girls under 5 years old dressed in white trundling tiny decorated carriages.

Schoolgirls were parading in a style revue yesterday wearing costumes they had made themselves. One print house dress cost its wearer only 50 cents. A school dress of blue of a becoming style was made by its owner for $2.50. The 4-H club girls exhibited complete costumes with the suitable accessories for home, school, and party wear.

Veterans of Foreign Wars Urge Nation to Adopt May Day

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Veterans of Foreign Wars, here for their thirty-first annual encampment, were urged today by their president to rally to the defense of the recently created war pension act and to consider making May day "one for patriotism and not red riots."

Hezekiah N. Duff of Lansing, Mich., the president, in his report at the initial business session, urged the veterans to follow the lead of the New York veterans, who held a patriotic rally in Union square last May day an hour before a demonstration under communist auspices.

Resolutions placing the organization on record as opposing the eighteenth amendment, proposing registration of aliens, and deportation of alien radicals promise parliamentary struggles before the convention closes Friday, but consideration was sidetracked as preparations were made for tomorrow's military review to be witnessed by President Hoover.

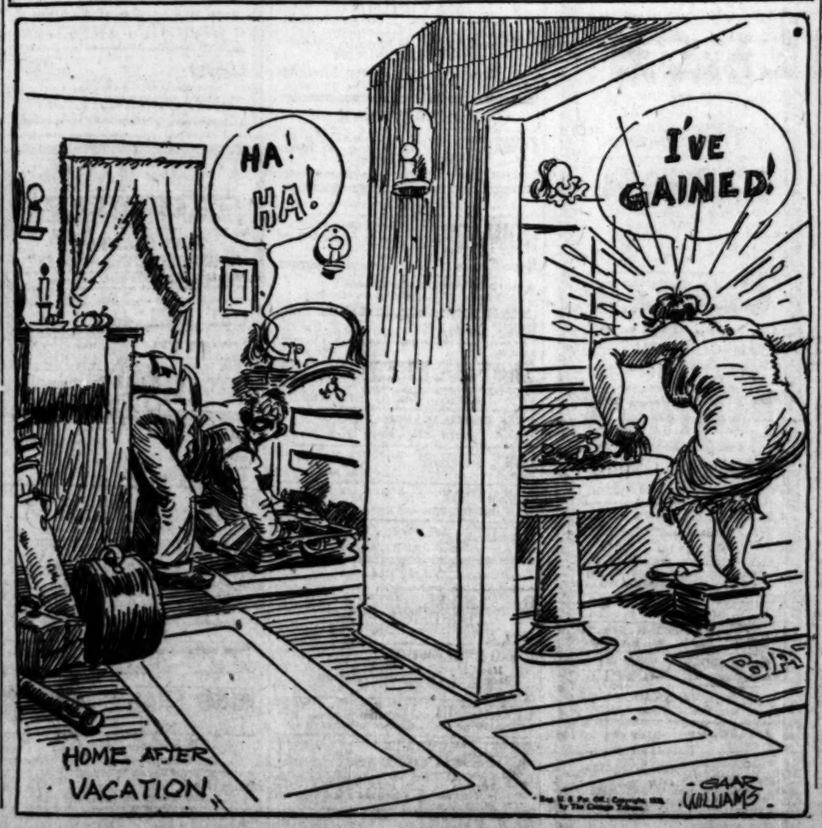
A STRAIN ON THE FAMILY TIE



An Astringent Should Be Used with Discretion

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Speaking of choosing cosmetics to suit individual requirements, the question of what astringent one should use arises frequently.

"What astringent shall I buy?" I am asked repeatedly.

For the young person the answer is, "Don't buy any!" Use only the one you can get for nothing, and that comes out of the cold water faucet. Until one is in the midtwenties, at least, the cold water astringent will be all that is needed, unless there is a condition of distressing oiliness and enlarged pores.

The purpose of an astringent is to tone the skin, give it firmness and correct any sagging tendencies. It's an abnormal state of face upon which these signs are written earlier than the late twenties. It is after 30 one begins the real watch on sagging tissue and inelastic skin, and then the astringent properties are incorporated into daily action to prevent "age slipping." Ordinarily, however, with proper living, good eating, and a decent amount of exercise added to the cold water finish to a face washup the astringent question is dismissed until later years.

Especially must we warn the young woman with a dry or drying skin to avoid the use of astringents. Her need is just the opposite—a bit more oil content in the creams she uses and none of the drying properties an astringent is bound to have.

The older the skin gets, the stronger the astringent preparations may be; for the more relaxed the skin the stronger the preparation must be to supply stimulation. Some of the astringent lotions prepared for the older type of skin are strong enough to make you holler for help, almost, when applied. The use of these should be made only under direct personal supervision of one who is wisely acquainted with the particular individual's need. One think is true, however, about astringent usage, and it is that the cold water habit, begun early, will postpone away beyond middle life the need of any stronger astringent.

Along toward the end of the twenties one might begin to add an astringent wiping to the nightly toilette. Witch hazel, your toilet water, or any of the alcohol preparations are safe, or one of the milder astringent preparations you can buy at a toilet counter may be safely adopted.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

CONSTANT READER: WHERE there is dandruff the treatment requires that the hair be washed twice a week. Gradually increase the length of time between shampoos to every ten days or two weeks. Sixty grains of sulphur mixed with one ounce of vaseline and applied every other night to the scalp with massage is excellent for dandruff.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

GIRL'S DRESS.

A new version of a cape collar that affects sleeves makes this printed broadcloth unusually attractive. The shoulders are tucked, and the French bows at the neck add smart trimming. The pointed outline of the top of the circular, flaring skirt is copied from the adult mode—a detail that will please. A narrow belt marks the normal waistline.

The pattern 2529 comes in sizes 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2 yards of 39 inch material with ¼ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

Romance O. K. for Man of 52 if It Is with His Own Wife

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I am a married man of 52. Have three children, all well educated and now making their own livings. I am fairly well off. Recently I have fallen in love with a young married woman who has no children and is very unhappy in her marriage. I have made no unethical steps or proposals in connection with her. My wife has been a good true wife to me. At the same time I can see clouds in our horizon. I am wondering if it were not better to let things drift, for the young woman is a good woman and I would not want to incriminate her in any way. But I love her and have the highest respect for her. Can you place yourself in my position, Miss Blake?—A. W. T.

I might place myself in your position, but the pose I'd have to adopt would be too ludicrous for any enjoyment.

What ails you is an attack that is liable to overtake a gentlemen of your age looking back over the years of his life and wondering if there isn't something he has missed. It's a perfectly harmless state of mind if you keep it confined there. But a dangerous malady if you let it get out of hand even to asking the younger woman about her state of happiness or unhappiness. It's sort of a one last plunge at the things that belong to youth before age rolls over and commits itself to act its age.

Heavens, I should think any man of ripened years whose sight is still good enough to read the papers would learn from them the folly of these middle-aged swipes at romance. They're so costly—and so ridiculous. One curative for a weakening sense of proportion is that ever present fact of a well lined purse before the young (and temporarily) unhappy other woman is attracted.

Give the little girl that's been trodding along beside you a quarter of a century a hand—on the shoulder, A. W. T. If she's been handling a family for all that time, she probably has a whole well of love to offer in return for just a little of the feeling you're manufacturing for the younger one. Wives and mothers are like that often. The reason that clouds darken the horizon more often than not is the heavy drought on affection through which so many of the unappreciated darlings plug along year after year disappointment after disappointment, sorrow after sorrow.

September Will Qualify as the Wedding Month

BY THALIA

The unusually large number of social activities scheduled for September this year indicates that most of our fashionable townsfolk will be back from their summer wanderings. Thus the season will receive an early impetus. Debut teas, weddings, and several events feature the full program. The weddings include:

Miss Della Bosworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Bosworth of Evanston, to Gordon Lawrence Padley, of London, to take place tomorrow at the Bosworth residence.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Couch to Alfred Norval Mitchell of London, to be solemnized on Sept. 9 at the chapel of St. Luke's Episcopal church in Evanston, followed by a reception at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ira J. Couch, in Glenview.

Miss Charlotte Picher to Joseph D. Purcell Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Purcell, on Friday the 12th, at the residence of Miss Picher's mother, Mrs. Oliver S. Picher, in Hubbard Woods.

Miss Elinor Trostel to John Kranz Notz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Felix J. Notz, to take place at the Milwaukee residence of Miss Trostel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert O. Trostel of that city, on Sept. 13.

Miss Ellen Stuart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Stuart of Hubbard Woods, to George A. Poole Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Poole, at the Winnetka Congregational church, followed by a reception at the Stuart residence on Saturday, Sept. 20.

Miss Jean MacLeish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce MacLeish of Hubbard Woods, to John E. Dern II., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Dern of Utah, on the same day as the Stuart-Poole nuptials, at Christ church, Winnetka, followed by a reception at the MacLeish residence.

Miss Jane Warner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra J. Warner of Lake Forest, to Edison Dick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Blake Dick, at the Lake Forest Presbyterian church on Tuesday, Sept. 23, with a reception followed at the Warner residence.

Miss Beatrice Ripley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Ripley of Winnetka, to Frank Allen Baker Jr. of Kansas City on Sept. 27 in the gardens of the Ripley residence.

The debutantes and the dates of their receptions are as follows:

Miss Hortense Henry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Huntington Henry, on Saturday, Sept. 6, at a tea given by Mr. and Mrs. Henry and Miss Henry's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Swift at Sagamore Hall, Lake Forest.

Miss Jean Armstrong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace W. Armstrong of Winnetka, Sept. 6.

Miss Lucie Jacobs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Jacobs of Winnetka, Sept. 12.

Miss Constance Hasler, and Miss Alice Coonley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Prentiss L. Coonley, a tea to be given by Mrs. Edward S. Hasler in Lake Forest on Sept. 13.

Both Miss Evelyn Bouscaren, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bouscaren of Winnetka and Miss Leila Withers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen L. Withers, also on Sept. 13.

Miss Virginia Lamson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren A. Lamson of Winnetka, Sept. 16.

Miss Caroline Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Solomon B. Smith, and Miss Lucie Jacobs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Jacobs of Winnetka, on Sept. 17.

Miss Elizabeth Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Smith, Sept. 27.

Society attending the closing performance of the Ravinia opera last night was in festive spirits and attire for the gala program that concluded the summer season.

Among those who had groups of box guests were Mr. and Mrs. Truman Brophy, who had with them in the Bernard Eckhart box Mr. and Mrs. George M. Reynolds and Mrs. Allan M. Clement. The Thorne Donnelleys' guests were Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Cudahy and Mr. and Mrs. John Payne Kellogg. Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, Mrs. Leverett Thompson, James Keeley, Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Swift, and Miss Laura Thompson composed another party. Mrs. Harrison Riley's guests included Mr. and Mrs. Earle Reed Jr., Dean and Mrs. Ralph Dever, and Mrs. Charles O. Barnes.

Others in the audience included Mr. and Mrs. Ezra J. Warner, Mr. and Mrs. George Marcey, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Pirie, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Eckstein, the Robert J. Thornes, Mrs. Edward Hines, Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCormick-Adams, the Adlai E. Stevensons, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce MacLeish and their daughter, Miss Jean MacLeish, and the latter's fiancé, John Dern; Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Mrs. William E. Clow, Mr. and Mrs. R. Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Scudder, Col. and Mrs. A. A. Sprague, and Mr. and Mrs. Tiffany Blake.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart J. Templeton of Lake Forest had as their guest for the week-end Miss Anne Wildman of Leesburg, Virginia.

WILL LIVE IN MINNEAPOLIS

MRS. STUART CURTIS JOHNSON.
[Toloff Photo.]

The marriage of Miss Catherine Marie Bunte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Bunte of Wilmette, to Stuart Curtis Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis M. Johnson of Minneapolis, Minn., took place last Wednesday evening at the residence of the bride's parents. A reception followed the ceremony at the Shawnee Country club. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson are motoring through northern Wisconsin and will reside in Minneapolis after Oct. 1.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Vice President Curtis will have as his guest for a few days his son-in-law, Maj. C. P. George Jr., U. S. A., who will arrive early tomorrow by motor from Siasconset, where he has had a vacation with his family, who have been there all the summer in their cottage. Mrs. George and their children will join him here later this month, and they will then establish themselves at Fort Myer, Va., where he is now on duty having the same quarters they occupied some years ago on previous station.

Announcement was made here today of the engagement of Miss Eleanor Rogers Hammer, daughter of Vaidemar T. Hammer of Branford, Conn., to Lewis C. Sherer Jr., now of Chicago, son of Col. and Mrs. Lewis C. Sherer of this city. Young Mr. Sherer is a graduate of West Point, class of '25. He is now in business. Miss Hammer is a junior leaguer and was graduated from Miss Masters' at Dobbs Ferry.

Mrs. Agnes Ashford Robert, daughter of the late Snowden Ashford, was married at noon today to Lieut. Edward Conrad Metcalfe, U. S. N., in the Church of the Covenant, Rev. Irving W. Ketcham officiating. Lieut. Vaughan Michaux, U. S. N., was the best man.

FARM AND GARDEN
BY PAUL POTTER

No time is better than the present for planting evergreens, according to nurserymen. They point out that now the small trees are less active in growth and therefore are disturbed less by replanting.

M. E. Bottomley of Grosse Point, Mich., has listed some of the most desirable of the small evergreens, such as would be suitable for home plantings. For a growth 10 to 15 feet in height he suggests the Irish juniper, mountain laurel, English yew or Siberian arbor-vitae; five to eight feet in height, the cotoneaster, bayberry, dwarf yew, wintercreeper, globe red cedar, ground hemlock or dwarf Mugho pine.

Evergreens should be dry and planted carefully so as not to disturb the earth about the roots. Continual transpiration and the fact that parts of the tops are not cut away to balance any loss in roots are the two main reasons for the special care in transplanting. When the trees are shipped, the advice is to lift the ball of earth about the roots, tie in a burlap sack and soak in water.

When they arrive for planting the evergreens should be unpacked immediately, submerged for a short time in water and then placed in holes both deep and wide enough to allow for loosened soil about the ball in which the roots grow. After the plant is in place the strings should be cut from the burlap, but the cloth need not be taken away, as it holds the roots in place and soon rots away.

Yankees Reach Source of Orinoco River; On Way Back to the U. S.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

CIUDAD BOLIVAR, Venezuela, Sept. 1.—Our expedition arrived here today haggard but happy after a trip of more than 2,000 miles by outboard motor to the headwaters of the Orinoco and back.

The Orihoco originates in at least three streams. On July 30 we reached a point on the main stream fifty miles higher than the previous attainment of white men, in latitude 2 degrees 19 minutes 13 seconds north and longitude 64 degrees 22 minutes 5 seconds west.

We found here a wall of gigantic boulder through which vestiges of the river ran in rivulets. We made a compass traverse of the previously unexplored main stream and of two unmapped important affluents and located two more hitherto unrecorded tributaries.

Ascending one of the former which enters the Orinoco from the southeast, we found a region remarkable in fauna and flora. There were miniature ducks the size of quail, crimson morning glories as large as saucers and jet black parrots.

The Guahariбos Indians, notoriously ferocious, proved meek and frightened. They are not white, but a saffron yellow naked folk living in the stone age and provided a unique collection of ethnological material.

We sail for Trinidad en route to New York on Wednesday.

Makes Three Attempts.

New York, Sept. 1.—Dr. Dickey and his party, on its leader's third attempt to reach the source of the Orinoco, had not been heard from since the end of June. Then an amateur radio operator at Lima, Peru, was in communication iwth the expedition and a letter from the explorer, received here by Hawthorne Daniel of the American Museum of Natural History, described the unusual hardships encountered on the jungle river journey.

Dr. Dickey, accompanied by his wife and representatives of the American Indian Heye foundation for which he gathered material, sailed from New York on March 20 for Trinidad. The party was held up at Port of Spain when the river steamer on which it was to proceed suffered a broken paddle, and was further delayed at Ciudad Bolivar, 225 miles from the mouth of the river, by low water.

Leaving Ciudad Bolivar in a small sailing vessel early in June the expedition reached San Fernando de Atabapo, two-thirds of the way up the river, on June 21. At that time Dr. Dickey was confident he would arrive at the headwaters by Aug. 15.

Santa Fe, N. M., Recalls It Is 325 Years Old; Pageant Reflects Past

Santa Fé, N. M., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Memories of the long past Spanish era were quickened in this 325 year old city today as hundreds in gala costumes celebrated Santa Fé's 215th annual fiesta.

Impressive among the ceremonies was the procession last night of residents who gathered after vespers in the ancient cathedral and paraded with candles in their hands through the centuries old streets.

Indians of four tribes from the painted desert were in the market place with gaudy blankets and silver and turquoise trinkets.

Illinois Couple Married 64 Years; Celebrate

Pana, Ill., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Tish, pioneers of central Illinois, celebrated with a family reunion their sixty-fourth wedding anniversary at their home at St. Elmo, southeast of Pana. Mr. Tish, 88 years old, is a civil war veteran. His wife is 84. They have two sons, Charles Tish, at home, and Fred Tish, in Florida; also numerous grandchildren.

Paris Arrives at the Parting of the Waves

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Waves are à la mode at the moment. Everybody who is anybody has sought refuge from the heat by the side of sea waves or lake waves and, this year, they must take their waves with them, too, for perfectly straight hair is all out. The new hats which show the better half of the coiffure and the more elaborate silhouette of the new frocks simply scream for curls.

The "permanent" tends to the waves, but it takes an artist to order their partings so that the result will be becomingness and chic.

Sketched above are three ways of parting the waves designed by Antoine, the king of Coiffeurs. They all call for slightly long short hair—Antoine, by the way, radically opposes any return to the slavery of the "bun."

At the top is a coiffure especially created for the mature woman. It somewhat resembles the casque headdress of the pre-war days. The loosely waved hair is parted at the right side front, swirled around the head so as to hide the parting and the ends are held smooth by small jeweled combs.

The central coiffure tops off, ideally the Greek and Directoire evening gowns so popular in Paris now. The hair is parted in the center and swept toward the back of the head where turned up curls imitate a psyche knot. Three formal curls curve toward either cheek and a central mesh makes a little curl right in the middle of the forehead.

For any BABY

We can never be sure just what makes an infant restless, but the remedy can always be the same. Good old Castoria! There's comfort in every drop of this pure vegetable preparation, and not the slightest harm in its frequent use. As often as Baby has a fretful spell, is feverish, or cries and can't sleep, let Castoria soothe and quiet him. Sometimes it's a touch of colic. Sometimes constipation. Or diarrhea—a condition that should always be checked without delay. Just keep Castoria handy, and give it promptly. Relief will follow very promptly; if it doesn't, you should call a physician.

All through babyhood, Castoria should be a mother's standby; and a wise mother does not change to stronger medicines as the child grows older. Castoria is readily obtained at any drugstore, and the genuine easily identified by the Chas. H. Fletcher signature that appears on every wrapper.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, Sept. 1.—The seventh anniversary of the great earthquake which devastated Tokio and Yokohama was marked today by the dedication of the new earthquake memorial hall, erected in the Honjo district of Tokio on the site of the former army clothing depot where thousands of persons were burned to death in the fire which followed the quake. An impressive service was held in the new million yen [about $500,000] structure. It was attended by Premier Hamaguchi, all members of the cabinet, Mayor Nagata of Tokio, and other officials.

It is estimated that 600,000 persons made the pilgrimage to the memorial hall today. From early morning until late tonight all roads leading to the hall were jammed with crowds coming and going. Offerings to the spirits of the dead were piled in huge mounds in the compound in front of the hall, the offerings consisting of flowers, watermelons, cakes and incense.

Today's ceremonies marked the completion of the seven year reconstruction program which cost Tokio $420,000,000.

It is expected that the reconstruction board which has been cut from several thousand employés to 600 as the work progressed, soon will be disbanded.

St. Olaf Choir Here Today After Recent European Appearance

The St. Olaf Lutheran choir of St. Olaf college, Northfield, Minn., will arrive at the Grand Central station at 8:45 o'clock this morning. The choir is returning from a six weeks' tour of Europe.

Concerts were given in Germany, Norway, Sweden, and Denmark. In Augsburg, Germany, the choir took part in the celebration of the 400th anniversary of the Augsburg confession, the confession of faith of the Lutheran church. In Nidaros it took part in a celebration of the 900th anniversary of the introduction of Christianity into Norway and in the dedication of the Nidaros cathedral.

Try Explanations Instead of Laying Down the Law

By Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans

A Booklet of Prayers and Graces for Children will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: I always enjoy reading your column and want to tell you about our 17 year old boy because our method may help other parents. In this age we all realize that even young high school children are smoking and as a rule a boy of 17 is well on the way to being a steady smoker.

"From the time our boy entered high school at 14, his father and I made it clear to him that we expected he would be smoking like the other boys (and girls). His father smokes cigarets and they are always in the house. We told him that we never wanted to hear of his smoking outside and trying to hide it from us; that once he started smoking we wanted him to feel he could do so at home. BUT his father and I told him about the harm it would do to him physically. He is fond of swimming and has been made to realize that once he starts smoking he probably will not be as good a swimmer as he is. He is 5 feet 9 inches tall and weighs over 160 pounds.

"This morning we talked about cigarets again and he made a good remark, which was as follows: 'I hope I never will want to smoke and really I cannot see the sense of spending money for cigarets and ruining your health.'

"I am sure if other parents were not so rigid about the smoking question and did a little logical explaining, we would not be having so many sickly looking children who think it smart to smoke."

We all know there's more smoking among young people and that it's begun earlier, nowadays, than it ever has. Still, mothers have always worried about their sons' smoking—from way back in the days of the corn-silk cigarets behind the barn up to the present.

One of the best ways to take the charm out of too early smoking is to rob it of its air of secrecy. The parents of the young boy mentioned in this letter handled the smoking situation in a simple and sensible way. Some boys might not respond as satisfactorily as this one did, but if you've ever given friendly and frank explanations a chance with your children you know how well they work, and that most of the time they produce results. Certainly they take away the need for concealment.

If, in addition, the glamor of devilishness can be dispelled, much of youth's experimentation loses its appeal. A woman I know told me her father gave her her first cigaret years ago when she was 17 and that smoking never had the glamor for her that it had for other girls. Her father did it because he was a gentleman of cosmopolitan tastes.

Food Talk.

Like bread, potatoes, and the poor, we have turnips with us always. Some variety is ever present on the market. Even the farmer can muster turnips at almost any time in the year unless it be during a severe drought. And a drought of average duration does not prevent the farmer from enjoying his turnips. It has long been a custom to sow the seed just as soon as the first good rain comes after a drought.

Have you ever eaten a raw turnip just pulled out of the ground? They are just as delicious as a good eating apple. They call for thorough mastication, which is a good feature. They are pleasing in flavor and have considerable food value. It is a surprise to many people when they hear that turnips have almost as much calcium and phosphorus as milk and are quite a good source of iron and vitamins B and C. With all of these good points in their favor I am unable to see why more city folk do not learn to munch and enjoy turnips as country people do. Consumed raw they are just as valuable in the diet as the cooked.

I can understand why there are so many objections to cooked turnips when we have so few good turnip cookers. Too many times the turnips are boiled until they are pink, strong scented, and indigestible. Turnips need to be cooked like cabbage, onions, and all the strong juiced vegetables in an open kettle and as rapidly as possible. They can be cooked rather quickly if they are sliced or diced. And cooking in a large amount of water is not necessary.

Butter or cream is a sufficient dressing. A little chopped parsley added just as the turnips are turned into the serving dish makes them look as good as they will taste.

PARSLEY TURNIPS.

1 bunch turnips [4 or 5 turnips].
2 tablespoons butter.
1 tablespoon chopped parsley.

Wash turnips and peel off outer skin. Dice. Cover with boiling water, add salt and cook in a covered kettle until tender. Cooking requires about 15 or 20 minutes, depending on the age of turnips and the size of the pieces. The cooking water should be evaporated rather than drained off. This can be done by increasing the heat. Watch this process carefully so as not to burn. When vegetable is practically dry add butter, then parsley. Turn into a warm dish and serve immediately.

Yield: 5 servings. One serving: Total, 63 calories; protein, 3 calories; fat, 44 calories; carbohydrates, 16 calories.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Prospective Papa.

My four year old daughter and I were returning home in a street car from a trip up town one afternoon. The car was crowded. Standing in the aisle next to our seat was a young man about 26 years old. He and my little girl carried on quite a flirtation for several blocks. Almost every one in the car was amusing himself by watching them. Suddenly my little girl said in a very shrill voice that carried to both ends of the car, "Mamma, I wish that man was my daddy." Of course everybody laughed, but I was never so much embarrassed in my life. And I had to ride two more miles with the young man standing next to our seat.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Grandpa was visiting at the home of his daughter, whose son, Johnny, aged 6, was at home while the parents spent the evening away.

The daughter had arranged to have three friends in to play cards with her father that evening and Johnny and his sister were put to bed. Johnny was unusually hilarious and grandfather called upstairs for him to be quiet, that he was making too much noise.

Johnny yelled back in his lusty voice, "I'll say we're not making any more noise than you fellows."

FIRST TEST VOTE ON HOOVER IN MAINE MONDAY

Nation Will Watch Ballot Result.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—[Special.]Primaries this month in thirteen states, in six of which senatorial nominations are to be made, will bring the preelection contests to a close. In five other states nominations remain to be made in conventions, senatorial candidates being selected in three of them. Also this month, as a curtain raiser for the nation-wide elections on Nov. 4, will be the Maine election on Monday, Sept. 8. Both parties will be watching for political trends in Maine where a senator, representatives and a complete state ticket are to be chosen.

Primaries come tomorrow in Nevada and Arizona but in neither state is a senatorial nominee to be named. A week from tomorrow, on Sept. 9, there will be primaries in Michigan, Colorado, Louisiana, New Hampshire, Vermont and Washington. Senatorial nominations will be made in Michigan, Colorado, Louisiana and New Hampshire, there being contests in the first three. Maryland Democrats will hold a primary on Sept. 8, but no senatorship is involved.

Senator James Couzens is expected to win the Republican senatorial nomination in Michigan without difficulty. His opponent is former Gov. Chase S. Osborn, who is attempting a political comeback at the age of 70.

The Colorado contest over the Republican senatorial nomination is between William V. Hodges, former treasurer of the Republican national committee who has the active support of the retiring senator, L. C. Phipps, and George H. Shaw, Denver attorney, who is backed by the other Colorado senator, Charles W. Waterman.

The Anti-Saloon league has been made an issue as a result of its indorsement of Mr. Hodges. The Shaw backers charge that the Hodges indorsement was bought by purchase of oil stocks from the Rev. A. J. Finch, state superintendent of the league. It is contended that Shaw is politically and personally dry as well as Hodges, but that he refused to buy stock from Finch, and as a result was branded as "unsatisfactory."

The senatorial campaign funds committee has agreed to investigate charges of excessive expenditures directed against the Hodges forces.

The Hodges managers retaliate by charging that the influence of a leading power company, for which Shaw is attorney, is being exerted in his behalf.

There is a spectacular campaign in progress in Louisiana, where Gov. Huey P. Long is seeking the Democratic senatorial nomination against Senator Joseph E. Ransdell, who has served in congress for thirty years. Gov. Long's career in his present office was as turbulent one and he barely escaped impeachment two years ago. Friends of Senator Ransdell expect his renomination.

The Massachusetts primary, Sept. 16, at which nominations will be made for the senate seat for which Senator F. H. Gillett [Rep.] did not seek renomination, will be the last of the senatorial primary contests. On the same day will be primaries in Wisconsin and in New York.

Latest information from Massachusetts is that friends of Eben S. Draper, wet candidate for the Republican senatorial nomination, are hopeful that he can win against former Senator William M. Butler, close friend of Calvin Coolidge and a dry.

For the Democratic senatorial nomination in Massachusetts there are five candidates, Marcus A. Coolidge, former governor; Eugene Foss, Peter J. Joyce, Thomas C. O'Brien, and former Representative Joseph F. O'Connell.

States which are to hold conventions include Delaware, Sept. 9, and Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Mexico and Utah on later dates. Senatorial nominations are to be made in conventions in Delaware, where Senator Daniel O. Hastings will be renominated by the Republicans and either former Senator Thomas F. Bayard or Josiah Marvel by the Democrats; in Rhode Island, where Senator J. H. Metcalf will be renominated by the Republicans and former Senator Peter G. Gerry by the Democrats; and in New Mexico, where Senator Sam G. Bratton will be renominated by the Democrats and Gov. Richard C. Dillon by the Republicans.

Senator Allen Operated on in Wichita Hospital

Wichita, Kas., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Senator Henry J. Allen of Kansas underwent an operation today for a glandular ailment. Physicians said his general condition was excellent and that his recovery should be speedy. They emphasized that the operation was of a minor nature.

SUES FOR $20,000.

West Plains, Mo., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Charging alienation of affections of his wife, Dorothy Goacher Rhoades, Thomas Rhoades, a local grocer, has sued Harry Jennings, Springfield traveling salesman, asking $20,000.

HIRAM JOHNSON JOINS LAW FIRM IN SAN FRANCISCO

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 1.—(AP)—United States Senator Hiram Johnson today joined the law firm of Sullivan & Barry & Theodore J. Roach.

"For more than two years we have contemplated the present arrangement, but the long and the special sessions of congress gave me so little leisure that until now it seemed hardly worth while," the senator said.

"Apparently congressional sessions will return to 'normalcy' (I doubt if President Hoover will ever call another special session), and thus the full opportunity is afforded me again to engage in the practice of my profession and attend as well to my senatorial duties."

A Day's Speed

How fast?

Well, out at the Curtiss air field yesterday Charles Holman flew 100 miles at an average of 201.91 miles an hour.

BY FRENCH LANE.

A crowd of 25,000 holiday racegoers watched Siskin gallop to a sensational victory in the Joliet stakes, worth $8,000, at Lincoln Fields yesterday.

Left at the post and away nearly a dozen lengths back of the ten other crack western 2 year olds in the contest, Siskin, a son of the great French sire Epinard, raced around the field and got up in the last strides to beat Schooner, late of the Rancocas stable, by a head. Four lengths back of this fleet running pair came Rusty, the early leader, in third place.

Don Leon, the Kentucky champion, was fourth, and Doris Jean, a fleet Chicago filly, was fifth. The others were always out of the contention.

Wins Sounds Optimistic Note.

The crowd was one of the largest that has ever visited Lincoln Fields, and caused Col. Matt J. Winn, executive director, to come to the conclusion that whatever financial depression there might have been is fast drawing to an end.

"In hard times such a great crowd would not have turned out for an afternoon of racing," he said. He was of the opinion that more than 30,000 were on the grounds.

When the start of the Joliet stakes came, Rusty was first away and he rushed in to a lead of two lengths, with Sun Dot second, Don Leon third, Schooner fourth and Siskin away last, far back of all the others.

Siskin Wears Down Leaders.

But Siskin did not become discouraged at his slow getaway. He started after those in front of him and one by one wore them down. With nine in the field behind him he had to go extremely wide to take the measure of Don Leon at the head of the stretch. While this pair was racing out in to the center of the track Jockey Ayraud stole through on the rail on Schooner, and for just an instant it looked like the ground he had saved would be the margin of victory.

Jockey Morrison on Siskin discovered the danger, gave the son of Epinard one crack with his whip and he went on to last it out and win by a head. It was the most brilliant race run by any two year old here this year and it demonstrated that

Aytons Born Where Golf Is in the Air

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Laurie Ayton and his younger brother, Alex, two of the golfers who will represent the Chicago district in competition for the national professional championship, are Scotchmen of the old school, born and trained at famous St. Andrews.

LAURIE AYTON.

Together with their brothers, Davy and George, they were brought up amid surroundings so permeated with traditions of the royal and ancient game that it was quite natural for all four to follow in the footsteps of John Ball and the other great golfers, whose names were as common at St. Andrews as those of Hack Wilson or Joe McCarthy are in Chicago.

Laurie Ayton has come a long way since the days when he caddied on the Scottish links, but the same fellow who was his pal at that time still hunts him up on his day off and together they go to see the Cubs play or do anything except shoot golf. That friend is Jock Hutchison, the professional at Glen View.

It was a letter from Jock which brought the Aytons to this country in 1918. Laurie went to work as professional at the Evanston Golf club with Alex as his assistant. After a few years Alex took charge at Tam o' Shanter and later made connections in Springfield, where he is located at present.

"Alex is the big hope of this family," Laurie will tell you with becoming modesty. "You see, I'm 46 years old, but he's ten years younger, with plenty of time yet to bring his game to its peak."

"But how about Lourie Jr.?" you might ask.

Then you'll see Laurie Sr. get en-

GAR WOOD WINS FINAL RACE FOR SPEEDBOAT TITLE

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 1.—(AP)—The third and final attempt of Marion Barbara Carstairs, courageous young English sportswoman, to beat Gar Wood in a Harmsworth trophy race ended in failure when Wood piloted his Miss America IX. to an easy victory in the final heat of that classic today.

As was the case in the first heat of the race Saturday, the British challenger, Estelle IV., came to grief when its fuel tanks collapsed and Wood was not even pressed by the British boat.

Wood, heading a team of three boats, covered the 30 mile course at an average speed of 77.390 miles an hour, which betters his former record for the Harmsworth of 75.287 made last year.

Estelle IV., with Bert Hawker at the wheel, performed well for four laps and then suddenly dropped out. Accepting a tow to his boat house Hawker reported that Estelle IV.'s tanks had collapsed just as did those of Estelle V. in the third lap Saturday.

Miss America VIII., driven by George Wood, finished second today and took the credit of having made today's fastest lap, at a speed of 79,185 miles an hour.

Before the second heat today, Miss Carstairs, who has spent approximately $500,000 in her effort during the last three years to recapture for England the trophy that symbolizes the world's speedboat championship, announced definitely that she would not again challenge for the Harmsworth trophy.

In a last heroic effort to beat Wood, Miss Carstairs surrendered any personal ambition she may have had and gave her place at the wheel of Estelle IV. to Bert Hawker, with instructions to force the Wood brothers to the utmost or "crack up Estelle IV. if necessary to do it."

Forest Fire Smoke Blinds Ball Players; Game Called

Moose Lake, Minn., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Game called on account of a forest fire. That was the reason given for calling a baseball contest here yesterday between Moose Lake and Sturgeon Lake. The game was halted in the fifth inning when smoke from the fire, two miles away, became so thick the players were unable to see the ball. Moose Lake was leading, 5 to 3.

Arnold Wins Altoona Race; Speeds 113 Miles an Hour

Altoona, Pa., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Billy Arnold, young Chicago speed king, won the Labor day race on the board track here today, finishing ahead of Deacon Litz of Dubois, Pa., after a thrilling duel. The event was scheduled for 200 miles, but was stopped after 116¼ miles when the rain which had threatened to postpone the race from the start broke into a heavy shower and made completion dangerous.

Arnold completed the 116¼ miles in one hour and one minute, an average of 113 miles an hour. The victory gave him 139 points and increased his season total to 1,027. Shorty Cantlon of Akron, O., his nearest rival for the 1930 A. A. A. championship, won 104 points by placing third and increased his season total to 584.

Arnold Clinches Title.

Ted Allen, secretary of the A. A. A. contest board, said Arnold's triumph guaranteed him the 1930 title, since Cantlon, by winning the remaining official event at Syracuse next Saturday, could add only 120 points and could not overtake Arnold.

The shower which terminated the race today broke up a duel between Arnold and Litz which had the crowd of about 30,000 excited from start to finish. Arnold set the pace from the moment Starter Jack Rose sent to field away. He averaged 120 miles an hour during the first 50 miles, a speed which only Litz was able to match. The other ten starters were gradually outdistanced until the third place position, over which Bill Cummings, Cantlon and Russ Snowberger fought, was soon one mile and later nearly three miles behind the leader.

Litz twice sent the spectators to their feet when his efforts to overtake Arnold were coupled with "breaks" which endangered his life. On the 50th lap of the mile and a quarter track the "Deacon" was just about to pass Billy when Litz's machine skidded and shot into the dirt on the eastern turn. The incident, aside from thrilling the crowd, had no effect on the duel, and Litz was immediately in Arnold's wake.

Litz Takes Lead, Then Loses It.

Litz gained the lead a few minutes later when Arnold went into the pit to change his left front tire. He lost it about ten laps later through his second mishap at the eastern turn.

Litz's right front tire blew as he was coming out of the turn. His car skidded into the dirt, swung completely around while the crowd gasped and was finally righted by superb driving and was piloted into the pit. The tire change cost Litz nearly a lap and he resumed the race about a mile behind Arnold, who had regained the lead.

From then on, Arnold slowly pulled ahead of the dirt covered Litz car and lapped the "deacon" in the 103th mile. A few minutes later the shower broke and the race was stopped.

Cummings Finishes Fourth.

Bill Cummings, Indianapolis, was fourth; Russ Snowberger, Philadelphia, fifth; Mel Kenealy, Los Angeles, sixth; Lou Moore, seventh; Lou Meyer, South Gate, Cal., eighth; Phil Pardee, Los Angeles, ninth; "Speed" Gardner, Pittsburgh, tenth.

1930 RACE KING

BILLY ARNOLD.

SOX LET TIGERS CELEBRATE WITH TWO VICTORIES

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Labor day for the White Sox proved to be labor seasoned with grief. The Tigers punched them into submission in both ends of a double header, first by 6 to 5, and then by 4 to 2. All this was conducted before 19,000 customers.

Battle No. 1 with a reversed decision would have been Ted Lyons' twentieth triumph of the season. Ted himself was responsible for the defeat. With the assistance of a home run by Carl Reynolds, the Sox presented Lyons with a comfortable margin, but the advantage meant nothing. Going into the seventh two runs to the good, the Hose ace tottered long enough to permit the hostiles to tie the count. Then he tottered some more in the ninth, and the winning run slipped across the plate.

Thomas Victim in Nightcap.

It was Tommy Thomas' misfortune to be chosen to perform in the second encounter. He started impressively while Earl Whitehill, Detroit's seasoned southpaw, was bumped freely. This condition proved only temporary. After yielding five safeties in two innings, Whitehill suddenly tightened and avoided all semblance of trouble until the ninth. And Thomas, who gave up only two hits in three sessions, took a turn for the worse in the fourth. He took another turn for the worse in the sixth. In each instance two Tigers scooted home, to give Whitehill more of a margin than he really needed.

The first game started with the Sox helping themselves to a one run lead off Uhle. Kerr thumped a two bagger into center field territory. He rode over the plate on Reynolds' single. This frail advantage was reduced to a tie in the Tiger second. The ponderous Alexander took hold of one to his liking and spanked it into the corner of the grandstand in left center.

Hose Score Three Times.

The Sox busied themselves again in the third and scored three times. Lyons inaugurated this scoring session by beating out a bunt after one was gone. Uhle's wild pitch sent him to second and he strolled to third on Kerr's demise. Akers lost Cissell's fly in the sun and it fell for a single, scoring Lyons. Then Reynolds pounded homer No. 18 for the season into

CHAMPS MAKE ONLY 8 HITS IN DOUBLE UPSET

Lucas, Frey Baffle Bruin Batters.

Yesterday was a sad day for Cub partisans, but some could see a ray of sunshine. A four game lead is a sizeable margin, they decided, after considering the possibilities of the contending clubs.

If the Cubs win 12 and lose 12 of their remaining contests, the Giants, who are four games behind, must win 18 and lose 8 to pass the champions.

If the Cubs play only .500 ball, the Cardinals, 4½ games behind the leaders, must win 17 and lose 6 if they are to land in first place.

The Robins are five games from the top and to take first place, while the Cubs are breaking even, they must win 17 and lose 5.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 1.—The panic is on for sure. Two more lickings in Cincinnati. Seven straight at Redland field from the seventh place Howleymen. The first whaling today a 5 to 0, three hit tanning at the hands of Red Lucas. The second blistering a 2 to 1 heartbreaker, which was changed from a 1 to 0 victory after two were out in the ninth. Truly, distress is rampant and anguish is everywhere.

The Cubs' experiences in Cincinnati have been dismal all year, but no trimming was so bitter as that second one this afternoon.

Going into the eighth, Bob Osborn had allowed two scratch infield singles, and that was all. The Cubs were leading 1 to 0. In the eighth the Reds made a bona fide single and a Texas leaguer, but when the inning was over the Cubs still led, 1 to 0.

Two Walks, Then a Triple.

The Cubs went out in order in their ninth.

Stripp walked to start the home ninth. He moved to second on Cuccinello's sacrifice bunt. Heilmann supplied the second out with a pop to English. Crawford waited out Osborn till the count was three balls and two strikes. Then he walked. Runners were on first and second. Sukeforth then shot a liner past Wilson. Stripp and Crawford came in standing up. The Reds had made it seven straight at home against the Cubs and 11 out of 17 for the season.

The Cubs made five hits in the second game and three in the first game. They made four in their farewell against St. Louis yesterday. A total of 12 hits in three games. This is four fewer than they made in their one game late Saturday. You don't have to be a keen observer to note that this is a rather startling right about face.

Four Contenders Bunched.

Of course, the double defeat today caused further congestion in the National league race, although the Cubs only lost one game in their lead over the Giants who split even with the Phillies. The Cards, however, gained two games on the Chicagoans, and the Robins gained one. So, this morning, the Cubs are four ahead of the Giants, four and a half ahead of the Cards, and five ahead of the Robins.

The Cubs must remain over in this wicked city tomorrow. The stopover game, which the schedule set for the Cubs' trip back home from the east, will be set up. Blake, just off the hospital list, will be Manager McCarthy's pitching choice, if the Sheriff can do any throwing at all, and Kolp

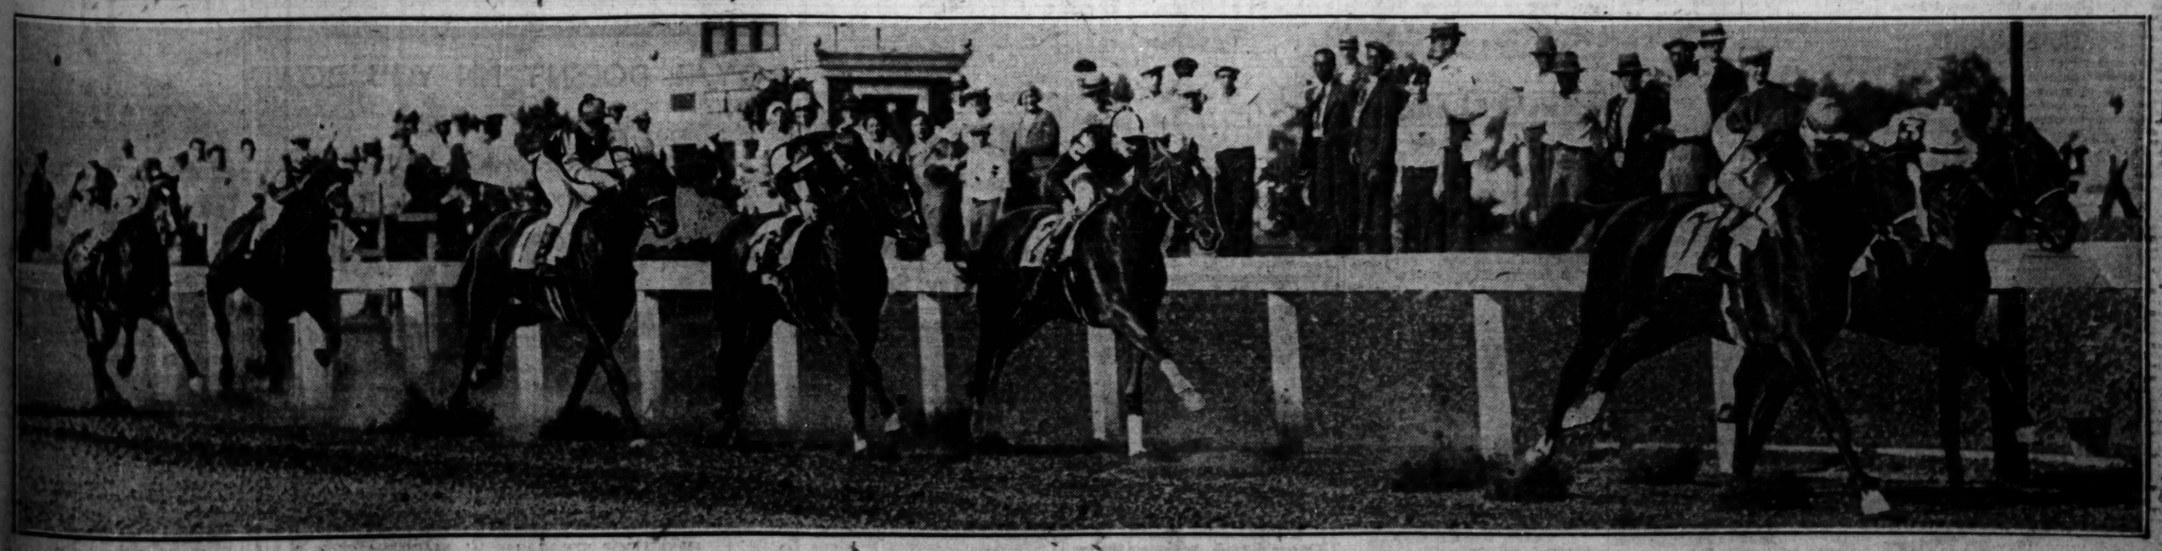
S-I-S-K-I-N SPELLS SPEED, 25,000 AT LINCOLN FIELDS AGREE



When the field of eleven galloped off in the six furlong Joliet stakes at Lincoln Fields yesterday those in the crowd of 25,000 who had made Siskin second choice at $4.20 to 1 groaned. The great two year old son of that famous French sire Epinard was away last, but when the field thundered past the finish line the groans turned to wild cheers, for Siskin was winning by a head from Schooner after a thrilling stretch run. Four lengths back came Rusty, the early pacemaker. Don Leon, the favorite, wound up in fourth place. Thus Siskin demonstrated he not only is fleet of foot but also is one of the gamest young thoroughbreds to come to the races in several years. The three-quarters of a mile were run in 1:11 4-5. Siskin now will be pointed for the rich Belmont Futurity, which probably will decide the 3 year old championship of the year.

CARDS BEAT BUCS TWICE, 11-6, 5-1; TAKE 3D PLACE

St. Louis Gets 17 Hits in First Game.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 1.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals went on a hitting spree here today, beating Pittsburgh in both games of a double header, to assume third place in the National league. The score in the morning was 11 to 6, and in the afternoon, 5 to 1.

Rhem was victor in the morning when the Redbirds compiled 17 safeties off Swetonic and French. Grimes had an easy time in the afternoon, holding the Buccaneers to one run. In the meantime, his mates were hitting Kremer and Spencer for a grand total of 18.

Kremer was out to win his 20th game but he could not hold the Cards in check. Scores:

ROBINS, BRAVES DIVIDE.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 1.—(AP)—The fast slipping Brooklyn Robins tumbled into fourth place in the National league standings today, breaking even in a double header with the Boston Braves. Boston accounted for the first battle, 5 to 3, after rain had delayed the start, but the Robins took a 4 to 3 decision in the second game.

Wally Berger's thirty-second home run off Ray Phelps drove in three of the Braves' five runs in the first game while Lopez's home off Sherdel accounted for all of the Robins' tallies.

Hollis Thurston opposed Bob Smith in the nightcap and won his own game when he doubled in the seventh, scoring two base runners. Scores:

Sox Let Tigers Celebrate with Two Victories

the seats in left, Cissell preceding him over the plate. This was followed by a double off Jolley's bat, but the big boy died on the lines. This much completed Uhle's labors for the day.

Both Score in Fourth.

Both principals in the argument took possession of a run in the fourth. The Tigers brewed theirs from a triple by McManus and single by Alexander. A three bagger by Barnes off Cantrell enabled the Sox to retrieve the tally. His clout opened the home half, after which Kamm fouled out and Crouse walked. Lyons was set down on a grounder to Alexander, and Barnes scored on the play. Then the Tigers pulled up a bit more by counting a run on singles by Haworth, Funk, and Gehringer in the fifth.

The two runs with which the Tigers tied the affair at 5 and 5 in the seventh got a flying start because Lyons walked Easterling, the first batter. Hayworth flied out, but Hargrave was called on to bat for Cantrell and answered the summons with a single that put Easterling on third. Hargrave added insult to injury by stealing second. Cissell made a brilliant dash into short left for Funk's popup, but couldn't throw in time to keep Easterling from scoring. Then Gehringer dropped a double back of third and Hargrave registered the tying run.

Two hits were involved in the production of what proved the winning marker in the Tiger ninth. Lyons opened the inning by fanning Wyatt, but Funk came along with a looping double just a bit inside the line back of third. A moment later McManus singled and Funk scored. That was all for this game, except that Kerr walked with two out in the home ninth and Sorrell was trotted in to relieve Wyatt.

Sox Start 2d Game With Run.

The Sox were the first to score in the evening engagement. A double by Crouse and Thomas' single gave them a run in the second inning. Thomas, however, was unable to hold this advantage any longer than the fourth when a pair of hits and a pair of errors were merged for a pair of runs. McManus singled with one out and stole second. A fly to center finished Alexander. Stone grounded to Watwood, who fumbled. On top of this he recovered and threw wild to Thomas, who was trying to cover first. McManus hiked home from second on the blunders. Then Akers nicked the right field fence for three bases, Stone scoring.

The disturbance against Thomas in the sixth got under way when Gehringer led off with a robust grounder which eluded Watwood for a single. Cissell tossed out the next two fellows. Stone smashed one to the left field information board for a triple, Gehringer sauntering home. Stone went home on a single aimed into center by Akers.

A little fuss that gave the Sox a useless run in the ninth was created by a pinch hitter. Watwood opened the inning with a scratch hit to Gehringer. After the next two batters had been disposed of, Barnes, who was used in place of Walsh, who had pitched the last two innings, tripled and Watwood scored. Then Kerr ended the unhappy day by grounding to Gehringer.

Shoreline Club to Hold Exhibit of Hunting Dogs

BY BOB BECKER.

Duck hunters in Chicagoland who are interested in retrievers which add fun and efficiency to the sport of water fowling will have a chance to see an expertly trained group of duck dogs in action Sunday afternoon, Sept. 14, at the second annual all breed dog show of the Shoreline Kennel club. This club will stage its all breed show at Northbrook, Ill., a suburb north of Chicago.

Officers of the club have invited Martin J. Hogan of Barrington, Ill., formerly judge and handler of sporting dogs in England, to put on an exhibition with a group of English Labrador retrievers which he has trained on the Thomas Howell estate west of Barrington.

Several novelties are promised visitors. First, the Doberman club will put on a trained and trick dog class. In addition, the shepherd dog fans are scheduled to see an interesting exhibition by a trained shepherd. Another novelty is promised in the children's classes. Mrs. Edward A. Hines has offered two beautiful cups to the boys or girls who show the most skill in exhibiting their pet dogs in two classes. Irene Castle McLaughlin will judge the events.

Mrs. McLaughlin also has secured her license to judge the shepherd dogs at the show. The premium list in German shepherds is large and valuable, according to an announcement yesterday by Jimmie Sullivan, secretary and treasurer of the Shoreline club.

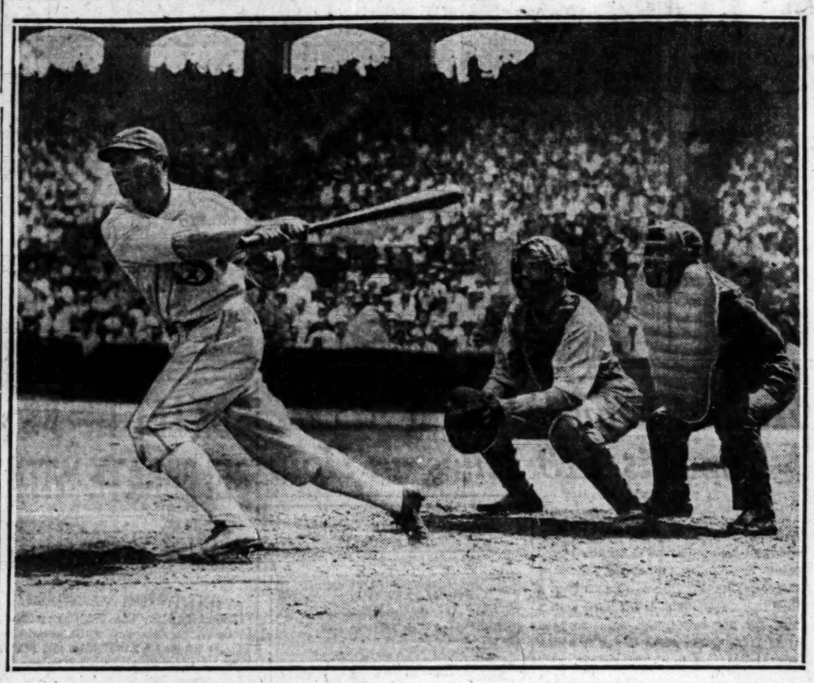
THE BALL GOES ON A LONG RIDE



Carl Reynolds is becoming quite a home run hitter, even though he plays on such a large field as Comiskey park. The fleet White Sox outfielder has sent his eighteenth circuit drive of the season into the left field seats. This occurred in the third inning of the first game of the Tiger double header, which ended disastrously for south side partisans. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Wes Ferrell Wins No. 24 as Indians Beat Browns Twice

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 1.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians celebrated Labor day here today by winning a double header from the St. Louis Browns, the first game 13 to 8 and the nightcap 9 to 5. The second game was called at the end of the eighth inning because of darkness.

In winning the second game Wesley Ferrell of the Indians chalked up his 24th victory of the season and his 13th triumph in a row. Willis Hudlin, the Indians' third pitcher, was the winning hurler in the first encounter.

Porter hit a home run for the Indians in the first game, and Hodapp, also of the Indians, hit for the circuit in the nightcap. Scores:

SISKIN, LEFT AT POST, RALLIES TO WIN $8,000 RACE

Siskin is not only fleet of foot, but one of the gamest young thoroughbreds to come to the races in several seasons. He was sent to the post in perfect condition by Trainer Dick Carmen Jr.

Siskin Wins Ovation.

Siskin did things no other 2 year old has accomplished around Chicago this year. Despite the sound beating he gave the favorite Don Leon, he performed so nobly he won over those in the big throng that had wagered on Don Leon, Rusty, and Doris Jean, and received one of the noisest receptions of the year when he came back to salute the judges.

With Siskin's triumph the battle for the 2 year old title on the American turf narrows down to a comprehensible situation. Epithet, another son of Epinard, won the Hopeful stakes at Saratoga last Saturday and established himself as the best juvenile in the east. Siskin won the western title when he conquered his field in the Joliet yesterday.

So the two best colts in the country seem to be Epithet and Siskin, and both are sons of Epinard. The two best fillies are Risque and Betty Derr. The former is a daughter of Stimulus. Betty Derr is from that good Sir Gallahad III. stock. But there's that old ghost, Insco, also an offspring of Sir Gallahad III., which passed up the Joliet stakes to go east and fight it out with Epithet in the Belmont Futurity. Insco has one verdict over Siskin. Some day he may beat him again, but it is doubtful if he could have done it yesterday.

Lady Broadcast Wins Handicap.

One of the fastest miles in America this year was run by Lady Broadcast, that proud mare from Memphis, in the Labor day handicap. She flew over the course from the chute in 1:36, but was all out holding Pigeon Hole safe in the final drive. She won by half a length, with Honey Locust third.

J. Marcum was in the saddle on Lady Broadcast and she let Silverdale and Honey Locust make the pace to the lower bend. Then Lady Broadcast came on the outside and circled those in front of her. She lost ground on the move and perhaps if she had been skimming the rail all the way she might have shattered a world's record for a mile.

Lady Broadcast was a great favorite with the crowd and paid $3.58 to win, being the shortest priced favorite of the day.

MOON MULLINS—UNCLE OSCAR'S ARGUMENT CARRIES SOME FORCE

POLO'S ROUGH ON PLAYERS, PONIES, AND ALSO PURSES

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 1.—When the Robin's egg blue grandstand out at Meadowbrook fills up next Saturday and the American and British polo stars begin banging the ball and one another about, a lot of sympathetic spectators are going to remark: "That must hurt!"

Well, it does hurt—both men and horses—and that is the reason both teams have a squad of reserve players, and the Americans have 91 available ponies and the British 75. In football and hockey the players ram each other. In polo they hit one another with horses. Suppose the golfers in a national open were given a brassie apiece and only one ball for the lot. There would be a lot of heads walloped. It is like that in polo. A youngster is not properly christened into the game until he has been socked with a swinging mallet.

Rough on Bank Balances, Too—

Yes, it's rough, but it is even rougher on bank accounts. That is the reason the game has to have "angels." If a hundred eight cylinder automobiles with French bodies and Italian motors were lined up at one end of the field and every few minutes one of them was driven out to be whacked and dented and sent full tilt into the brass work of another it would give the spectators a fair idea of what it costs to play international polo.

Every pony good enough to play under an international star represents an investment of anywhere from $6,000 to $20,000 and the wear and tear on them in practice and game is terrific. The best players are not always wealthy, and international polo demands the best players and best mounts. They must train for months.

Eligibility regulations in international polo these days are as elastic as the rubber bands on the bank rolls of the "angels." There is no question of amateur or professional, or hardly of country. If a man is known as a bread and butter polo player or a millionaire, the only thing he has to prove is his ability to make the willow ball look like it had a rubber core.

Hitchcock U. S. Veteran.

On the American team, Tommy Hitchcock Jr., despite his youth, is the veteran member. He is wealthy and was born to the game. They say on Long Island that the Hitchcocks teach their young to ride instead of walk. Eric L. Pedley comes from California, but his parents hail from England. Pedley has helped the Midwick Country club of California win a lot of polo cups. He is an all around athlete and was a welterweight boxer at Stanford. Pedley has been mounted by C. B. W. Rightsman, a fellow Californian, in the practice games.

Earle A. S. Hopping played most of his first polo in England. He lived in London with his father, who also is a polo player. Young Hopping has been playing high goal polo in this country since 1926 and has ridden a lot of A. Charles Schwartz's ponies. Mr. Schwartz is a member of the American defense committee this year and is one of Long Island's leading polo enthusiasts.

Winston F. C. Guest was born in London. His father, the Hon. Frederick E. Guest, is a leading figure in England's Hurlingham club, ruling body of polo there. Guest's mother is an American and the young player began his polo at Yale.

Balko Breaks Belmont Mark for 6 Furlongs

New York, Sept. 1.—[Special.]—A big black horse rushed onward like a military charger as Belmont Park opened today and made turf history when he ran six furlongs in 1:09⅘. It was a new track record and one of the fastest races of the kind run anywhere in the world. The horse was Balko, from the Sagamore stable, and he set the new figures under the crushing impost of 136 pounds which was top weight in the fall highweight handicap. The old mark was 1:10 1-5.

A crowd of 20,000 persons, who had made Balko and his entry mate, The Heathen, favorite at 17 to 10, cheered as they saw the big black streak come from nowhere in the last furlong to win by a head in a driving finish. The Heathen, owned by C. H. Pierce, but trained as is Balko, by J. H. Stotler, was second, beating George D. Widener's Finite by a length.

CUBAN STARS LOSE TWICE TO MILLS, 14 TO 8 AND 13 TO 2

The opener was a slugging match, while the nightcap proved to be a case of too much Lefty Sullivan.

American Yachts Beat British in First of Series

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Sweeping the first three places, the American team of 6 meter yachts won the opening day's brush with the British defenders of the British-American cup in Long Island sound today. Mars, sailed by Van S. Merlesmith, finished first with Briggs Cunningham's Lucile second, and Cherokee piloted by Cornelius Shields, third.

thusiastic, and he has a right to, because he's taught the boy every stroke he knows.

"The kid's shot this Evanston course seven times this week," he'll tell you. 'And he's turned in a 71, a 73, and five 75s. And he's only 16 years old."

Laurie is giving his boy an early start, but no earlier than the one which he got himself. He and Jock Hutchison began together, as caddies at St. Andrews when both were about ten years old.

Right away Laurie showed exceptional skill with a set of golf clubs and pretty soon he began a series of triumphs which were climaxed when he won the Scottish amateur championship at the age of 20.

Shortly after that, he turned professional and took a job as instructor at the Royal Brittanic Gardens in London. He worked at a couple of other English courses during the next few years before going back to Scotland. He competed in the British open every year between 1910 and 1914, finishing fourth, fifth, seventh, sixth, and eighth.

Since coming to this country he has been tied up with so many duties at the club that he hasn't had much chance for tournament play, but he found time to get into the recent western open and finished well to the front after shooting consistent golf of par or better throughout.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: The Search Goes On

DEMANDS TRANSFER OF NEW YORK CITY HALL TO BROOKLYN

New York, Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Asserting that "the tail was wagging the dog" in New York City, John Holley Clark Jr., Republican candidate for surrogate of Queens county, suggested today the city hall should be transferred to Brooklyn, the borough of the largest population. Brooklyn and Queens, Maj. Clark added, had a larger population than Manhattan, the Bronx and Richmond.

"The latest revised census figures show that a majority of the inhabitants of New York City live on Long Island," Maj. Clark said. "Of the total population of 6,981,927 no less than 3,683,906 or 52.8 per cent live in Brooklyn and Queens."

Maj. Clark added that Manhattan gradually was becoming depopulated and now had only 26.8 per cent of the city's population.

'MIXED' BABY IS CHRISTENED AS A BAMBERGER

One of the infants involved in the Watkins-Bamberger baby mixup on Saturday afternoon was christened George Edward Bamberger in St. Raphael's church at 6001 Justine avenue, it was learned yesterday. Charles Bamberger, 5523 South Paulina street, and the godparents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Hausmann, attended the ceremony. The baby is the second to be christened as George Edward Bamberger.

Following the first christening, the Bambergers agreed with Mr. and Mrs. William Watkins of 1619 West 82d street that the baby in the possession of the latter couple was the rightful Bamberger baby, and the baby the Bambergers had was the Watkins' child. They exchanged babies. Both babies were born in Englewood hospital on June 30.

LILLIAN GISH NOT SERIOUSLY HURT BY BITES OF DOG

Norwalk, Conn., Sept. 1.—(AP)—Dog bites suffered by Lillian Gish, screen and stage actress, have not proved serious and will not interfere with a short rest here before she returns to the New York stage late this month.

Dorothy Gish, who formerly appeared with her sister on the screen, said today that Miss Gish was "quite well and is not confined to her bed."

An inch long palm wound and a gash on her thumb were inflicted Saturday night a few hours after her return from Paris when the actress tried to stop a fight between her pet dog and one owned by her sister Dorothy.

BILL OF RIGHTS WILL BE TAUGHT TO DRY AGENTS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—[Special.]—Rights of individuals under the fourth and fifth amendment to the constitution, with Supreme court interpretations as the guiding feature, is the first thing scheduled to be taught to the picked squad of prohibition agents at the opening of the college tomorrow.

Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, director of prohibition, will deliver the first lecture.

It was announced that the college will differ from the program originally promulgated by the treasury, whereby agents were brought to Washington for there weeks of instruction. Study in this college is to be intensive and practical, with a fundamental grounding in the law.

Besides the twenty-four agents, who will become instructors under supervision of headquarters here instead of administrators, there will be seven field inspectors. This will mean a class of thirty-one for the four weeks of study. All agents attending the school will receive their salary and expenses while in Washington.

BOYS SHOT WHEN SISTER TRIES TO TAKE AWAY GUN

Playing with a revolver belonging to their father, a former detective, Philip Brungel, 5 years old, and his brother Andrew, 4 years old, were shot yesterday when their sister, Gloria, 7 years old, tried to wrest the gun from them in their home, 1643 West 38th street.

The boys had taken the revolver from a bureau drawer to lend realism to a game of policeman when Gloria entered the room. She seized the butt of the gun, but Philip clung to the muzzle. In the struggle the gun was accidentally discharged. The bullet passed through Philip's abdomen and then into Andrew's groin and coursed down through his left leg. Philip's condition is critical. Doctors said Andrew had a fair chance of recovery, but doubted that his leg could be saved.

THERE ARE NO DULL TIMES IN THE BURGLARY BUSINESS

Business may be dull in many lines, but burglars were never busier. Day after day the newspapers report robberies ranging from minor household thefts to office safe burglaries involving many thousands of dollars. Safes are "burglar-proof" only in name, and the fact that a home is occupied does not deter the experienced burglar in the least.

To protect yourself against loss (and thieves are just as likely to visit you as they are those victims you are constantly reading about) you should carry Burglary, Theft and Larceny Insurance for your home and Safe Burglary Insurance for your office. The Affiliated Continental Companies write both forms at a cost that is trifling compared to the protection afforded. Ask your agent or broker to insure you in this great local institution . . . the only Multiple Line Insurance Organization with Home Offices in Chicago . . . whenever you require property, liability, life, and accident and health insurance, as well as fidelity or surety bonds.

BULLISH CORN FIGURES SEEN BY GRAIN TRADE

Two Billion Bushel Crop Expected.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain traders are to resume operations today with an unusual mixture of conditions, opinions and statistics. The three day holiday gave traders here and throughout the country an opportunity to make personal investigations as to the condition of corn and pastures and a wide variety of opinions is expected.

These, combined with the private crop reports due around 10 o'clock today, are expected to make a more bullish showing on corn than at any time since 1901. Trade sentiment on corn at the close on Friday was mainly bullish, with operators carrying liberal lines, and all corn futures above those in wheat.

It is a strange situation for present day traders who have been educated to the belief that wheat was always worth more money than corn and it takes a great deal of courage on their part to be real bullish on corn, and bearish on wheat, with corn at a premium.

Expect Corn Reduction.

Private estimates on corn are expected to average close to 2,000,000,000 bu, which would show a reduction of more than 100,000,000 bu from the July returns. This is a loss that is not often seen.

A large increase in the visible supply and heavy receipts due to three days' accumulation in all grains, with hedging pressure on wheat and oats, are looked for. It is said that should there be sufficient increase in the buying power and active covering by shorts, a higher level of prices is to be expected. Unless such a condition exists, profit taking by holders, combined with hedge sales and general selling, will call for a greatly increased buying power.

Bulls May Be Surprised.

Expectations are that the run of corn receipts today will rather surprise the bulls in Chicago, while in the American and Canadian northwest receipts of wheat will be well up in the millions of bushels, particularly in Canada, where there is a rush on the part of farmers to market grain.

In past years, when supplies of grain were heavy after a two day holiday, sufficient buying power has always developed to absorb offerings and make a good active market, and intimations on Friday were that there was to be no deviation from past custom.

Says More Terminal Space Is Needed for Grain Storage

BY SCRUTATOR.

The present seems to be one time when the bugaboo of terminal congestion can't be blamed for such low prices of wheat as exist.

Cash wheat is selling in all American markets at prices above the future delivery. The farmer who delivers now can get a better price that he can for a guaranteed delivery a month later, on the present markets.

One of the favorite old theories was that the presence of wheat in large quantities in the terminal show windows was depressing to buyers. It was always disputed that such an effect extended to futures; and that it was better for the grower to keep his grain somewhere else in the busy season, curtained off to a certain extent so that it would not discourage willing buyers.

Necessity Apparent.

Whatever the merits of the idea, it has had an important effect on the thinking that has been done about where the farmer should put additional storage space for wheat as it is needed. It can be put on the farm, at local rail sidings in the country, at sub-terminal points outside the areas that become congested or in the present large terminals.

The necessity for more storage is apparent if conditions similar to those of 1929 and 1930 are not abnormal enough to assume they will not recur frequently in future years. Statistics compiled by E. J. Bell Jr., cooperative marketing specialist for the federal farm board, show that from 1924 to 1928 the average amount of wheat stored in the United States on July 1 was eighty-three million bushels, and the range over the period from eighty to 100 million bushels. In 1929 this total leaped to 183 million bushels and on July 1 of this year to 214 million.

The commercially visible stocks early this summer were seventeen million bushels more than in 1929. Storage houses in the northwest and southwest, the latest reports show, are filling up and the northwest growers have rushed their supplies to market. The late movement toward the feeding of wheat to animals as a corn substitute has been important in keeping down congestion, it is reasonable to suppose. But corn crops cannot always be short and wheat crops may be larger.

Natural Storage Place.

It has yet to be proved that farmers are losers by quick marketing of their grain over a period of years. They have given up rather largely storage in stacks and shocks since the advent of the combine. The farm granary is a natural place to start storing. Probably it is the most inefficient. It requires, for safety of the goods, a comparatively large investment, an additional handling, and involves the risk of poor hauling weather later.

Mr. Bell suggests that farmers could profitably invest the cost of individual granaries in a cooperative country elevator. Country elevator space has been expanding in late years. So, too, have terminal elevators. Minneapolis and Duluth together added fourteen million bushels in the last year and thirty-five million in seven years. Chicago has shown no increase, although the growing importance of Buffalo as a mill center and the lake shipping facilities might have been expected to cause some.

It is evident that private capital, when it invests in grain elevators, prefers to put them in terminals where they can have the fullest and most efficient use. The show window plea and its probable exaggeration should not induce bureaus and cooperatives, if they are to take over more of the marketing functions, to overlook the advantages of more terminal space.

Chicago Stock Exchange Classes Resume Sept. 22

Classes of the fall term of the Chicago Stock Exchange Educational institute will start Sept. 22. The institute is sponsored by the Chicago Association of Stock Exchange Firms of which Robert J. Fischer is president.

Automotive Shipments in July Fall Below June

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 1.—July shipments of automotive parts-accessory manufactures fell below June, as was expected, due to the general seasonal slowing up in the automotive field. Business of supplies of original equipment to the car and truck manufacturers declined more than usual, due to the fact that many of the car and truck plants were closed for inventory and vacation periods. August business is expected to hold up about even with July.

The formal opening is expected to bring several thousand visitors and a reception will be held after trading ends at 2 o'clock. W. David Owen is chairman of the reception committee. Brief addresses will be made by Walter W. Head, president of the Foreman State-National bank; R. Arthur Wood, president of the Chicago Stock Exchange; John A. Bunnell, president of the Chicago Board of Trade, and Clarence G. Troup, president of the Chicago Curb Exchange.

DECLARES JUNE SALES OF GRUEN WATCHES HIGH

Sales of watches in June, according to Fred G. Gruen, president of the Gruen Watch Makers guild, Cincinnati, established a record for that month in Gruen business and topped sales for the same month of last year by $250,000. July shipments, he declared, were ahead of 1929 and fall prospects look good.

Mr. Gruen declares the new tariff to be a blessing in disguise. It materially raises the duty on the cheaper movements, Mr. Gruen points out, but leaves the better grades virtually unchanged. Inasmuch as Gruen is the largest importer of fine watch movements from Switzerland, Mr. Gruen feels that his company stands to benefit by the proportionately higher tax on cheap movements.

U. S. Investors Ponder Peru's Credit Standing

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 1.—The weakness displayed by Peruvian, and subsequently Argentine and Brazilian government and municipal bonds, as a result of the overthrow of the Leguia government in Peru and the threatened revolts in Argentina and Brazil, reflected the apprehension on the part of American investors concerning the continuance of debt service. On this score investment bankers here have hastened to answer all inquiries that governmental changes do not necessarily alter the status of a country's credit standing.

The drop in Peruvian issues at the beginning of last week was followed a few days later by sizeable rallies. The declines in the Argentine and Brazilian issues occurred on Friday, so that with Saturday and today holidays on the stock exchange prices on these issues remain at the lows.

Statement on Subject.

Dr. Max Winkler, vice president of Bertron, Griscom & Co., Inc., in a statement issued yesterday points out that repudiation of debts or defaults are rarely, if ever, resorted to by new Latin American governments.

"On the contrary," he said, "it is reliably reported that in the 1890s the fiscal agents for a certain South American issue received funds covering interest and sinking funds from both the overthrown administration and the incoming government."

In the case of Peru, which was the first to suffer from political changes last week, Dr. Winkler said that the apprehension on the part of American investors concerning the continuance of the debt service is groundless. He pointed out that with more than $215,000,000 invested in Peru by the United States, and with American-Peruvian commerce amounting to more than $56,000,000 annually, our interest in recent events in the country is more than academic.

Division of Investments.

"Of the United States investments in Peru," he said, "investments in petroleum and mining enterprises aggregate $110,524,000, or approximately 50 per cent of the total. Investments in government, state and municipal obligations amount to $98,661,000, while the balance is made up of miscellaneous investments, of which the largest item is represented by our interest in the Peruvian Telephone company. Control of this company was acquired last year through the purchase of stock by the International Telephone and Telegraph corporation. The amount is placed at $12,880,000."

American loans to Peru now outstanding are as follows: $69,492,500 Peru 6s, due 1960; $25,000,000 Peru 6s, due 1961; $14,779,000 7s, due 1959; $5,000,000 Peru credit of 1929; $1,599,500 city of Callao, Peru, 7½s, due 1944, and $3,000,000 city of Lima, Peru, 6½s, due 1958.

Action of Markets Closely Watched.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 1.—Today was observed as a holiday in practically all financial and commercial markets. There was once a time when the holiday makers came back after Labor day expecting immediate change in the business situation—a prompt return to normal trade activities, if nothing more.

This did not often happen; even in

THE THIRD DISCOVERY OF GAS

Gas began to displace candles and whale-oil for LIGHTING in this country about 1815. Then, as gas lights were themselves being displaced by electric bulbs in the 90's, a new use for gas became popular —COOKING.

The third discovery of gas did not take place until the past decade. Gas was found to be superior for HEATING. This new demand helped to make the production of gas during the last ten years greater than the total produced during all the previous 110 years of the industry.

Gas for House Heating

House heating by gas holds an especially bright future.

It banishes from winter months the burden of shoveling fuel, handling ashes, building new fires, regulating heat. Lighted in the fall, a gas furnace automatically maintains a constant temperature indoors all winter.

Burning of gas helps in conservation of fuel. A ton of coal, burned in the average household furnace, gives only half as many heat units as the gas produced from a ton of coal in a gas manufacturing plant.

Associated Increase 33% a year

Two facts emphasize possibilities of house heating by gas. It is estimated that of about 13 million domestic customers in this country, only about 75,000 use gas for house heating. While the average customer uses only 30,000 cubic feet of gas a year, the consumer using it for house heating burns 300,000 cubic feet a year.

Although less than one-half of 1% of the Associated System's gas customers use gas for house heating, yet their consumption was 7% of total sales in 1929. Homes heated by gas supplied by the Associated System are increasing at the rate of 33% a year.

SEPTEMBER MAY MARK START OF TRADE REVIVAL

a year of active trade, business is apt to be as slow in re-acquiring momentum after the summer idleness as it was in relinquishing activities on the approach of summer. Even the tightening of money, which used to be expected at the beginning of September, has in recent normal years not usually been visible before the October quarter-day.

Position Last Year.

Nevertheless September has often been a month in American finance and trade with a very distinctive character of its own. It was certainly so last year; indeed, September of 1929 will be remembered in our financial history as the month when the furious three year stock exchange speculation came definitely to an end.

In some of its aspects it continued half way through the month, for stock market "averages" reached their high record figure in September, brokers' borrowings surpassed all records, and issues of new company securities as a whole and of investment trust shares in particular exceeded all monthly records, but on the other hand all the stocks signals were set, which indicated the following month's great crash. European money markets were taking urgent protective measures, European capital was rushing home from the Wall street market, and unmistakable signs of decreasing trade activity were in sight.

September was a notable month of trade expansion in 1928, 1926, and 1924. In the last named year only the traditional dislike to anticipate uncertainties of a presidential election seemed to hold in leash a market which was already drawing conclusions from the great turn in the agricultural situation. An equally notable and equally sudden change in the opposite direction came in 1927 and 1920.

Reaction of 1927.

The trade reaction of 1927—people in those days insisted on calling it "mild depression"—began in earnest in September, the steel trade leading. It was the first of many occasions when the paradox was presented of an enthusiastic rise on the stock exchange while trade was doing badly.

The month which has just begun has at least two advantages over September in 1927 or 1920, that the markets have already faced the full violence of readjustment in the two or three last months. There is no illusion left regarding the nature of the situation, unless it is the kind of illusion which pictures the future in darker colors than are warranted. In past financial experience such an attitude has usually been a safeguard against unpleasant surprises. But financial watchers will keep their eye with unusual interest, first on the course of the September stock market, which certainly begins with an accumulated speculative interest on the side of the decline, and next on the course of staple prices, which can hardly fail to throw some light on existing obscurities.

News and Gossip of Stock Marts

Revive Merger Rumors.

With the recovery in the stock market, many rumors of mergers of investment trusts have been revived, brokers declared yesterday. According to reports current in Wall street, the managements of some of the middle sized trusts feel they are unequal to the task of attempting to make money in such a wildly fluctuating stock market as 1930 has witnessed thus far. Critics of the investment trusts declare that a majority of the trusts with offices in New York not only buy and sell their holdings at the same time, but also chose the same stocks. There is so little originality of thought or independence of action among the managers of some trusts, it is charged, that there is little likelihood of substantial profits being realized over a period of years. Under such circumstances, it is held, the best way out of the difficulty is to merge the indifferently managed trusts with those possessing strong sponsorship and brilliant management.

Stock Selling Drive.

In an endeavor to increase the number of stockholders and customers in the territory where the company operates, the Phillips Petroleum company will put on a special campaign to sell its stock between Sept. 2-15, according to an announcement of the company. The stock will be sold by over 6,000 employes of the company and purchasers during the campaign will participate in the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share, payable Oct. 2, it was announced.

Distributor Wanted for Miniature Golf

A large mid-western company, established in 1907, with four plants operating, has pioneered the Miniature Golf business with tremendous success. The DANITE Nine-Hole or Eighteen-Hole Portable Course for both indoor and outdoor play, with genuine turf-tex greens of rubber and pig bristles, has many advantages over the so-called built-in courses. Because of its many exclusive features it has proved a big money maker for both the buyer or operator as well as the distributor. Movie Houses, Department Stores, Hotels and Clubs have installed this course indoors with great success. Hundreds of outdoor installations are paying big.

National advertising now forces greater expansion. Correspondence is invited with firms or individuals for the distributorship in Chicago and territory. A connection is desired with a firm or individual that has sufficient capital (not less than $20,000)—the greater part of which must be invested in demonstration courses, which are productive in cash returns immediately as well as serving for display purposes.

Correspondence confidential and references exchanged. If you cannot qualify, please save your time as well as ours.

DOWN TO

FUNDAMENTALS

• Ever since the investment business became articulate, it has made much of the argument that your interests are best served through a close and continuing connection with an experienced and responsible investment house. This is a good time to re-examine the basis for this statement.

• First of all, you start with the self-evident proposition that you owe nothing to the investment business. If you can accomplish your aims of capital accumulation and estate building better in some other way, you will of course do so. The fact that large scale enterprises, both public and private, are made possible through the sale of securities is important of course, but unless the purchase of those securities by you is, in and of itself, a good thing for you, you have no obligation to make possible such financing.

• But when you consider the ways open to you for building your estate and obtaining a fair and perhaps increasing income from your funds, it becomes fairly obvious that the purchase of securities offers unquestioned advantages. Savings accounts, insurance, mortgages, real estate—all have a place, but bonds and stocks have unique qualities that make them peculiarly appropriate for the purpose.

• There are two ways in which securities can be bought—either by personal and independent selection from the issues outstanding or through the cooperation of an investment house which assumes responsibility for its recommendations. In choosing between these alternatives, it is apparent on even casual consideration that the business of successful investment is truly a business. The vast number of available issues and the variety and complexity of the factors that affect them call for seasoned judgment, exhaustive investigation, complete facts, and continuing scrutiny, all of which involve the expenditure of much time and effort. If an organization of several hundred people devotes its time and applies its abilities in an honest effort to accomplish what you and other investors want to accomplish, that organization can be very useful to you. If you give it your confidence, that confidence will not be abused.

North American Trust Shares
*The Largest Fixed Investment Trust

WHEN Admiral Perry, in the War of 1812, sent the famous message, "We have met the enemy and they are ours," he might have added, "thanks to du Pont powder."

From those first du Pont powder mills on the banks of the Brandywine has grown a corporation operating mills and factories scattered from one end of the country to the other and turning out, beside explosives, paints, dyestuffs, Fabrikoid, Pyralin, Duco, Rayon, Cellophane, synthetic ammonia and numerous other products. The du Pont Company has a large investment in the General Motors Corporation.

The chances are that there are a large number of du Pont products used by you daily in your home and office. This widespread use and great variety of products gives some indication of the potentialities of this business.

Each North American Trust Share gives you an interest in the profits of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Company, Inc., and 27 other major corporations, such as New York Central Railroad and American Telephone & Telegraph.

Points About N. A. T. S.

1—Each NORTH AMERICAN TRUST SHARE represents an investment in the common stocks of 28 outstanding corporations, leaders in their respective fields.

2—An investment in NORTH AMERICAN TRUST SHARES is as sound as American industry itself. The products and services of the companies, the common stocks of which underlie this trust, are directly related to every phase of human life.

3—The underlying stocks, all of which are listed on the New York Stock Exchange, are deposited with the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, Trustee. The trustee issues 2,000 N.A.T.S. upon the deposit of 4 shares each of the underlying stocks together with applicable reserve fund and accumulations.

4—The 28 underlying companies have an average unbroken dividend record of 33 years, combined total assets of more than 24 billion dollars and combined surplus and reserves of over 6.7 billion dollars.

5—N.A.T.S. are readily marketable. In addition to the established market which has been maintained at ¼ point below the asked price the holder of the smallest denomination of shares may liquidate through the trustee without penalty. The holder of 500 shares or any multiple thereof may convert through the trustee into the underlying stocks.

6—Each certificate carries coupons calling for semi-annual disbursement of all distributions received by the trustee on the deposited stocks. On June 30, 1930, a semi-annual income and capital distribution of $1.34 per share was made.

7—N. A. T. S. holders are offered rights semi-annually permitting reinvestment of all return in excess of cash dividends on deposited stocks at a discount from the asked price. This program results in retention of appreciation and maintenance of original diversification.

8—N. A. T. S. are available in denominations ranging from 10 shares to 10,000 shares. Thus an investment in the shares of 28 leading corporations can be made for less than $100.

9—Current price for N. A. T. S. per share is about

Paramount Publix.

Your information in regard to the Paramount Publix corporation's twenty year 5½ per cent sinking fund bonds would be very much appreciated.—E. O.

Paramount Publix corporation is both a holding and an operating company. It produces and leases motion pictures, and through subsidiaries owns, leases, and operates motion picture theaters. At the close of 1929 about 600 theaters were being operated in the United States.

Early in May, 1930, plans were approved for the acquisition of M. E. Comerford holdings, involving 61 theaters in Pennsylvania, New York, and Rhode Island.

The $15,000,000 sinking fund 5½ per cent bonds, dated Aug. 1, 1930, and due Aug. 1, 1950, have been issued in connection with this acquisition.

These are a direct obligation of the corporation, but are not secured by mortgage. In the trust agreement, however, the corporation agrees not to create any mortgage upon its assets except under certain restrictions.

Consolidated earnings, after depreciation and interest but before federal taxes, amounted to $17,537,447 in 1929, compared with $9,329,593 in 1928. Such earnings for the six months ended June 28, 1930, were approximately $9,400,000. Interest on the outstanding funded debt of the corporation, including the present issue, will require a maximum of $1,671,300 per annum.

These bonds are listed on the New York Stock exchange. They are considered a business man's investment.

Maytag Co.

Will you please let me have the latest available information as to the financial position of the Maytag company, per share earnings of preferred, preference and common stock?—T. A. O.

Maytag company, manufacturer of electric washing machines and laundry accessories, earnings in the three months ended June 30, 1930, were equal to 41 cents per common share, against 4 cents per share in the preceding quarter, and 96 cents per share in the second quarter of 1929.

For the six months ended June 30, 1930, earnings were 5.75 times dividend requirements on the first preferred shares and 2.67 times preference dividends. Earnings per share on the common were 44 cents on 1,617,922 shares, against $1.56 per share on 1,608,795 shares in the first half of 1929.

As of June 30, 1930, current assets were $7,927,037 and current liabilities were $1,757,561. Surplus was $2,065,266.

The first preferred is rather high grade. The preference deserves a fair rating and the common is medium grade and somewhat speculative.

FINANCIAL NOTES

In connection with the formation by Pacific Northwest Public Service company of the Portland General Electric company to take over its electric properties in Oregon as the first step in the former's program of segregating its electric, gas, and railway holdings, announcement is made that approximately $29,000,000 principal amount of 5, 5½, 6, and 7½ per cent mortgage debts now outstanding against the electric properties will be retired at various dates up to Nov. 1, 1931. To effect this redemption there has been authorized a new issue of $40,000,000 first and refunding mortgage gold bonds, 4½ per cent series, due 1960. A syndicate headed by Harris Trust and Savings bank has underwritten this issue and will shortly offer the bonds publicly.

Stranahan, Harris & Oatis, Inc., announce the withdrawal of Vincent P. Oatis as vice president of the firm and the change of the firm's corporate title to Stranahan, Harris & Co., Inc. E. Ray Allen, for eight years a member of the organization, has been appointed manager of their Chicago office.

Vincent P. Oatis and Thomas Maclay Hoyne II., formerly associated with Stranahan, Harris & Oatis, Inc., announce the formation of Oatis, Hoyne & Co., to deal in general investment securities, with headquarters at 231 South La Salle street.

Pacific Gas and Electric company's earnings statement for the six months ended June 30, 1930, made public by President A. F. Hockenbeamer, shows substantial increases in both gross income and net applicable to dividends on the common stock, as compared with the corresponding period in 1929. The company's gross, including miscellaneous income, for the six months ended June 30 was $34,118,861, an increase of $1,128,152. Balance available for dividends on the common stock was $6,530,432, an increase of $721,084. This balance available for dividends on the common was equivalent to $1.60 a share upon the average of 4,082,947 shares of common stock outstanding during the first half of 1930.

W. H. Hassinger of Birmingham, Ala., has been elected a director of the Commonwealth and Southern corporation.

When to Believe

"Earnings per share" can be believed only after one knows that no maintenance has been capitalized, that no improvements have been expensed, that depreciation has been measured rather than guessed. American Appraisal Service provides the facts with which to make earnings believable—and believed.

We do Not Sell Securities

Chicago Title and Trust Company is concerned only with the purchase of sound investments and not with the sale of securities to the public.

The whole investment field is ours from which to choose, without fear or favor and with the sole thought of meeting the particular needs of our trusts.

To keep that freedom unimpaired, Chicago Title & Trust Company has no securities to sell.

$2,000,000 has been set aside in a Special Reserve Fund to protect against loss of either principal or interest on interest bearing investments purchased by us.

Every Investor Should Consider Bonds

Debenture bond prices have not advanced appreciably above the levels of 1929—the year of lowest prices since 1925. Present market conditions and low interest rates indicate a strong bond market in the near future accompanied by rising bond prices.

For safety and a good return we recommend Associated Gas and Electric Company Gold Debenture Bonds, due 1968—priced to yield over 5¼%.

Send for Circular

Associated Gas and Electric Securities Co., Incorporated
61 Broadway, New York, N. Y.
Kindly send me Circular I-8 on Gold Debenture Bonds due 1968.
